

From Floor:
Time to Kill

Time is always against you in Dead Rising 2. The military is set to arrive in just a handful of days, and anyone who is not present within the confines of the Safe House will be lost at that time--including Chuck, the overburdened hero.

The clock is always ticking, forcing you to plan your actions carefully if you wish to rescue all of the city's stranded survivors.

These are the only three instances in which time does not pass:

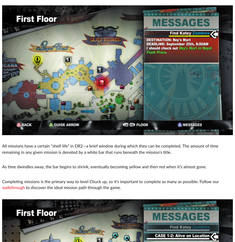

1. During cinematics.

2. While you view the map.

3. While you view the Pause menu and its submenus.

Note

For conversion enthusiasts, one minute of game time passes every hour seconds.

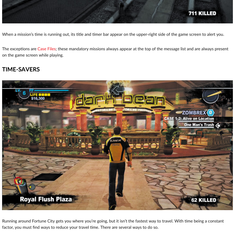

All missions have a certain "shelf life" in DR2--a brief window during which they can be completed. The amount of time remaining in any given mission is denoted by a white bar that runs beneath the mission's title.

As time dwindles away, the bar begins to shrink, eventually becoming yellow and then red when it's almost gone.

Completing missions is the primary way to level Chuck up, so it's important to complete as many as possible. Follow our walkthrough to discover the ideal mission path through the game.

Missions are listed in order of priority at the map screen's message list. Even if all timer bars are full, tasks at the top of the list will have less time remaining than those further down.

When a mission's time is running out, its title and timer bar appear on the upper-right side of the game screen to alert you.

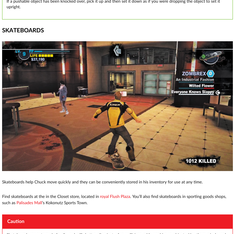

The exceptions are Case Files; these mandatory missions always appear at the top of the message list and are always present on the game screen while playing.

TIME-SAVERS

Running around Fortune City gets you where you're going, but it isn't the fastest way to travel. With time being a constant factor, you must find ways to reduce your travel time. There are several ways to do so.

PUSHABLE OBJECTS

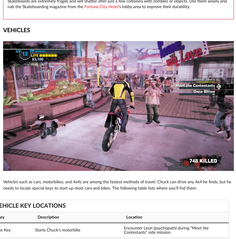

Anything Chuck can push makes him move faster than normal. This includes wheelchairs, dollies, lawn mowers, utility carts, and more. Stand behind such an object to receive the "push" command option. Chuck always right through zombies while pushing objects!

Tip

Pushable objects are often found near the transition points between different sections of Fortune City. Exploit them whenever it's convenient to do so!

If a pushable object has been knocked over, pick it up and then set it down as if you were dropping the object to set it upright.

SKATEBOARDS

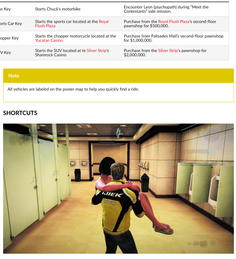

Skateboards help Chuck move quickly and they can be conveniently stored in his inventory for use at any time.

Find skateboards at the in the Closet store, located in royal Flush Plaza. You'll also find skateboards in sporting goods shops, such as Palisades Mall's Kokonutz Sports Town.

Caution

Skateboards are extremely fragile and will shatter after just a few collisions with zombies or objects. Use them wisely and nab the Skateboarding magazine from the Fortune City Mall's lobby area to improve their durability.

VEHICLES

Vehicles such as cars, motorbikes, and 4x4s are among the fastest methods of travel. Chuck can drive any 4x4 he finds, but he needs to locate special keys to start up most cars and bikes. The following table lists where you'll find them.

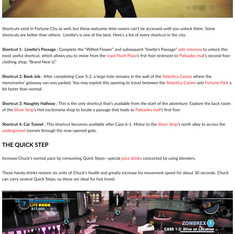

VEHICLE KEY LOCATIONS

Key	Description	Location
Bike Key	Starts Chuck's motorbike	Encounter Leon (psychopath) during "Meet the Contestants" side missions.
Sports Car Key	Starts the sports car located at the Royal Flush Plaza	Purchase from the Royal Flush Plaza's second-floor pawnshop for $500,000.
Chopper Key	Starts the chopper motorcycle located at the Paradise Casino	Purchase from Palisades Mall's second-floor pawnshop for $1,000,000.
SUV Key	Starts the SUV located at the Silver Strip's Shamrock Casino	Purchase from the Silver Strip's pawnshop for $2,000,000.

Note

All vehicles are labeled on the poster map to help you quickly find a ride.

SHORTCUTS

Shortcuts exist in Fortune City as well, but these welcome time-savers can't be accessed until you unlock them. Some shortcuts are better than others; Linette's is one of the best. Here's a list of every shortcut in the city:

Shortcut 1: Linette's Passage: Complete the "Wilted Flower" and subsequent "Anette's Passage" side missions to unlock this most useful shortcut, which allows you to move from the royal Flush Plaza's first floor restroom to Palisades mall's second-floor clothing shop, "Brand New U."

Shortcut 2: Bank Job: After completing Case 2-2, a large hole remains in the wall of the Atlantis Casino where the mercenaries' getaway van was parked. You may exploit this opening to travel between the Atlantis Casino and Fortune Park a bit faster than normal.

Shortcut 3: Naughty Hallway: This is the only shortcut that's available from the start of the adventure. Explore the back room of the Silver Strip's Hot exoticomania shop to locate a passage that leads to Palisades mall's first floor.

Shortcut 4: Car Tunnel: This shortcut becomes available after Case 6-1. Motor to the Silver Strip's north alley to access the underground tunnels through the now-opened gate.

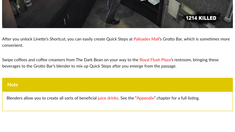

THE QUICK STEP

Increase Chuck's normal pace by consuming Quick Steps--special juice drinks concocted by using blenders.

Those handy drinks restore six units of Chuck's health and greatly increase his movement speed for about 30 seconds. Chuck can carry several Quick Steps, so these are ideal for fast travel.

The blender at Americana Casino's central bar, Shots & Awe, is the one that's closest to the Safe House. Get in the habit of mixing up Quick Steps here by blending two bottles of wine together. Conveniently, there's an endless supply of wine at the bar.

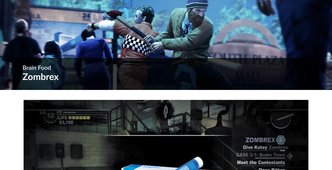

After you unlock Linette's Shortcut, you can easily create Quick Steps at Palisades Mall's Grotto Bar, which is sometimes more convenient.

Swipe coffees and coffee creamers from The Dark Bean on your way to the Royal Flush Plaza's restroom, bringing these beverages to the Grotto Bar's blender to mix up Quick Steps after you emerge from the passage.

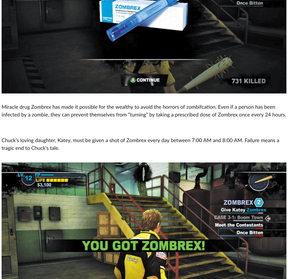

Note

Blenders allow you to create all sorts of beneficial juice drinks. See the "Appendix" chapter for a full listing.

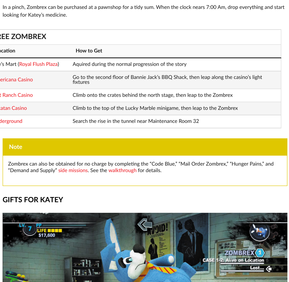

Brain Food

Zombrex

Miracle drug Zombrex has made it possible for the wealthy to avoid the horrors of zombification. Even if a person has been infected by a zombie, they can prevent themselves from "turning" by taking a prescribed dose of Zombrex once every 24 hours.

Chuck's loving daughter, Katey, must be given a shot of Zombrex every day between 7:00 AM and 8:00 AM. Failure means a tragic end to Chuck's tale.

Zombrex is priceless to those in need, and is therefore extremely expensive and hard to come by. Chuck can acquire Zombrex by completing certain tasks or by finding hidden stashes of the drug.

In a pinch, Zombrex can be purchased at a pawnshop for a tidy sum. When the clock nears 7:00 Am, drop everything and start looking for Katey's medicine.

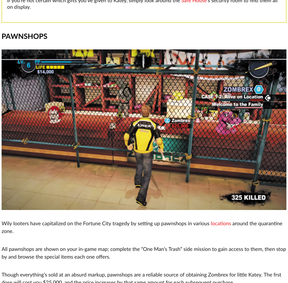

FREE ZOMBREX

Location	How to Get
Roy's Mart (Royal Flush Plaza)	Aquired during the normal progression of the story
Americana Casino	Go to the second floor of Bannie Jack's BBQ Shack, then leap along the casino's light fixtures
Slot Ranch Casino	Climb onto the crates behind the north stage, then leap to the Zombrex
Yucatan Casino	Climb to the top of the Lucky Marble minigame, then leap to the Zombrex
Underground	Search the rise in the tunnel near Maintenance Room 32

Note

Zombrex can also be obtained for no charge by completing the "Code Blue," "Mail Order Zombrex," "Hunger Pains," and "Demand and Supply" side missions. See the walkthrough for details.

GIFTS FOR KATEY

Taking shots of Zombrex every day is such a bummer. Bring a smile to little Katey's face by giving her special gifts as well! Each of the following gifts will please the sweet girl—and also net Chuck some valuable PP.

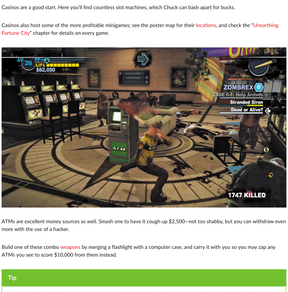

Katey's Gifts

Gift	Location
Giant Stuffed Rabbit	Stylin' Toddler on Royal Flush Plaza's first floor
Robot Bear	Astonishing Illusions on Royal Flush Plaza's first floor
Bag of Marbles	Ye Olde Toybox on Royal Flush Plaza's first floor
Beach Ball	Ye Olde Toybox on Royal Flush Plaza's first floor
Stick Pony	Ye Olde Toybox on Royal Flush's first floor
Water Gun	The watery areas of Fortune Park; also found in Moe's Magimations on the Platinum Strip
Giant Stuffed Bull	Children's Castle on Royal Flush Plaza's second floor
Giant Stuffed Donkey	Children's Castle on Royal Flush Plaza's second floor
Giant Stuffed Rabbit	The hidden upper platforms of Americana Casino's and Royal Flush Plaza's second floors; also found in Moe's Magimations on Platinum Strip
Snowflake	Tame this ferocious tiger by feeding her three steaks after dispatching her master, Ted, at Yucatan Casino
Funny Painting	Can only be obtained at The Clerous Collection in Palisades Mall during the "Art Appreciation" side mission. Costs $3,000.

Note

If you're not certain which gifts you've given to Katey, simply look around the Safe House's security room to find them all on display.

PAWNSHOPS

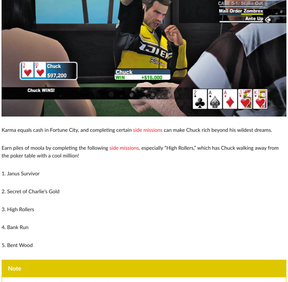

Willy looters have capitalized on the Fortune City tragedy by setting up pawnshops in various locations around the quarantine zone.

All pawnshops are shown on your in-game map; complete the "One Man's Trash" side mission to gain access to them, then stop by and browse the special items each one offers.

Though everything's sold at an absurd markup, pawnshops are a reliable source of obtaining Zombrex for little Katey. The first dose will cost you $25,000, and the price increases by that same amount for each subsequent purchase.

MAKING MONEY

As you might expect, earning cash isn't very difficult at Fortune City. Rarely will Chuck find himself in desperate need of dollars, but with so many expensive items for sale at pawnshops, it pays to know how to stockpile some serious scratch.

Casinos are a good start. Here you'll find countless slot machines, which Chuck can bash apart for bucks.

Casinos also host some of the more profitable minigames; see the poster map for their locations, and check the "Unearthing Fortune City" chapter for details on every game.

ATMs are excellent money sources as well. Smash one to have it cough up $2,500—not too shabby, but you can withdraw even more with the use of a hacker.

Build one of these combo weapons by merging a flashlight with a computer case, and carry it with you so you may zap any ATMs you see to score $10,000 from them instead.

Tip

Build hackers easily by visiting Maintenance Room B on Palisades Mall's first floor. You can find the necessary components there.

Karma equals cash in Fortune City, and completing certain side missions can make Chuck rich beyond his wildest dreams.

Earn piles of moola by completing the following side missions, especially "High Rollers," which has Chuck walking away from the poker table with a cool million!

1. Janus Survivor

2. Secret of Charlie's Gold

3. High Rollers

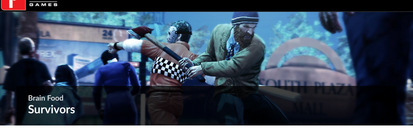

4. Bank Run

5. Bent Wood

Note

Slaughtering the competition in Dead Rising 2's white-knuckle multiplayer mode, Terror is Reality, is another excellent way to earn lots of cash that carries over into the single-player/co-op adventure

See the "Terror is reality" chapter of this guide for all the gory details.

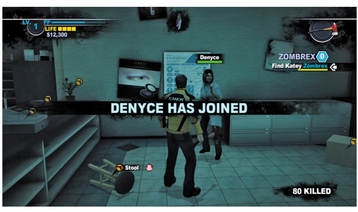

Brain Food
Survivors

Not everyone has perished in Fortune City's terrible outbreak. Dozens of living, breathing survivors are still out there, in desperate need of help.

These poor souls won't last long unless Chuck manages to find and rescue them, fearlessly escorting them back to the Safe House to ensure their survival

Remember: Anyone not secured within the Safe House by the time the military arrives will be lost!

Once you've located a survivor, speak with them to hear their story. You may need to beat back some zombies as you listen to their tale.

Some survivors will be eager to join you; others will require you to complete a certain task for them to gain their trust.

You receive an instant Prestige Point (PP) bonus once a survivor agrees to join you and double this amount should you manage to escort them back to the Safe House in one piece.

> Note
>
> Many side missions lead to survivors, and survivors lead to PP-- that's why it's so important to carry out each mission!

GIVING ORDERS

Once a survivor has joined you, they'll automatically follow Chuck wherever he leads. If a survivor isn't following, simply press the Call button to holler out--the straggler will hurry to Chuck's position.

If you'd rather a survivor didn't follow you, hold the Aim button, then press the Call button to have them wait at a target location. This can be very helpful if you've stumbled into a hazardous scenario and don't want your survivors getting too close to the carnage.

> Note
>
> Ideal survivor "safe zones" include any room you can close of by shutting doors, such as maintenance rooms. Restrooms are also sound options, as zombies won't venture into these areas (it's the smell).

> Tip
>
> For a fun challenge, order your survivors to wait outside of the Safe House each time Chuck is forced to return there for story- related purposes.
>
> This prevents them from entering the Safe House, allowing Chuck to lead a huge troop of followers around. See how many survivors you can keep around!

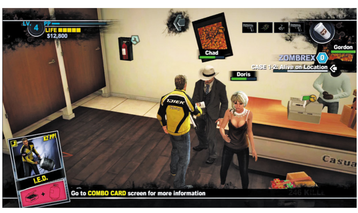

CARRYING THE WOUNDED

Some survivors will be injured and unable to move very quickly. Lend a helping hand by carrying the person or offering them a shoulder.

Chuck can only perform a weak front kick while supporting a survivor, so it's best to hurry the injured survivor back to the Safe House.

TRADING ITEMS

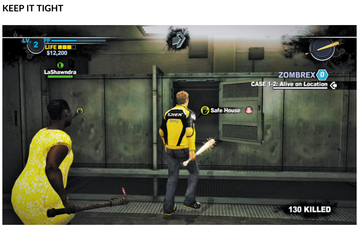

Some survivors Chuck finds will be carrying weapons, but they aren't always ideal. Give these folks a fighting chance by handing them something more suitable, such as a firearm or powerful melee weapon.

On the other hand, perhaps you've met a survivor who's wielding something tantalizing--hand them anything except a combo weapon (survivors won't accept these) and they'll trade their current weapon for yours.

> Tip
>
> Give survivors food and drink if they're wounded—they'll instantly consume the curative and recover health.

KEEP IT TIGHT

Survivors are smart enough to avoid zombies as they follow you through the city, but most aren't as fast as Chuck.

When you reach a transition point between two sections of the city, slow down and make sure your followers are close by—if you don't, the survivors will become lost and will steadily take damage until you return for them.

You know a survivor will follow you to a new area when you see the tiny green door icon appear near their health bar.

DEFECTION

Battling zombies is sometimes necessary while escorting survivors, but be mindful of your mayhem. Repeatedly smacking a survivor around can cause them to defect and turn against you.

An onscreen warning message appears when a survivor defects, and defectors cannot be reasoned with. They'll attack Chuck as if he were an enemy until you either kill them or flee.

Hello survivors and welcome to the first content patch for Dead by Daylight! We've been working hard on this one and we're very excited to share it with you. Here's a list of the major new features and changes included in this patch.

NEW CHARACTER: THE HUNTRESS

The Huntress is the first new killer to be added to the Dead by Daylight roster since the release of the game. She is a powerful killer who excels at long range combat. Her ability to throw her hatchets with deadly accuracy makes her a force to be reckoned with.

Throwing her hatchets has a short cooldown between each throw, but the hatchets will disappear if they miss their target. Hitting a survivor with a hatchet will cause them to enter the Deep Wound status effect.

Deep Wound causes the survivor to bleed out quickly and to leave a large blood pool behind them. Other survivors can cleanse the Deep Wound by healing the injured survivor.

The Huntress's power can be countered by survivors who have the Iron Will perk equipped. Iron Will reduces the duration of the Deep Wound status effect.

NEW MAP: THE MACMILLAN ESTATE

The Macmillan Estate is a large, open map with a mixture of indoor and outdoor areas. It features a number of new environmental assets, including a large mansion, a greenhouse, and a graveyard.

The Macmillan Estate is the first map to feature the Huntress as a killer. It is also the first map to feature the Iron Will perk as a survivor perk.

NEW PERK: IRON WILL

Iron Will reduces the duration of the Deep Wound status effect by 50%. It can be equipped by any survivor.

NEW ITEM: HUNTRESS HATCHET

The Huntress Hatchet is a new item that can be found in chests. It is the only item that the Huntress can use.

Brain Food

Co-op Action

Why brave the horrors of Fortune City alone when you can kill twice as much stuff with a friend? Dead Rising 2 features a fun co-op system that allows one player to join up with another at any time. Just choose "Co-op" from the main menu to join another player's game.

> Note
>
> Ensure your game is open to others through the options menu, or disable the option to receive co-op transmissions if you'd rather not be bothered.

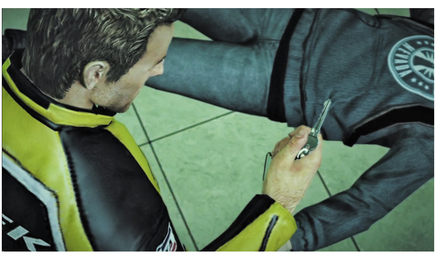

To play co-op with another player, both players must have advanced far enough through the story to receive the transceiver from Stacy Forsythe at the Safe House.

This means you must simply complete the brief introductory segment in which Chuck competes in "Terror is Reality," then ferries his daughter away from the arena and into the Safe House for the first time.

CONNECTING

Once a player has invited you to join their game, your transceiver will ring and the player's name will appear next to it. Simply answer the transceiver to have that player join you as a co-op buddy.

While playing co-op, the "main" Chuck will be the only one to advance their story. The "buddy" Chuck will not advance their story, but they will retain all money and PP they acquire while assisting their pal.

Co-op is therefore a great way for two friends to share in the adventure and level up with less difficulty.

CO-OP ADVANTAGES

There are a few things to know about playing co-op. First, all PP you acquire through escorts and missions is doled out to both players. The PP is not halved; both players simply receive an equal share. Nice!

Second, co-op players can resuscitate one another. Should one Chuck fall in battle, a message is sent to the surviving player. Simply hand the fallen Chuck any food item to bring him back to life.

The reanimated player always rises with two units of health, unless the food item given would heal Chuck for an even greater amount.

The only limitation to playing with a buddy is that you must both be in close proximity to one another to move from one area of the city to another. Both players must also be nearby to initiate a Case File task as well.

Still, this isn't much of a limitation when you consider the great advantages of having a second Chuck at your side!

Menus and Interface

Is your frame feeling hot? Don't sweat it—snap things up with a look at the Pause menu options.

CASE FILE

Much more is going on in Fortune City than meets the eye, and Chuck Greene is determined to get to the bottom of the horrendous outbreak. The Case File lists all mysterious missions that Chuck must complete to discover the truth.

Failing to meet any of these objectives does not end the game—you're free to keep playing to explore, destroy, and level Chuck up if you wish. But you'll never uncover the truth of what's happened in Fortune City unless you meet these vital objectives.

COMBO CARDS

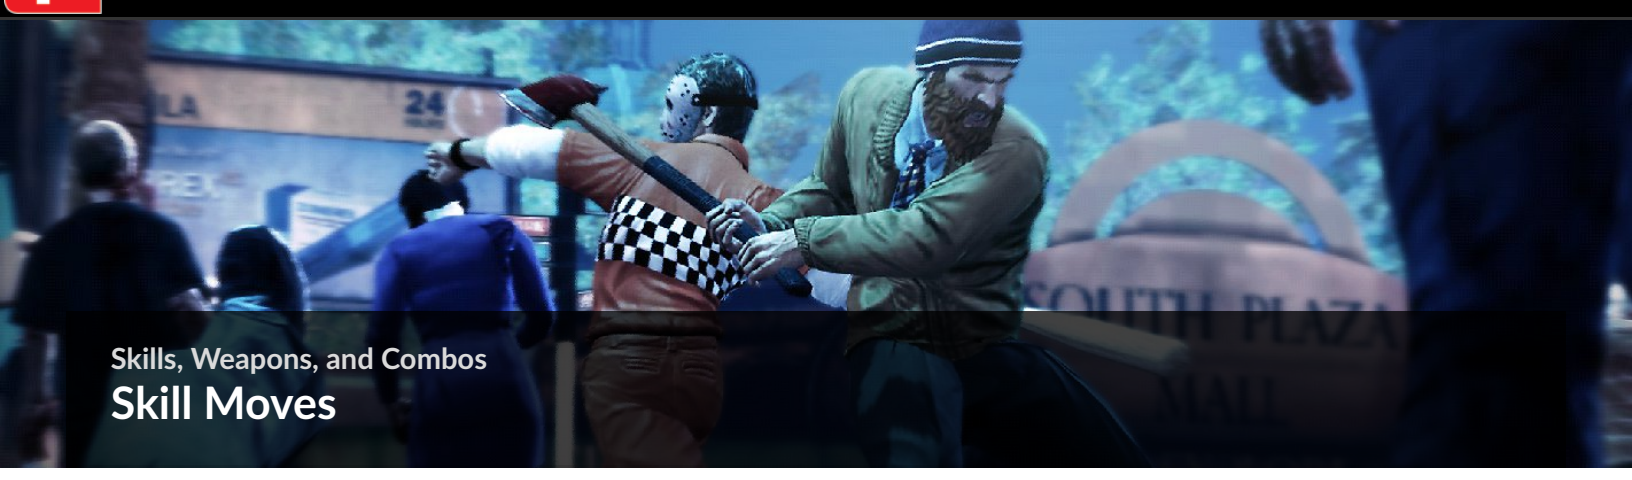

All of the scratch and combo cards that Chuck has acquired are listed under this section of the Pause menu. Here you may view the cards at any time to review what you need to build those ultimate levels of zombie destruction.

Refer to the next chapter, "Skills, Weapons, and Combos," for a complete list of combo cards that includes informative descriptions of their weapons and where to find them.

Skills, Weapons, and Combos

Skill Moves

Now that you've digested your "Brain Food," let's move on to dessert. Here we expose the many manly skill moves Chuck learns as he levels up, along with the vast array of lethal weapons he's able to wield, including all combo weapons Chuck constructs at maintenance rooms.

A complete list of combo cards and their locations is also provided to ensure you get the most out of each deadly device.

Struggling for survival brings out the best in Chuck. Though Fortune City's foremost stuntman starts off green (pun intended, sorry), he soon develops a variety of combat-oriented skills that improve his odds of overcoming the endless ordeals he must face.

Like stats, Chuck's skills unlock as he levels up—and similarly, you never know exactly when he'll gain a new one.

One thing remains constant, however: Chuck's skills always unlock in sequence, as detailed in the following table (The first skill Chuck will learn is the backdrop, and the last will be the Pick Up). By the time Chuck hits level 50 (the maximum), all skills will have unlocked.

A few of Chuck's skills are passive, such as the DDT and backdrop — Chuck automatically employs these skill when breaking away from a zombie's grasp, provided he escapes quickly.

The majority of skills require your input, however. Pause and review their individual button commands under the "Skills" portion of the Status menu.

CHUCK'S SKILLS

1. Backdrop : Chuck automatically slams zombies that have grabbed him from behind, killing them. Chuck must escape quickly to perform this move.

2. Jump Kick : A fast, jumping kick that knocks enemies away. Useful when no suitable weapons can be found.

3. DDT : Chuck automatically slams zombies that have grabbed him from the front, killing them. Chuck must escape quickly to perform this move.

4. Curbstomp : A heavy ground stomp. very useful against enemies that are down but not out.

5. Front Kick : A fast, frontal kick that knocks enemies away. Useful when no suitable weapons can be found.

6. Dodge Roll : A quick-diving somersault. Extremely useful, helping Chuck avoid attacks and close in on foes.

7. Double Leg Drop Kick : a powerful, diving kick with both legs. Knocks enemies away but leaves Chuck vulnerable while he regains his feet.

8. Foot Sweep : An area attack that knocks surrounding zombies away. Useful when being swarmed by undead.

9. Elbow Drop : A heavy, diving elbow strike to grounded enemies. Try it from great heights!

10. Haymaker : A slow but devastating punch that smashes zombies, knocking them back and killing them. As effective as any weapon, but the long wind up leaves Chuck vulnerable.

11. Field Goal : A mighty kick to a downed zombie's head that sends it flying of in a shower of gore. Kiss that Curbstomp good-bye!

12. Smash : A forceful shove that knocks zombies away from Chuck, bouncing them of nearby objects. very efective and very deadly.

13. Hands Off : A special move that makes Chuck impossible for zombies to grab. Very useful when rushing through a teeming throng.

14. Power Bomb : A devastating finishing move initiated by standing near a downed zombie's feet. Awesomely fatal.

15. Pick Up : Allows Chuck to lift zombies overhead, hurling them into objects or other zombies. As manly as it gets.

Ultimate Weapons

Stats, Weapons, and Combos

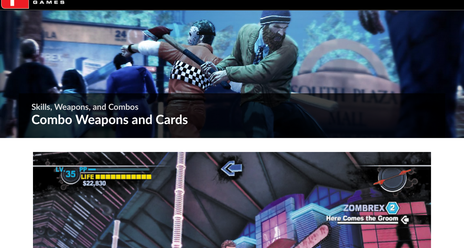

When the ammo at darkness threatens to overwhelm, anything and everything becomes a weapon of survival.

From fire axes to sledge hammers pistols to crossbows, you'll find each and every weapon that Chuck can wield listed here with damage numbers and durability values, and information descriptions of each weapon's use.

Note

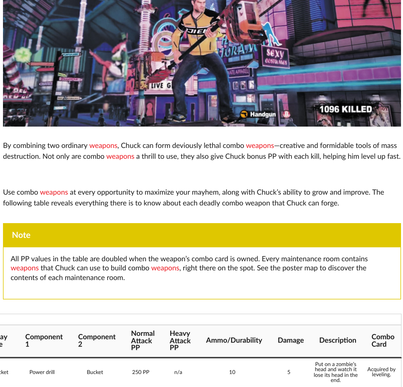

The durability/ammo rating tells you how many times a melee weapon can strike an enemy before breaking, and how many shots a ranged weapon has. Read "how to fire" [Operation] at the back of the guide to discover the necessary [consolation] button of all weapons.

Unearthing Fortune City

Points of Interest

MAINTENANCE ROOMS

Chuck acquires the maintenance room key early in the adventure, which grants him access to the many maintenance rooms scattered across Fortune City.

Each of these rooms provides Chuck with the basic tools he needs to combine items into hilariously lethal combo weapons.

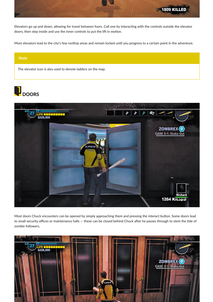

See the "Skills, Weapons and Combos" or "Appendix" chapters of this guide for a complete list of the many diverse combo weapons Chuck can build.

Note

Any combo weapon can be built at any maintenance room, but each maintenance room contains a few items that help you easily construct one or two specific combo weapons.

Refer to the poster map or the tables in this chapter to quickly discover each maintenance room's contents.

RESTROOMS (SAVE POINTS)

It is city-filled with zombies and rampant psychopaths, doing can be an all-too-common occurrence. Make sure to save your progress regularly by visiting one of Fortune City's many restrooms.

Here, Chuck may unload himself of his heavy burdens, marking his progress to ensure that an unexpected death or missed opportunity doesn't become a major setback.

ELEVATORS

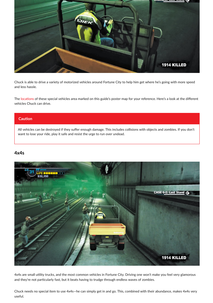

Situated go up and down, allowing for travel between floors. Call one by interacting with the controls outside the elevator doors, then step inside and use the control panel to pick the lift in motion.

Most elevators lead to the city's few rooftop areas and remain locked until you progress to a certain point in the adventure.

Note

The elevator icon is also used to denote ladders on the map.

DOORS

Most doors Chuck encounters can be opened by simply approaching them and pressing the interact button. Some doors lead to small security offices or maintenance halls — these can be closed behind Chuck after he passes through to stem the tide of zombie followers.

Other doors are used to separate different sections of the city — these are all marked by special icons on the map. Chuck automatically closes these doors behind him to slow down those hungrily pressuring zombies from following.

Tip

Leave a section of Fortune City and then return to reset all items and objects in that area. This allows you to claim multiple items from the same area!

Caution

Make sure that any survivors following Chuck are close by before moving through a door that leads to a different section of the city. Survivors who stray behind doors left behind.

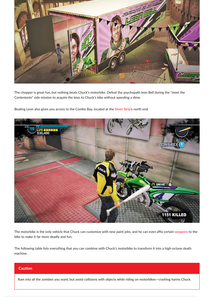

UNDERGROUND ACCESS

At a certain point in the adventure, Chuck gains the ability to access the city's Underground. These dank, subsurface tunnels are accessed via special service doors, which are clearly marked with orange signage.

Underground access doors are also marked on the maps for easy reference. Beware: the Underground is not a place for the faint of heart!

VEHICLES

Chuck is able to drive a variety of motorized vehicles around Fortune City to help him get where he's going with more speed and less hassle.

The locations of these special vehicles area marked on this guide's poster map for your reference. Here's a look at the different vehicles Chuck can drive.

Caution

All vehicles can be destroyed if they suffer enough damage. This includes collisions with objects and zombies. If you don't want to lose your ride, play it safe and resist the urge to run over undead.

4x4s

4x4s are small utility trucks, and the most common vehicles in Fortune City. Driving one won't make you feel very glamorous and they're not particularly fast, but 4 beats having to forage through endless waves of zombies.

Chuck needs no special item to use 4x4s—he can simply get in and go. This, combined with their abundance, makes 4x4s very useful.

Cars

Have you drooled over that sports car on display inside Rock-Paul's Pleas? How about the SUV inside the Silver Stick's Shamrock Casino? Chuck can drive both of these vehicles, but he first needs to acquire the keys.

Visit the pawnshop on Royal Flush Plaza's second level to find the keys to the sports car on sale for the low, low price of only $100,000.

Pay into Tinkerbox on the Silver Strip to purchase the SUV's keys for a cool $2,000,000. Save up enough money to buy three keys and you'll be able to ride in style!

Note

There are plenty of ways to amass cash in Fortune City. See the previous "Rock-Paul" chapter for a list of the best money- making schemes.

Choppers

Perhaps you've noticed the shady motorcycle that's parked atop the slots at Yucatan Casino.

Chuck can drive the bad boy around after he drops down $1,000,000 to purchase its keys from the Army Surplus Gift Store on Palisades Park's second floor. Busting up a casino has never been so easy!

Another chopper can be found in the city's Underground at Warehouse 6. You don't need to spend a dime to take this heavily out for a spin, so check it out!

Bikes and the Combo Bay

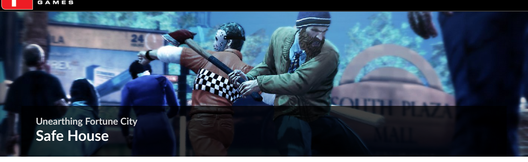

The motorbike is the only vehicle that Chuck can customize with new paint jobs, and he can even affix certain weapons to the bike to make it far more deadly and fun.

The following table lists everything that you can combine with Chuck's motorbike to transform it into a high-octane death machine.

Caution

Ram into all the zombies you want, but avoid collisions with objects while riding on motorbikes—crashing harms Chuck.

Unearthing Ancient City

Atlantica Casino

The fabled riches of Atlantis have returned and await you in the lobby of grand Atlantica Casino! So you found at our signature Blackjack tables or watch Bears and Rogue, the magical duo that are taking Fortunes City by storm!

POINTS OF INTEREST

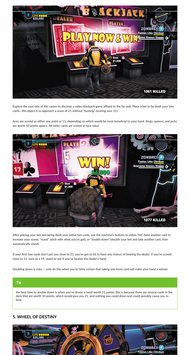

1. MAINTENANCE ROOM 10

Atlantica Casino has just one maintenance room, located in the south toward Bear and Rogue's magic stage.

Inside you find the markings for the holy wine combo weapon (a line of rails and a training sword), along with a construction hat that can be merged with one of the many tool-holder-around-stage-to-create-a-health-replenishing-bear hat.

2. COMBO CARD: HOLY ARMS

Inspect Atlantica Casino's south stall near the crepe tables to locate a poisoner that gives Oracle the ration to build the holy arms combo weapon. Once you can use each-one-more-fill-from-the-holy-arms you build in the casino's maintenance room!

3. RIDE THE WAVES

Behind Atlantica Casino's west statue lies a challenging minigame called Ride the Waves. This zonic similar to the butt riding game at Automata Casino. Keep your feet on the dolphin and press the arrow buttons to build high as Chaos threatens all above.

Play to win cash and RP ! No more times you win, the bigger the payouts!

4. KILLER BLACKJACK

Explore the east side of the casino to discover a killer Blackjack game offered to the for staff. Rare a bet to be dealt your two cards. Hit object it to approach a score of 21 without "busting" (scoring over 21).

Aces are scored as either one point or 11, depending on which would be most beneficial to your hand. Kings, queens, and jacks are worth 10 points apiece. All other cards are worth a face value.

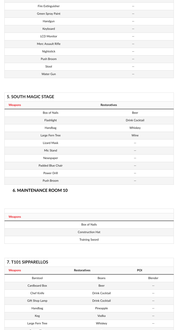

After placing your bet and being dealt your initial two cards, are the machine's buttons to either "Hit" (take another card to increase your score), "stand" (stick with what you've got), or "double down" (double your bet and take another card, then automatically stand).

If your first two cards don't put you close to 21, you've got to hit to have any chance of beating the dealer. If you've scored 21 or more, you've busted and can't win, entering the next round of play.

Doubling down is risky — only do this when you're fairly certain that taking one more card will make your hand a winner.

5. WHEEL OF DESTINY

Ready to test the whims of fate? Then spin the Wheel of Destiny! Located around the large prize ship, the Wheel of Destiny is a fun and easy minigame that can earn you some big RP — or leave you thoroughly rich of your hard-earned scratch.

Spin the wheel for a chance to win a huge cash payout or a significant amount of RP. The RP you obtain spins to win nothing, at which point you're out of money.

6. SECURITY BREACH

Smash out a window and leap into Atlantica Casino's south security room to score a handgun, a coffee creamer, and a powerful Security Breach combo weapon. Not a bad little niche, especially since you can clear these goodies during one visit to the casino.

7. ON THE JUICE

Swing by Atlantica Casino's central bar, Squeezitta, to score plenty of health- boosting liquor. There's a blender as well, so it has an optional juice-filled, with special properties. See the "Juice Bar" chapter for a complete list of juice blends.

8. POKER ROOM

When the action on the casino floor gets a little too heavy, duck into the north poker room and close the door behind you to relax for a moment.

Here you'll discover a magazine, gamers, which increases the durability of gaming weapons, such as croupier sticks. There's a handgun to have as well.

9. HIDDEN HEIGHTS

Climb onto the standing poster display near the north poker room, and you can reach the high ledge above. Up here you find some of the Atlantica Casino's best weapons, including a machete and the sushi.

Unearthing Fortune City

Fortune City Arena

This month at Fortune City arena: "Terror is Reality!" Experience the sporting event that's sweeping the nation firsthand. Families with young children: ask about our "TIR for tots" seating section for special discount rates.

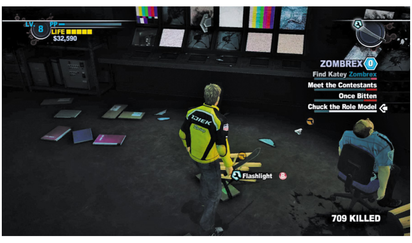

POINTS OF INTEREST

1. MAINTENANCE ROOM 23

Fortune City arena has just one maintenance room, which contains the makings for a freezer bomb (fire extinguisher and dynamite) — the hoard of undead in the arena's main area is the perfect target on which to test this deadly device! Merge the room's machete with the push broom that's right outside to fashion a nasty pole weapon as well.

2. IN SECURITY

A handgun is stashed in the security ofce near Maintenance Room 23. There's a magazine in here as well, Rescue, which gives you a 25 percent to PP gained from survivor-related activities (convincing survivors to join, escorting them to the Safe House, etc.). It's a good idea to collect this mag early in the adventure to help Chuck level up with all speed.

3. MONEY AND GRUB

If you're in need of cash or healing, check the arena's south maintenance hall to locate several snack machines and a couple of ATMs. Smash or zap the ATMs with a hacker combo weapon to loose some bills, then insert some into the snack machines to score as many snacks as you desire.

Tip

Find a fashlight and computer case in the arena's security room, which combine to form the hacker.

Unearthing Fortune City

Fortune City Hotel

Stay a night in the lap of luxury at the five-star Fortune City Hotel! World-renowned for its fantastic views, this four-story "Good Fortune" suite is complete with four hot tubs, three saunas and the largest "mini"-bar in the continental USA.

POINTS OF INTEREST

1. COUNTER ATTACK

The hotel lobby is a small area with limited weapons and food, but the best of the bunch are found behind the south reception counter. Here you find a handgun and a coffee creamer.

The brass stands and velvet bars in front of the reception counter are some of the better melee weapons in the hotel lobby. Stands are particularly effective at beating back the undead, but they won't last long.

2. SKATE OR DIE

Find a magazine, Skateboarding, on the cofee table near the door to South Plaza. This mag greatly enhances the durability of those speedy skateboards, and it also allows Chuck to ollie (jump) while riding a skateboard, helping him clear obstacles.

Just press the Jump button to perform this handy trick.

3. STICK IT TO 'EM

Chuck can obtain an endless supply of long stick weapons from the tall reed-filled vases near the hotel lobby's elevators and north entry doors.

These fragile weapons break after just a few uses, but at least you won't run out of them. Try hurling them like spears.

Unearthing Fortune City

Fortune Park

Scenic Fortune Park, where the sun is always shining and the birds are always singing. A perfect centerpiece to fantastic Fortune City and a great place to take an afternoon stroll, see the sights, and breathe in the fresh desert air.

POINTS OF INTEREST

1. MAINTENANCE ROOM 11

Fortune Park's south maintenance room contains a bowie knife and a pair of boxing gloves, allowing you to shred through zombies with an awesomely lethal set of knife gloves.

A stick of dynamite and a hunk of meat lie on the ground just outside; combine these to form some dynameat.

Tip

For massive amounts of PP, charge into the hoard of zombies near the park's south gate, shove dynameat into a zombie's mouth and then split--the catastrophic explosion that follows is well worth the risk!

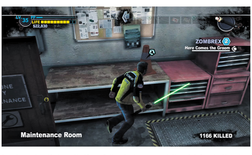

2. MAINTENANCE ROOM 12

another lawn mower rests just outside of the central park's maintenance room, along with a leaf rake. Inside there's a battery and two 2x4s.

Combine the battery with the leaf rake to form an electric rake, and rig the lawn mower and a 2x4 together to build an extremely nasty porta-mower. There's a magazine inside this maintenance room as well, Domestic, which increases the durability of furniture items.

3. MAINTENANCE ROOM 13

A can of spray paint and bis just outside of Fortune Park's north maintenance room; inside you find a fire extinguisher and a pylon. This allows you to build a head-bursting air horn (spray paint + pylon).

Combine the fire extinguisher with one of the numerous water guns found in watery sections of the park to form a snowball cannon.

4. HAVING A BALL

A strange-looking wirefrome ball stands on a platform just south of maintenance room 13. Use the nearby pedestal to play a unique minigame called motion madness, in which Chuck enters the ball and rolls around in place like a human hamster.

Follow the onscreen commands to roll the ball in various directions until the game ends and Chuck exits the ball a winner, pocketing some easy PP.

Beat the Motion Madness Minigame three times for a special treat: Chuck not only earns a boatload of PP, but also gets to remain inside the ball afterward, where he's able to roll all around the park!

Let the good times roll as you smash through zombies for as long as the ball lasts.

5. GRASS STASHES

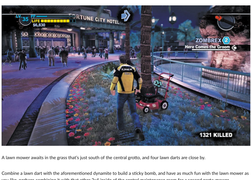

Many useful items are stashed in the grassy patches around Fortune Park.

Examine the grassy ledge along the south wall to discover a football and two grenades -- use these to make a ball mary that can score you big points around here.

Two fenced-of grassy areas lie to the south of the central grotto, there's a stick of dynamite hidden in the one to the east, and two grenades are found in the one to the west.

You'll also find a deadly chain saw and a useful 4x4 near the west patch of fenced-of grass.

A lawn mower awaits in the grass that's just south of the central grotto, and four lawn darts are close by.

Combine a lawn dart with the aforementioned dynamite to build a sticky bomb, and have as much fun with the lawn mower as you like, perhaps combining it with that other 2x4 inside of the central maintenance room for a second porta-mower.

Finally, explore the grass to the north of the grotto to locate another football, along with a rare leaf blower.

Use the football to form another hail mary; the leaf blower can be combined with any parasol to construct a high-powered parableewe.

Unearthing Fortune City

Slot Ranch Casino

Slots as far as the eye can see — you're sure to strike it rich in the Slot Ranch Casino! And this month only, Slot Ranch Casino hosts the first stop of famed pop star Bibi Iowa's epic comeback tour!

POINTS OF INTEREST

1. MAINTENANCE ROOM 4

Slot Ranch Casino has just one maintenance room, but it's a good one. It's located in the rear of the performance stage, and there you'll find a flashlight and gems inside—the makings for a limb-severing laser sword.

There's a container of motor oil inside the room as well; merge this with the training sword found in the backstage area to assemble some burning infernal arms.

Find another flashlight on the ground to the right of the stage, near the cashier/vault area, and combine this with more gems found on the tables around the stage to build a second laser sword.

Swipe another pile of gems of one of the tables and combine these with the leaf blower in the backstage area to craft a long-range gem blower. You can build all four of these lethal combo weapons each time you visit Slot Ranch Casino.

2. BACKSTAGE ZOMBREX

Climb the boxes near the giant dice in the backstage area. This gives you the elevation you need to leap over and score a hidden dose of Zombrex! Now you don't have to shell out $25,000 slams at a pawnshop to keep Kaley from turning.

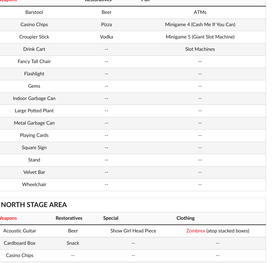

3. SUPER SLOTS

You've played plenty of slots around Fortune City, but none can compare to the mega slot machine found along Slot Ranch Casino's northeast wall.

Press those big ol' buttons to feed the machine and see if it's your lucky day. Like other slot machines, the price to play is low, but so are the odds of winning.

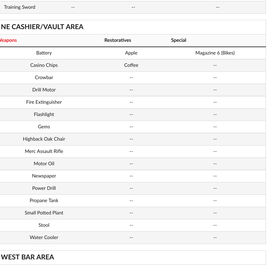

4. CASHING IN

Smash up the ATMs outside of the cashier/vault area to pocket some fast funds.

Once you advance to Case 3-2, you'll be able to enter this area to find several interesting items, including a deadly assault rifle, along with a drill motor and pitchfork that can be combined at the nearby maintenance room to create a powerful auger.

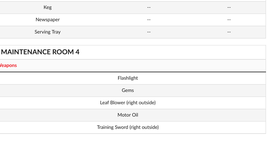

5. DRINKS FOR DAYS

Every casino benefits from a well-stocked bar, and at slot ranch Casino, you'll find a functional blender behind the counter. Mix up a few juice drinks to give Chuck plenty of healing, along with some special temporary benefits.

See the "Appendix" chapter for a complete list of juice drinks and their effects.

6. CASH ME IF YOU CAN

Grab some fast bucks at the Cash Me If You Can game that stands at the southeast side of the casino floor.

Pay the small fee to enter the booth, then mash that onscreen button to snatch up all the moola you can carry before time expires. The faster you are at button mashing, the more you'll benefit from Cash Me if you Can.

Unearthing Fortune City

South Plaza

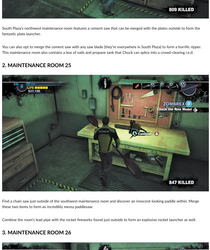

Note

South Plaza may be unfinished, but it boasts four fully functional maintenance rooms.

With so many tools and pieces of hardware lying around, including Zerks, chain saws, sledge hammers, saw blades, boxes of nails, buckets, cement saws, and much more - this is a fantastic place to visit when you really want to put a hurting on those ugly undead.

POINTS OF INTEREST

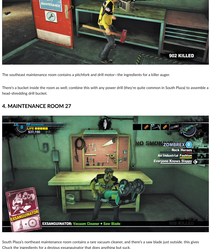

1. MAINTENANCE ROOM 24

South Plaza's northwest maintenance room features a cement saw that can be merged with the plates outside to form the fantastic plate launcher.

You can also opt to merge the cement saw with any saw blade (they're everywhere in South Plaza) to form a horrific zipper. This maintenance room also contains a box of nails and propane tank that Chuck can ignite into a crowd-clearing Lit Box.

2. MAINTENANCE ROOM 25

Find a chain saw just outside of the southwest maintenance room and discover an innocent-looking paddle within. Merge these two items to form an incredibly nasty paddlesaw.

Combine the room's lead pipe with the rocket fireworks found just outside to form an explosive rocket launcher as well.

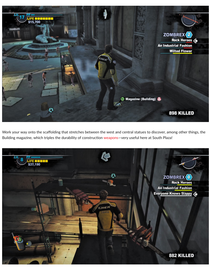

3. MAINTENANCE ROOM 26

The southeast maintenance room contains a pitchfork and drill motor—the ingredients for a killer auger.

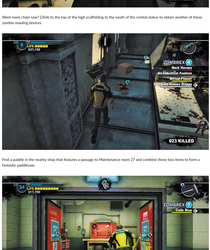

There's a bucket inside the room as well; combine this with any power drill (they're quite common in South Plaza) to assemble a head-shredding drill bucket.

4. MAINTENANCE ROOM 27

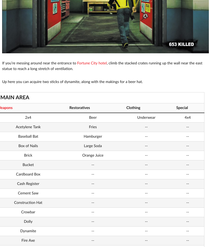

South Plaza's northwest maintenance room contains a rare vacuum cleaner, and there's a saw blade just outside. this gives Chuck the ingredients for a devious encouragement that does anything but suck.

5. SCAFFOLDING MASTER

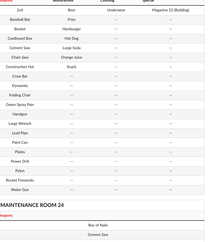

Chuck can leap up and climb onto the many elevated stretches of scaffolding that run throughout south Plaza. By climbing the scaffolding near the unfinished Ultimate Playhouse store, you can locate a handy chain saw.

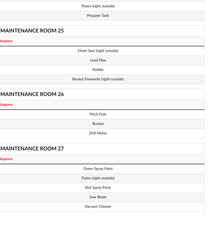

Scale the scaffolding along South Plaza's far west wall to access a chain saw, handgun, orange juice, and a baseball bat that can be merged with the many boxes of nails around south Plaza to make a lethal spiked bat.

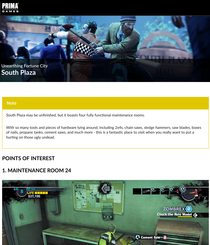

Work your way onto the scaffolding that stretches between the west and central statues to discover, among other things, the Building magazine, which triples the durability of constructible weapons—very useful here at South Plaza!

Want more chain saw? Climb to the top of the high scaffolding to the south of the central statue to obtain another of these zombie-mauling devices.

Find a paddle in the nearby shop that features a passage to Maintenance room 27 and combine these two items to form a fantastic paddlesaw.

If you're messing around near the entrance to Fortune City hotel, climb the stacked crates running up the wall near the east statue to reach a long stretch of ventilation.

Up here you can acquire two sticks of dynamite, along with the makings for a beer hat.

POINTS OF INTEREST

1. MAINTENANCE ROOMS 29-35

The Underground's most interesting items are kept in the warehouses near its many maintenance rooms.

Refer to the poster map and tables to see what sorts of lethal devices you can construct at each of these secluded sites.

2. TUNNEL TRAVEL

Numerous Rails are found in the Underground, and we've labeled their locations on the poster map for your convenience.

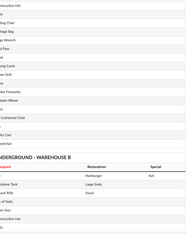

Use these vehicles to navigate this horrible place with less stress, but don't expect them to last long as you drive through the endless army of undead.

The Rails are all well and good, but if you truly want to ride in style, hop onto the chopper that's parked at Warehouse E.

You don't need the chopper key that's sold at Palisades Mall's pawnshop to ride this bad boy around!

3. MISPLACED MEDS

Search the elevated rise near Maintenance Room 32 to discover a dose of Zombrex just lying out there in the open. Someone's careless loss becomes Kelsey's gain.

Terror is Reality

Terror is Reality

Welcome to Fortune City, where the dead are made to entertain the living. You are Chuck Greene, ex-Motocross wild man and father to darling little Katey.

Chuck makes his bucks slaughtering zombies in america's hottest and most dangerous hit reality show: "Terror is Reality." Why risk it all on such gruesome folly?

Because poor young Katey Greene is infected, and only the miracle pharmaceutical Zombrex — an extremely pricey prescription — can keep Chuck's beloved little girl from turning.

It's not long before you're thrown into the action. seated atop a modified motorbike, an arena flled with the walking dead stretches on before you. Simply hit the gas and start mowing down hapless zombies, aiming to slaughter as many as possible.

Note

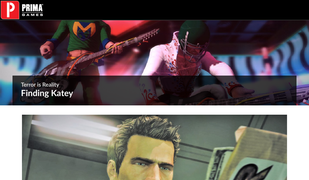

Don't bother ramming into your rivals; they can't be harmed.

Each zombie you kill is worth points, and your score is shown at the upper-left corner. Aim for groups of zombies with large pink spheres attached to their heads—these explode when killed, giving you huge bonuses!

Strive to get the top score - the reward is worth the effort!

Terror is Reality
Finding Katey

If you finished the game show in first place, Chuck earns $10,000 and 5,000 PP (Prestige Points) a nice way to kick things off here at Fortune City. After pocketing his reward money, Chuck sets off to find his daughter, Katey. She's waiting in one of the arena's green rooms.

Note

Money is used to purchase useful items at Fortune City. Collect Prestige Points (PP) by killing enemies and completing various tasks. Chuck "levels up" when he acquires enough PP, becoming more powerful and improving his odds of survival.

At this point, the "Guide Arrow" tutorial screen is shown. Pause the game and select "Tutorials" to review helpful messages such as this again at any time.

PIT STOP

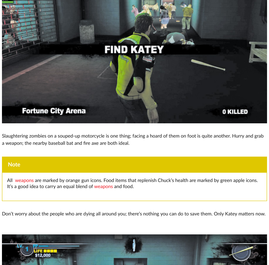

Follow the guide arrow out of the locker room and toward the green room. You pass a restroom along the way, which is clearly marked by a glowing, green sign.

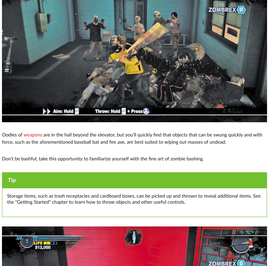

Chuck is able to save his progress at restrooms. Pop into this one, approach any toilet or stall and press the Interact button to bring up the Save menu. Save your game to mark your progress.

You only get three save slots, so make them count! We recommend you cycle through the slots when saving so you can always go back a bit incase you miss something.

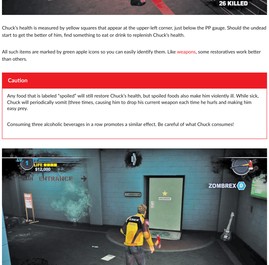

Continue following the guide arrow after visiting the restroom. Speak to Amber in the hall if you feel like being berated by a woman with an attitude. Proceed to the nearby elevator afterward—the green rooms are just upstairs.

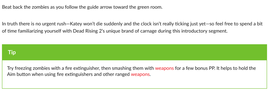

Chuck encounters Amber's equally hot and spicy twin sister, Crystal, as she steps off the elevator. After suffering a few more insults, Chuck boards the lift headed for the green rooms.

HELL BREAKS LOSE

While riding the elevator, a tremendous explosion rocks the arena. Prying open the elevator doors, Chuck sees a terrifying sight: zombies!

Slaughtering zombies on a souped-up motorcycle is one thing; facing a hoard of them on foot is quite another. Hurry and grab a weapon; the nearby baseball bat and fire axe are both ideal.

Note

All weapons are marked by orange gun icons. Food items that replenish Chuck's health are marked by green apple icons. It's a good idea to carry an equal blend of weapons and food.

Don't worry about the people who are dying all around you; there's nothing you can do to save them. Only Katey matters now.

Oodles of weapons are in the hall beyond the elevator, but you'll quickly find that objects that can be swung quickly and with force, such as the aforementioned baseball bat and fire axe, are best suited to wiping out masses of undead.

Don't be bashful; take this opportunity to familiarize yourself with the fine art of zombie bashing.

Tip

Storage items, such as trash receptacles and cardboard boxes, can be picked up and thrown to reveal additional items. See the "Getting Started" chapter to learn how to throw objects and other useful controls.

Chuck's health is measured by yellow squares that appear at the upper-left corner, just below the PP gauge. Should the undead start to get the better of him, find something to eat or drink to replenish Chuck's health.

All such items are marked by green apple icons so you can easily identify them. Like weapons, some restoratives work better than others.

Caution

Any food that is labeled "spoiled" will still restore Chuck's health, but spoiled foods also make him violently ill. While sick, Chuck will periodically vomit (three times, causing him to drop his current weapon each time he hurls and making him easy prey.

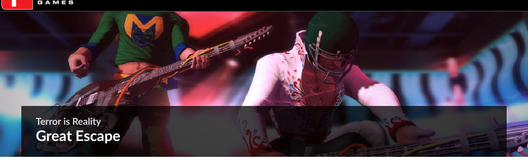

Consuming three alcoholic beverages in a row promotes a similar effect. Be careful of what Chuck consumes!

Beat back the zombies as you follow the guide arrow toward the green room.

In truth there is no urgent rush—Katey won't die suddenly and the clock isn't really ticking just yet—so feel free to spend a bit of time familiarizing yourself with Dead Rising 2's unique brand of carnage during this introductory segment.

Tip

Try freezing zombies with a fire extinguisher, then smashing them with weapons for a few bonus PP. It helps to hold the Aim button when using fire extinguishers and other ranged weapons.

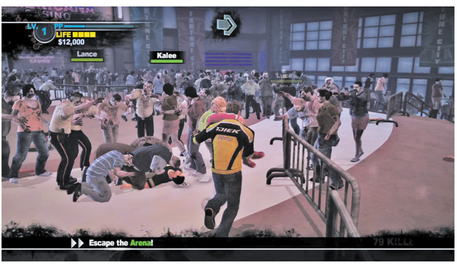

Terror is Reality
Great Escape

Chuck gets a scare when he enters the green room, but finds Katey safe and sound—the clever child was hiding in a wardrobe. Our hero grabs his little girl and prepares to make a life-or-death run through the teeming undead hoard.

Chuck is only able to kick zombies out of his way while carrying Katey, so fighting the undead isn't a sound option anymore. Focus on getting past the cretins while dashing for the arena lobby instead, following the trusty guide arrow.

Unfortunate souls are becoming zombie food all around, but there's still nothing you can do to save them. Just keep moving through gaps in the sea of flesh eating ghouls as you make for the doors that lead to Fortune City's Platinum Strip.

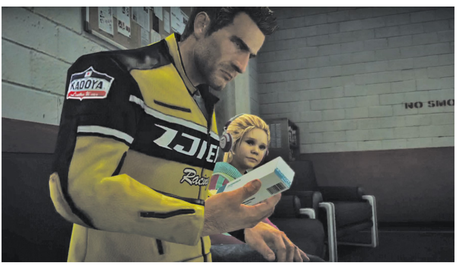

Bursting out to fresh air, Chuck sees the once-peaceful Fortune City has been transformed into a terrible mess of screams, fire, and the walking dead. Our hero deftly makes his way through the chaos and into the city's emergency shelter just before its outer doors slam shut.

SAFE AT LAST

Chuck, Katey, and a handful of survivors are all that manage to reach the city's bunker, known more properly as the Safe House. On the other side of the massive security door, Chuck has a brief chat with Raymond Sullivan, a military reserve officer.

Sullivan notices Katey's scar from when she was bitten during a previous zombie outbreak, but Chuck assures the man that he's got plenty of Zombrex — the breakthrough drug that's capable of preventing the infected from turning into zombies, provided that it's administered once every 24 hours without fail.

As it turns out, Chuck was lying—he doesn't have any Zombrex at all, just an empty carton. Katey will need some of the drug soon, and Chuck knows he'll have to brave the horrors of Fortune City to find it.

Another survivor, Stacey Forsythe, tells Chuck that he can find some Zombrex in a pharmacy in the mall known as Royal Flush Plaza—all Chuck needs to do is find a way out of the Safe House.

Stacey also hands Chuck a transceiver so she can stay in contact as she monitors Fortune City from the Safe House's security room. She promises not to tell Sullivan about Chuck and Katey's plight.

It's been a long time since Chuck has seen such a friendly face, but there isn't time to get better acquainted.

Terror is Reality

Find Katey Zombrex

Take a peek at your watch to see that you've only a handful of hours before Katey needs her next Zombrex injection. You've got to find a way out of the Safe House, and fast.

Note

Time is a major factor from now on. The military will arrive in just three days to rescue everyone inside the Safe House, and time steadily passes whenever the game is not paused. (Pause the game by looking at the map or any of the Pause menu screens.)

Speed is key if you want to see and do everything that Fortune City has to offer, but don't worry; just follow this walk through carefully and you won't miss a thing.

Tip

Two heroes are better than one! A co-op buddy can jump into your game at any point, so make things easier on yourself and play with a friend. See the "Brain Food" chapter for more on co-op play

Terror is Reality

Leaving the Safe House

Grab the milk and orange juice in the security room; these are powerful curatives. Swipe a fresh fire axe from the hall outside as well.

Note

At present, the Safe House is full of potent restoratives like milk and orange juice.

Supplies dwindle as hungry survivors chow down, however, and you'll soon need to forage for food primarily outside the Safe House. We'll show you the ideal places to gather supplies.

Before moving on, allow Chuck a moment to relieve himself in the Safe House's restroom, which is right outside the security room (and also marked on your map). Save your progress and then return to the hallway.

Thanks to the guide arrow, finding the way out of the Safe House couldn't be easier. Simply follow the tool as it leads you down the stairs near the restroom. There's a ventilation shaft in the lower area; interact with its metal door to make Chuck crawl through.

Terror is Reality

Royal Flush Plaza

The vent leads to Royal Flush Plaza's north west maintenance area. This is the only place where Chuck can enter the Safe House, and it's now marked on your map. Check your map to view the location of Roy's Mart within Royal Flush Plaza—it's marked by a red icon.

That's where you need to go, and your guide arrow will lead you there. Notice that the names of the stores appear as you move your cursor across the map. Handy!

Tip

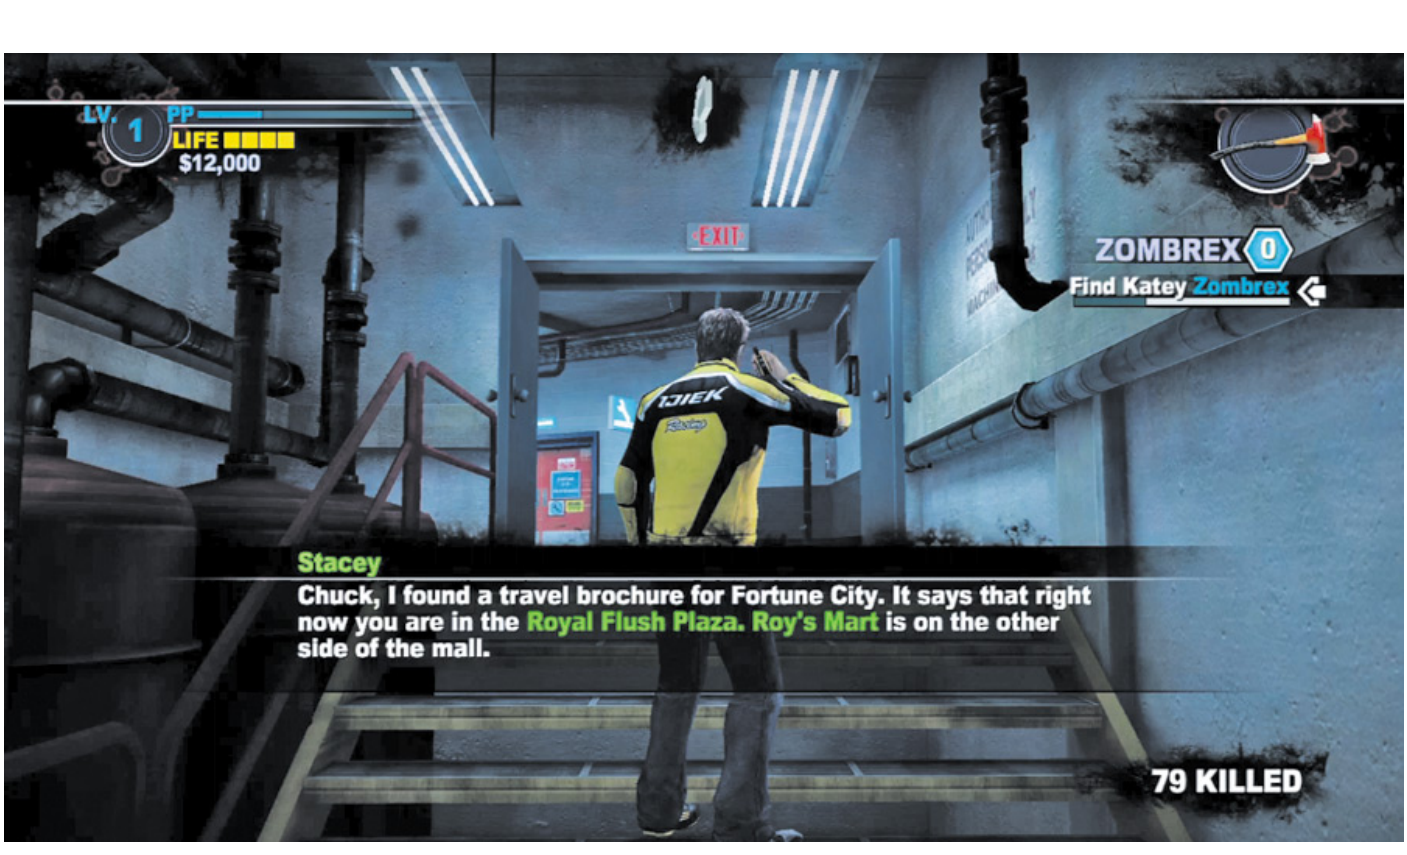

When you've multiple active tasks, you can tune the guide arrow to any mission through the map screen.

You can also set the guide arrow while looking at your watch, but beware: The game does not pause while you're eying Chuck's timepiece, and zombies will assault him if you're not careful!

Pick up the baseball bat near the first set of stairs you encounter in the maintenance area.

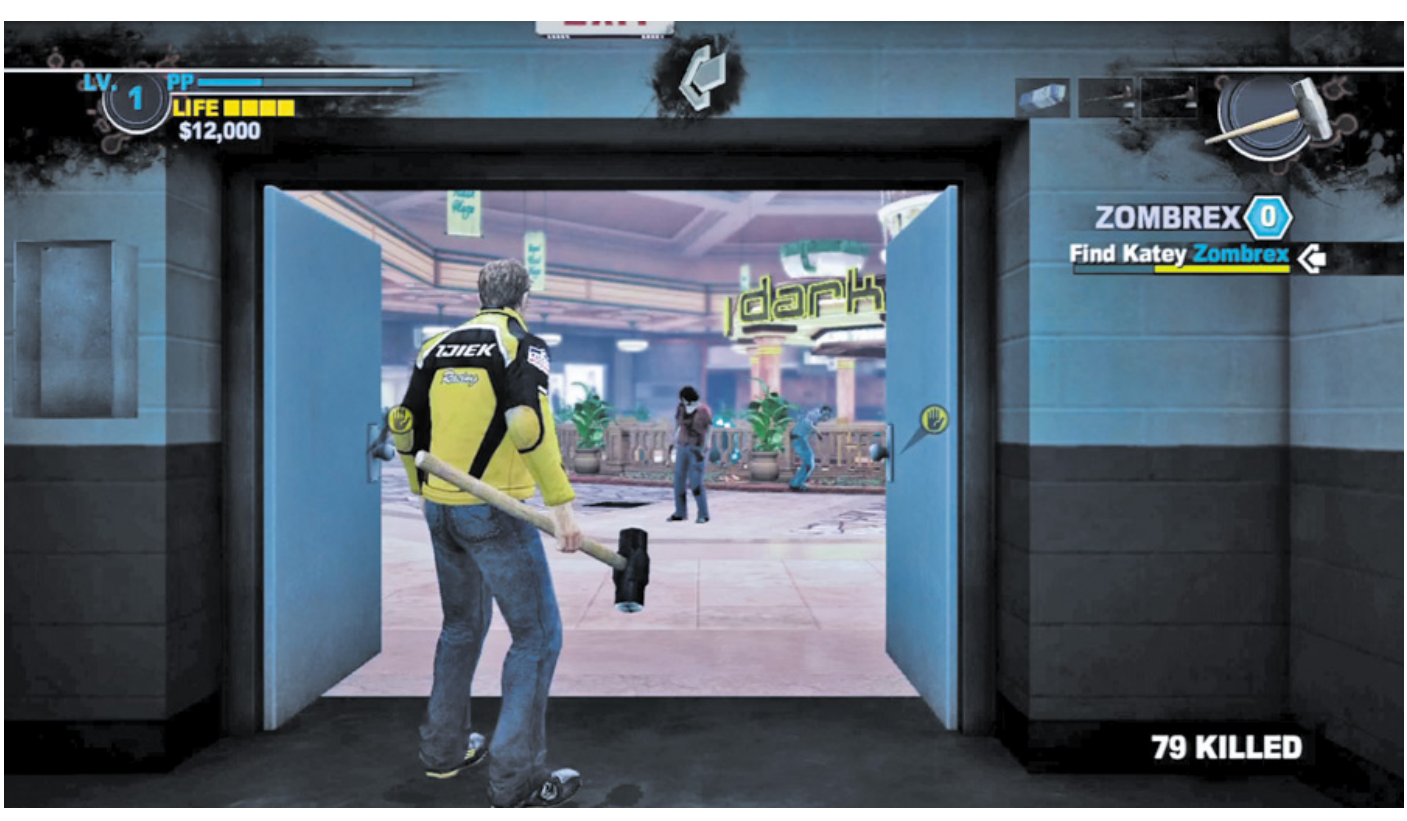

You should now have a fire axe, baseball bat, milk, and orange juice—a healthy combination for some zombie killin'. The sledgehammer you discover farther down the hall is a sound choice as well.

It's not long before Stacey tests out the transceiver she gave to Chuck. Answer her call by pressing the button shown onscreen.She'll remind you that the Zombrex should be found inside Roy's Mart. You just have to make it there and back in one piece.

Note

Ignore the door marked "maintenance" as you trot down the hall. You can't use these special rooms just yet.

Open the double doors at the end of the hall to enter the mall. Beware: Legions of undead lurk just ahead!

Don't waste much time on the zombies in the mall. Kill any that get in your way, but by and large, simply try to avoid them by weaving through, looking for gaps in the throng.

Ripping apart zombies is certainly fun but you'll have plenty of chances to do lots of that as you explore Fortune City. Remember, time is your biggest enemy in Dead Rising 2, and you can't waste a second if you want to complete all of those missions.

Terror is Reality

Booting Looters

Upon entering Roy's Mart, Chuck is surprised to find the place being robbed by looters. A hapless woman hides behind the counter, terrified. Time to play the hero!

Looters are faster than zombies, and they attack with actual weapons, making them a bit more dangerous.

They're no match for Chuck, however, so waste no time wiping out this trio of toughs with fast attack combos. Don't relent until all three looters have been beaten to a timely demise.

Tip

If Chuck suffers serious damage, quickly flee and chug some milk or orange juice. You can find more food in the store if you run out.

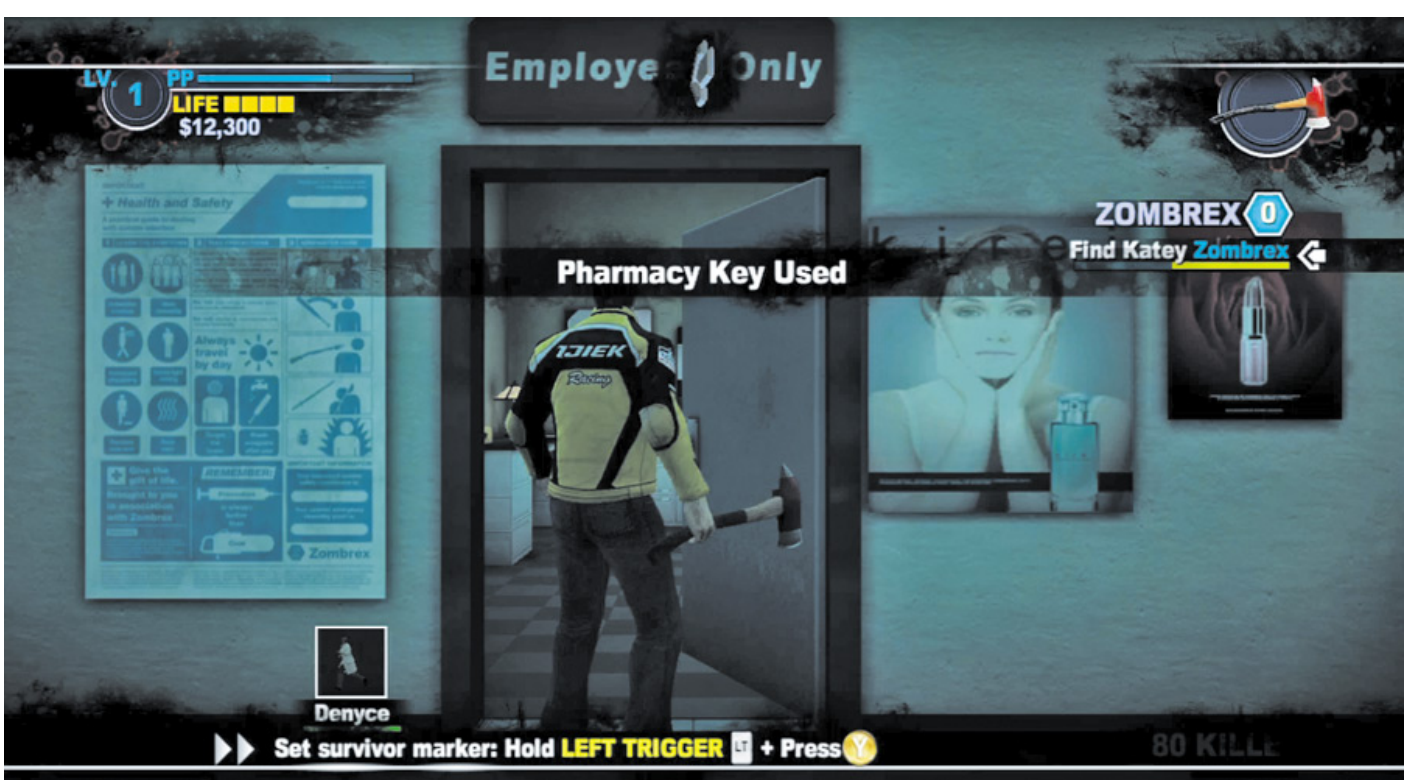

After the bloodbath, Chuck grabs the Pharmacy Key off of one of the looter's bodies. Jump the counter to speak with Denyce, the store's poor, terrified employee.

Chuck assures the woman that she'll be safe at the Safe House; keep speaking with her until she agrees to follow him.

Tip

Escorting survivors back to the Safe House is a great way to earn PP in Dead Rising 2. Chuck scores significant PP whenever he convinces a survivor to join him, and gets even more PP when he successfully escorts survivors back to the Safe House.

Nice work, but you've still got to find that Zombrex for Katey. Enter the door marked "employees only." Chuck will use the Pharmacy Key to reach the back room of Roy's Mart, where the Zombrex is kept.

The Zombrex sits on a counter next to some orange juice and coffee creamer (an equally potent curative). Grab the Zombrex, along with anything else you might need from the store, before returning to the Safe House.

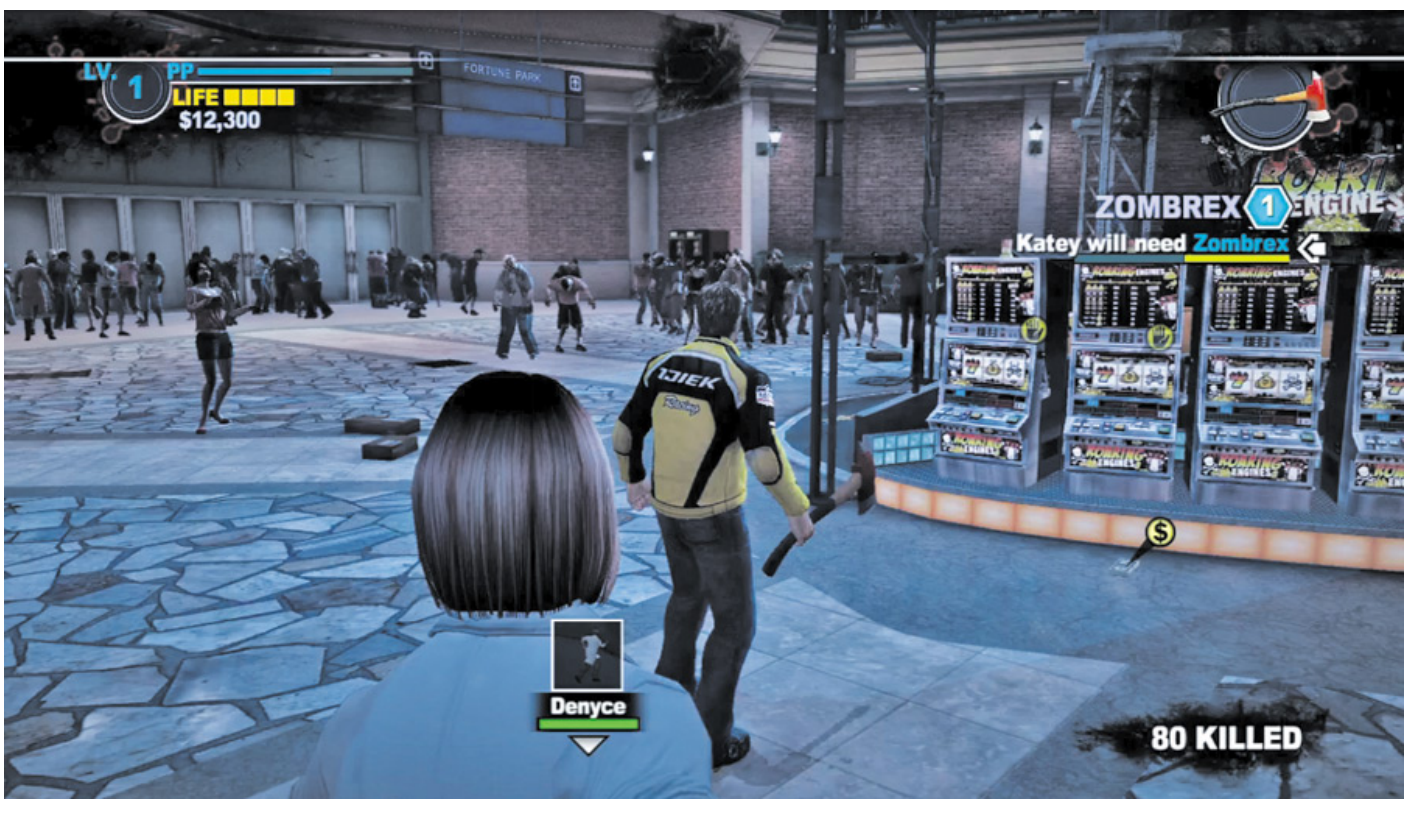

Caution

All melee weapons deteriorate and shatter after prolonged use. When a weapon's icon begins to blink red in your inventory, it's time to look for a new mauling device.

Terror is Reality

Escort Mission

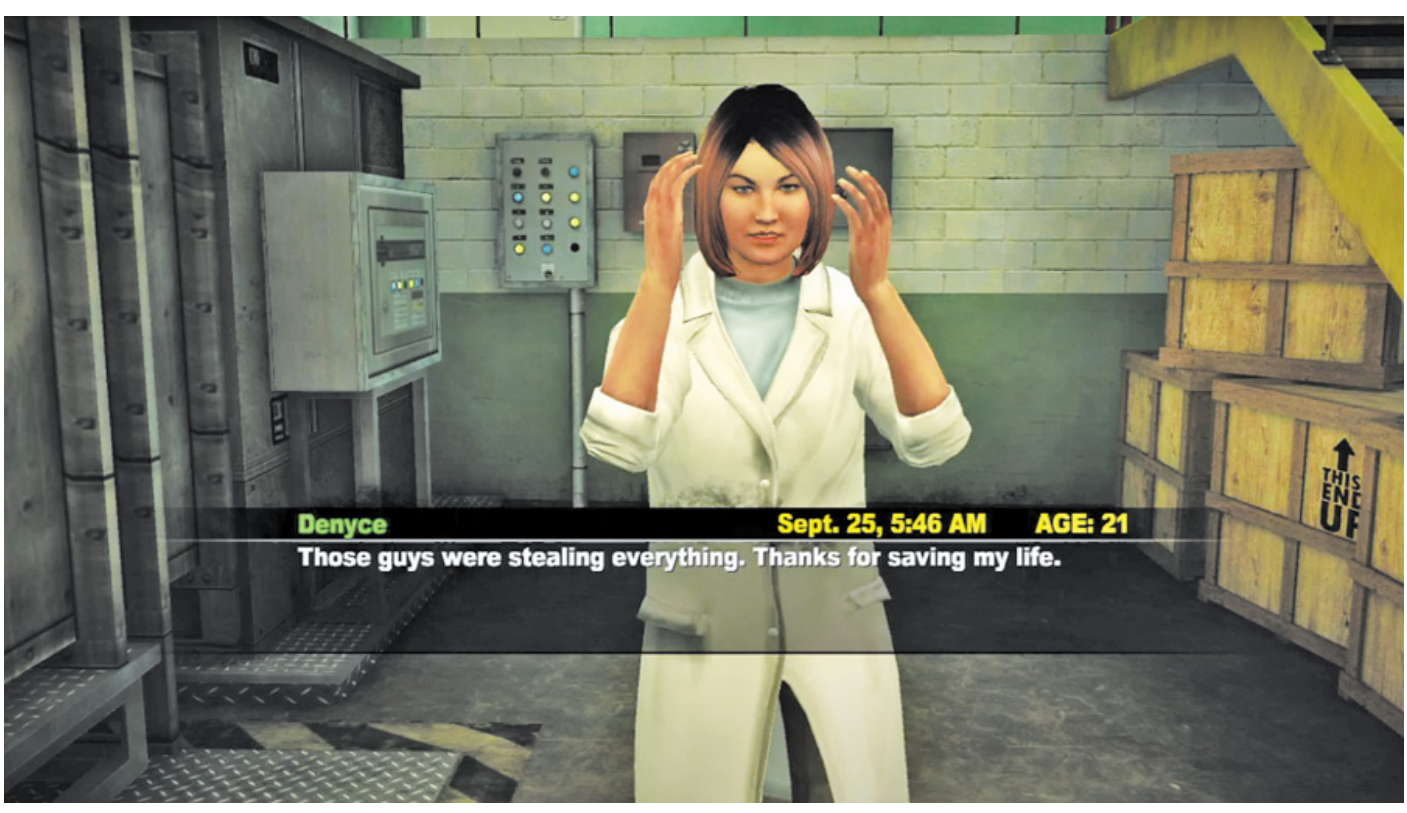

Denyce will follow Chuck anywhere he leads, and she's smart enough to avoid zombies on her own. Don't worry too much about her; simply retrace your steps back to the Safe House, sidestepping the undead as you go.

If Denyce screams out in agony, check to see if she's been grabbed by a zombie and do your best to free her without harming the poor woman in the process.

Make sure Denyce is close by before entering the ventilation shaft leading back to the Safe House. If she's not nearby, she'll be left behind and suffer steady damage until Chuck goes back for her.

When you see the little green door icon above her health bar or" out of view" portrait, you know that she's close enough to follow Chuck through.

Denyce is happy to at last be safe from the clutches of looters and the walking dead. You receive additional PP for bringing her back to the Safe House—enough to advance Chuck to level 2!

Each time Chuck levels up, he receives random rewards that can include stat bonuses, new skills, and more.

Leveling Chuck up is the secret to survival in Fortune City—see the "Brain Food" chapter for more on this matter.

Sullivan isn't thrilled that Chuck found a way out of the Safe House, but he can't argue with the man's need to save his daughter and other survivors of the outbreak. Run upstairs and save at the restroom after Chuck has his chat with Sullivan.

Terror is Reality

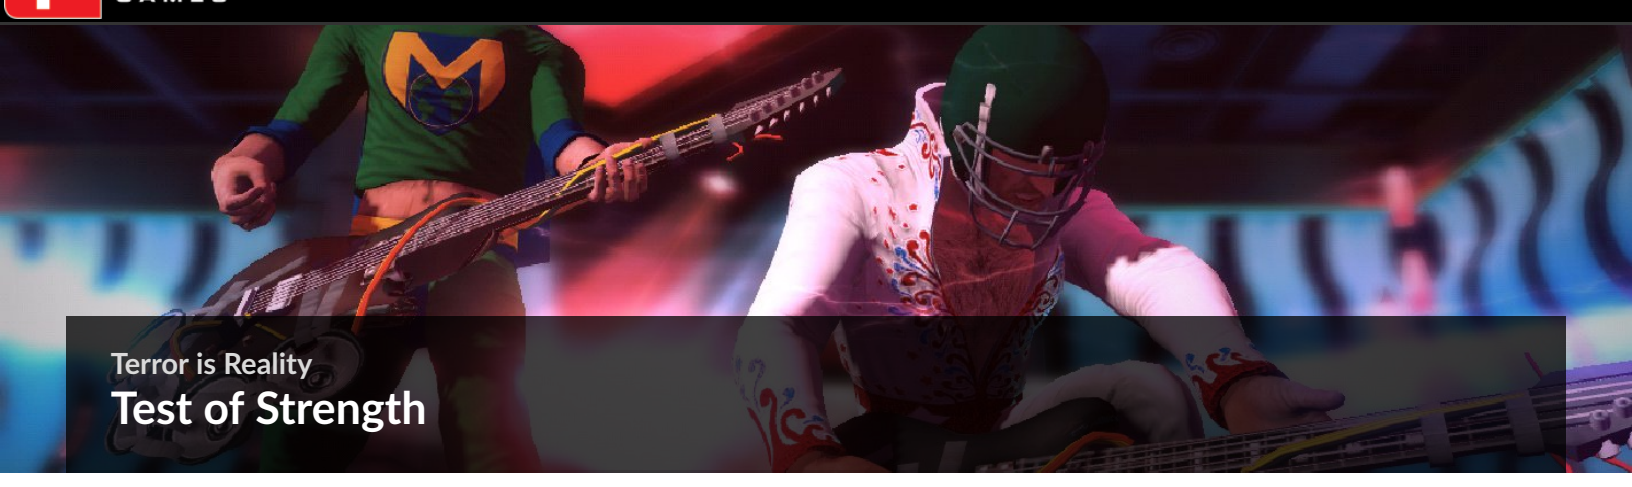

Great Explorations

Katey cannot be given a Zombrex shot until after 7:00 AM—it's vital that the drug isn't administered too early. If you've made good time obtaining the drug, you now have several hours of game time to explore Fortune City, leveling Chuck up inpreparation for the challenges ahead. Save your game and then venture back out—and don't worry, Stacey will call to remind you about Katey when the clock strikes 7.

Tip

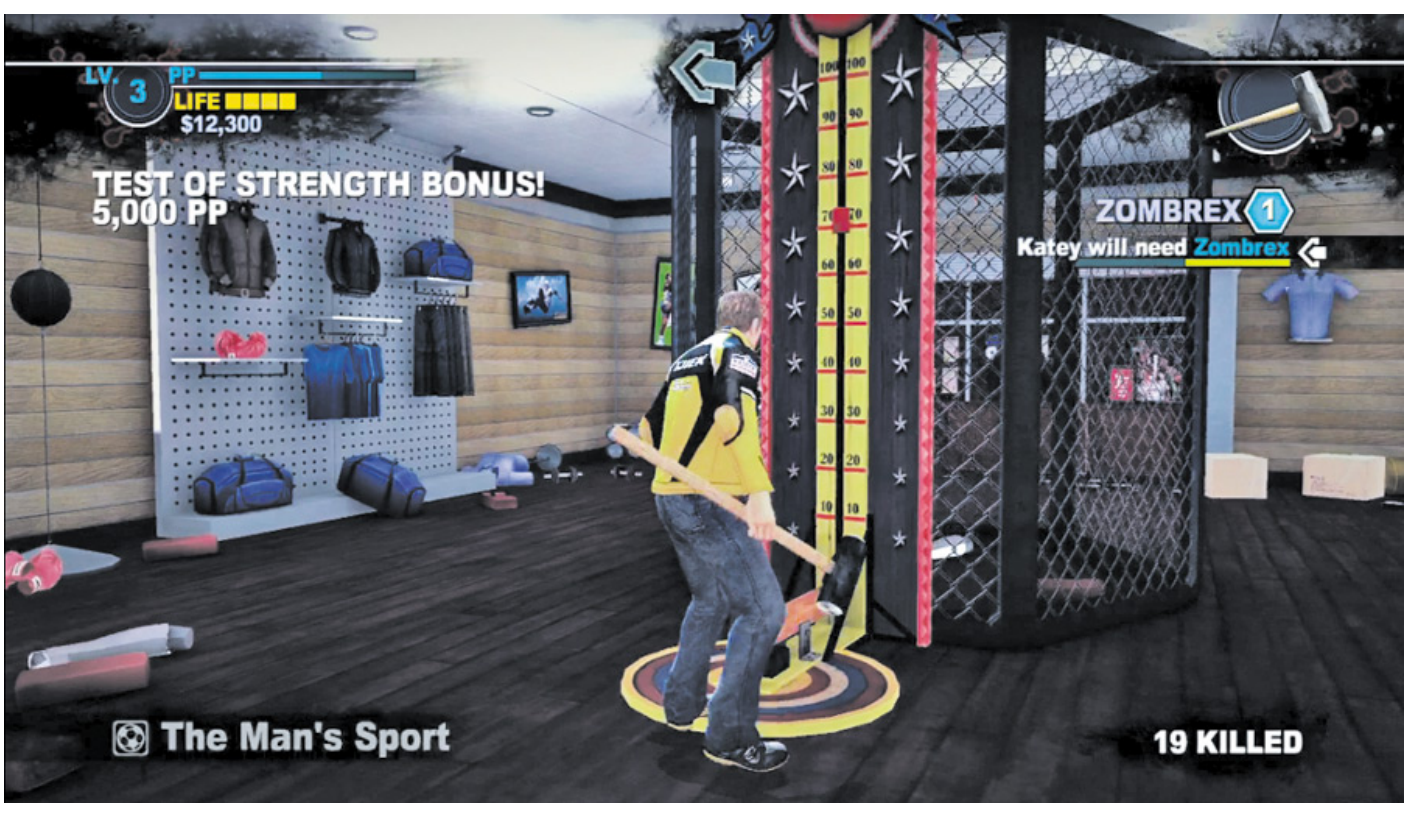

If this isn't your first time through the game and you're playing with a leveled-up Chuck, consider visiting Yucatan Casino at this point to face off against Ted and his beloved tiger, Snowflake. He's the only psycho you can battle at this point, and defeating him right now is an advantage. Ted and Snowflake are a bit too much to handle if this is your first run through the game, however.

Read on to discover some of the fun and profitable things to try out while you wait for the 7 o'clock hour. Don't worry; you won't need to stray too far from the Safe House.

Terror is Reality

Test of Strength

On your way out of the Safe House, grab the sledgehammer from Royal Flush Plaza's northwest maintenance hall and then enter the nearby store called The Man's Sport. Stand before the central display and then hold the Attack button to perform the sledgehammer's heavy attack.

This causes Chuck to slam the weapon straight downward onto the pressure plate, rocketing a weight up to ring the bell above. Completing this little test of strength nets Chuck 5,000 PP.

1. READ ALL ABOUT IT

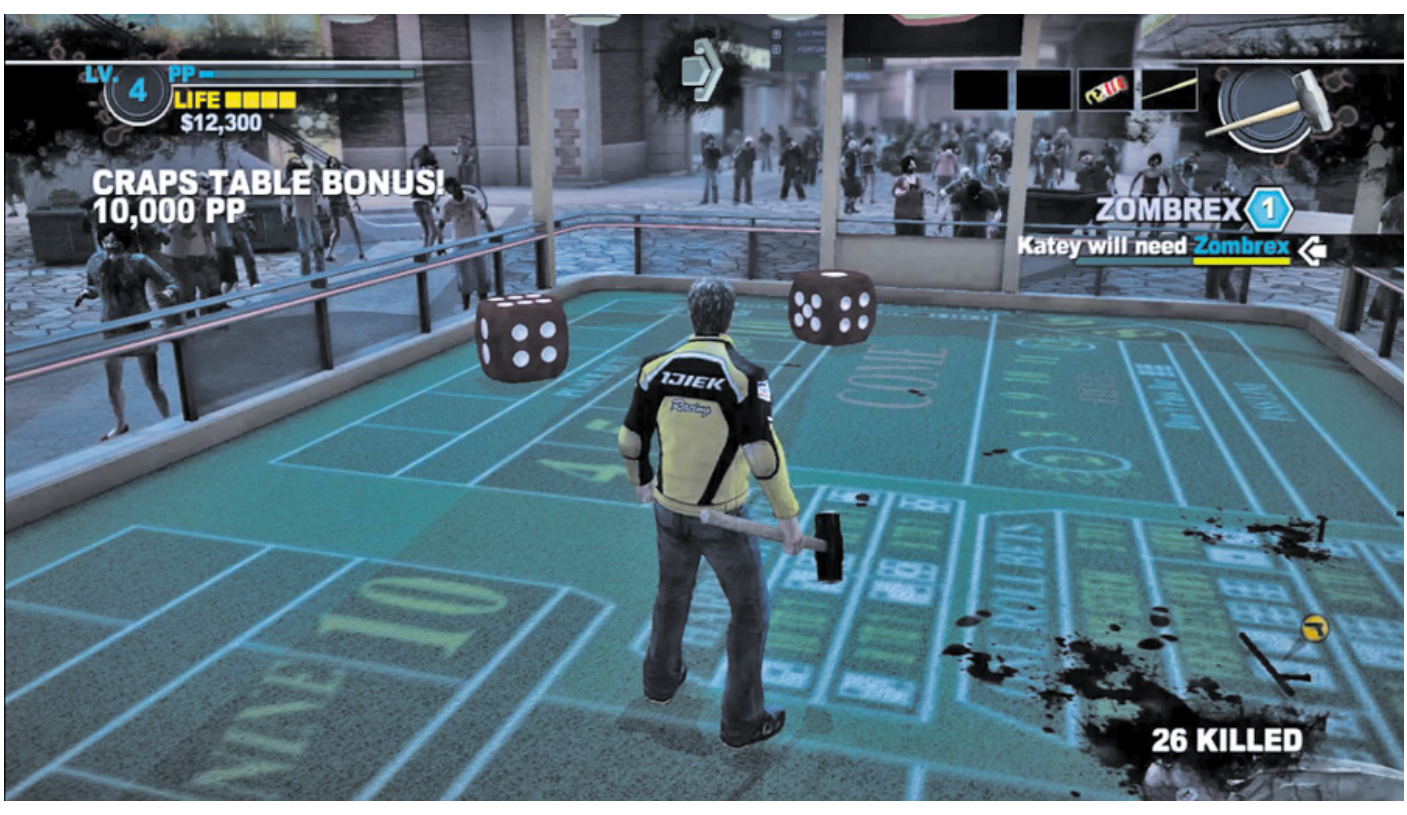

Near The Man's Sport is a small kiosk called Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow.

Chuck finds two magazines here: Health 1, which increases the healing benefit of all food items by 50 percent, and Combat 2, which gives chuck a 10 percent boost to PP earned from weapon kills.

You don't have enough health or inventory slots to make carrying such luxury items worthwhile at the moment, but remember where you saw these mags for future reference.

2. LUCKY 7

Proceed through the mall until you spy the giant, novelty Flaming Craps table. Vault the fence surrounding the table and dispatch the zombie security guards on the other side, then grab one of those giant dice.

Hold the Aim button and then press the Attack button to throw the die, rolling it along the table.

Chuck earns 10,000 PP if the dice come up totaling seven, but don't waste too much time trying for this difficult prize—you can come back to this later.

Tip

The dice show sixes at first, so you can make a seven just by rolling one of them and having it come up a one. Again, don't give it more than a few rolls—there are easier ways to score PP right now.

3. HOLE IN ONE

Enter the store called SporTrance, which isn't far from the Flaming Craps table, and pay a few thousand bucks to play the Casino Cup minigame against the back wall.

Chuck readies a club; press the indicated button to fill the swing meter, then press the same button again when the meter reaches the indicated zone. Success means a hole in one—you only need to sink one ball to walk away a winner!

If you've got the scratch, play the Casino Cup multiple times to win even bigger cash and PP prizes. The difficulty amps up each time—see if you can sink the ball when the meter vanishes to win the ultimate prize!

Note

Most minigames that require a fee to play allow you to win multiple times, just like the Casino Cup. Keep paying to play these games—as the cost increases, so do the potential rewards!

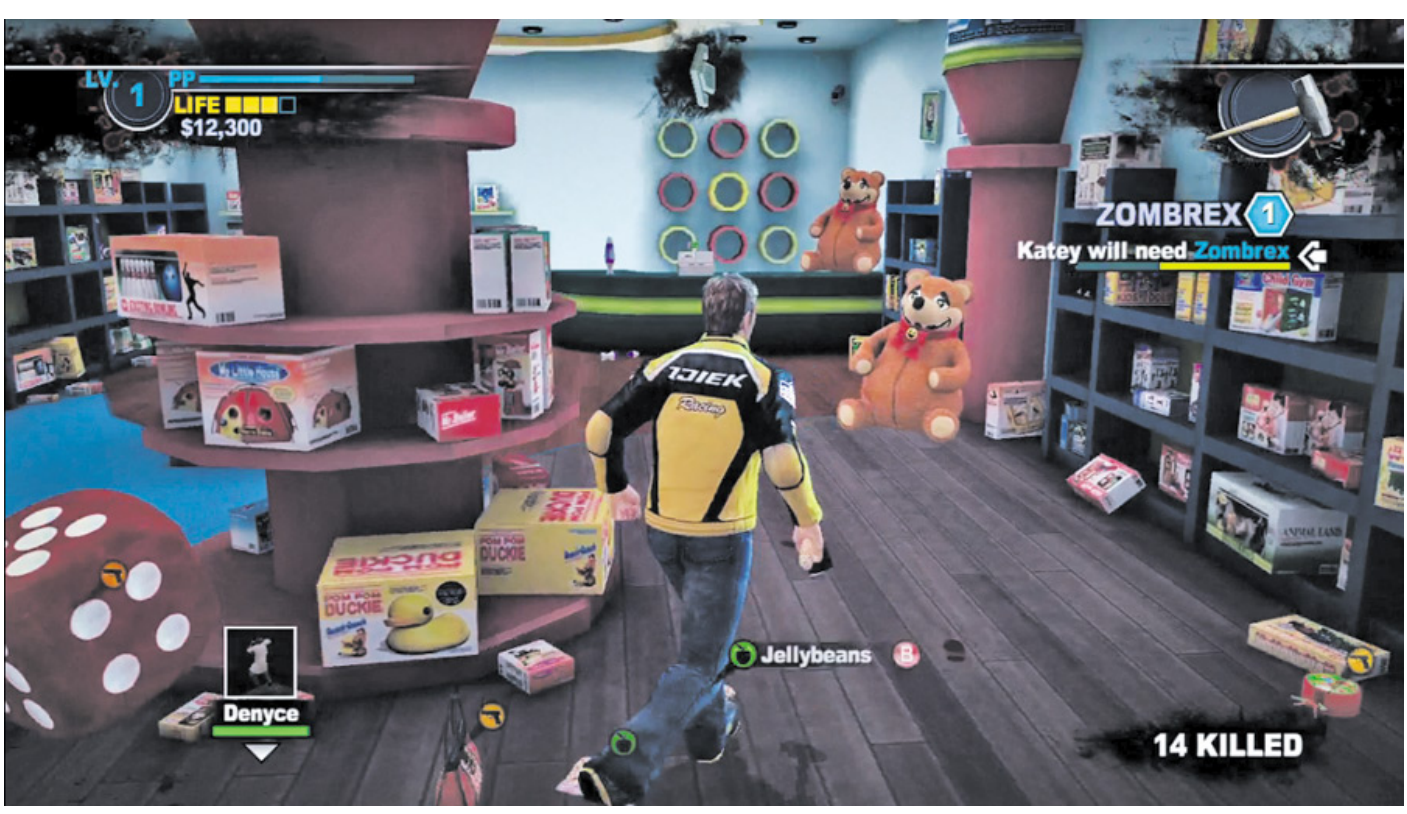

Terror is Reality

Gifts for Katey

Chuck's little girl means the world to him, and he can show her this—and score some serious PP—by giving her special gifts.

Start by entering the nearby store called Ye Olde Toy box and collecting a bag of marbles, a beach ball, and a stick pony. Ensure that Chuck is in good health and drop other items to make room for these special gifts.

Sprint towards the Safe House, making a short detour into Stylin' Toddlers to collect a giant stuffed elephant, or heading into Astonishing Illusions to grab a cute and cuddly robot bear.

Both are ideal gifts for Katey, but Chuck must carry these oversized items with both hands and cannot equip other weapons while transporting them. Don't use these giant stuffed toys as weapons, either—Katey doesn't care for damaged goods.

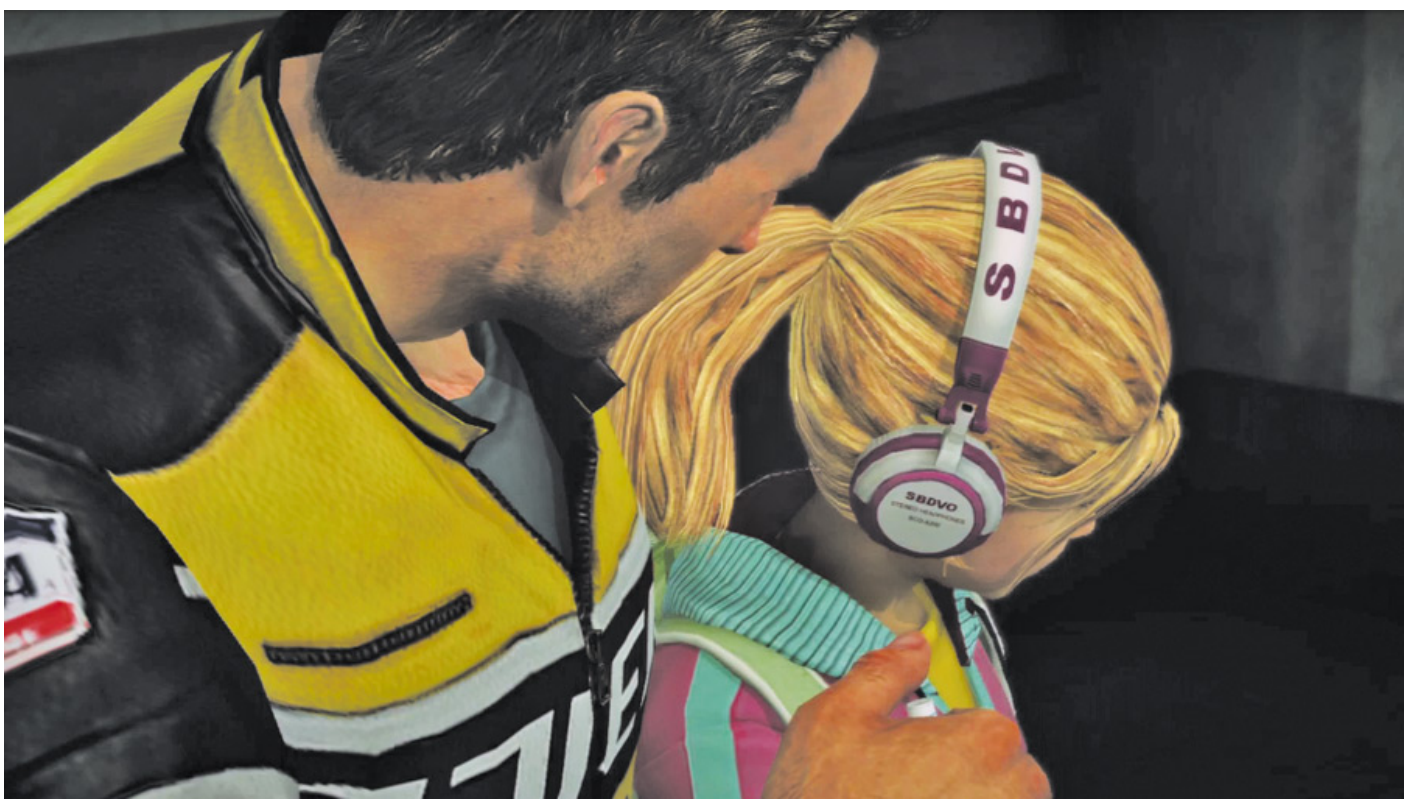

Bring your four gifts back to the Safe House and hand each one to little Katey, one at a time. Chuck cleans up the PP on this bargain, likely leveling up multiple times. If you still have time to kill, go back for the other giant stuffed animal you couldn't carry before.

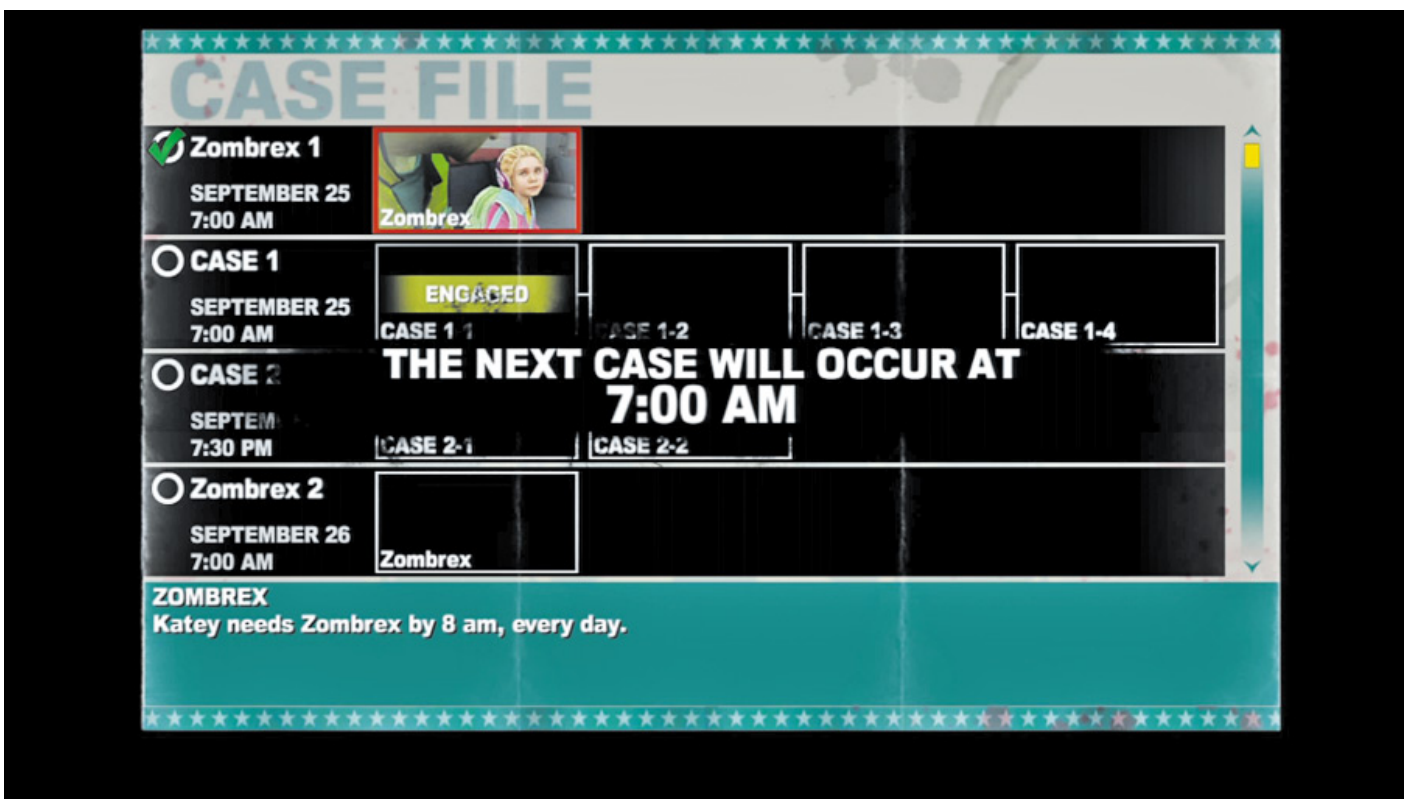

Terror is Reality

Give Katey Zombrex

Between 7:00 AM and 8:00 AM, enter the Safe House's security room and give Katey her Zombrex shot to prevent the world's cutest zombie from emerging.

In all seriousness, if you don't give Katey the shot during this brief window of time, you won't be able to enjoy the game's true ending.

Giving Katey Zombrex completes your first Case File task. You're now able to view the entire Case File from the pause menu, helping you keep tabs on upcoming events.(Stacey will regularly remind you about active cases as well.)

You're given the option to save your game after you clear a case; go ahead and do so now that you've given Katey her Zombrex for the day.

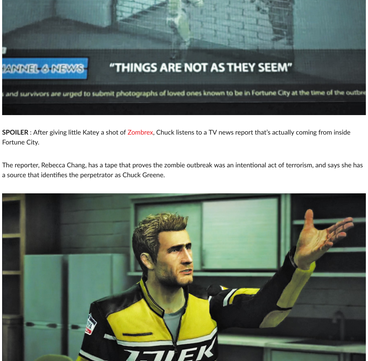

Note

If you happen to fail a Case File task, you can always go back and load a previous save to try again.

However, in Dead Rising 2, you also have the unique option to restart the game at any point while maintaining all of the PP you've accumulated for Chuck thus far. If the going gets rough, consider restarting with a leveled-up Chuck—there's absolutely no reason not to.

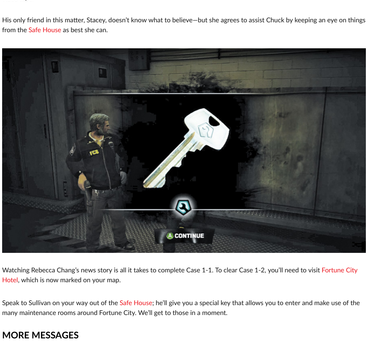

It's entirely possible to beat the game on your first play through if you're careful about amassing plenty of PP, but restarting certainly makes things easier.

Case 1-1: Big News

SPOILER : After giving little Katey a shot of Zombrex, Chuck listens to a TV news report that's actually coming from inside Fortune City.

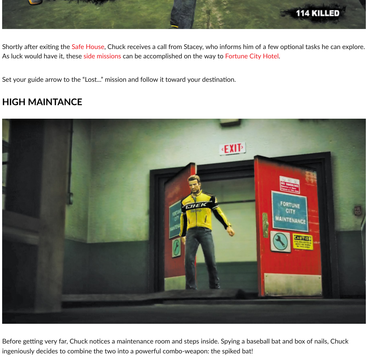

The reporter, Rebecca Chang, has a tape that proves the zombie outbreak was an intentional act of terrorism, and says she has a source that identifies the perpetrator as Chuck Greene.

SPOILER : Unable to believe his ears, Chuck becomes outraged—he knows he's innocent and must take action to clear his name. He'll have to work fast; all evidence of the true nature of this horrific tragedy will be lost when the military arrives three days from now.

Chuck's next objective: Visit Fortune City Hotel and question the reporter to learn more about her source and the doctored video tape.

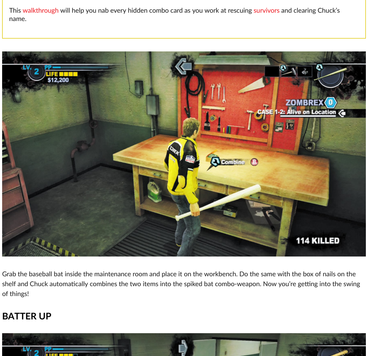

His only friend in this matter, Stacey, doesn't know what to believe—but she agrees to assist Chuck by keeping an eye on things from the Safe House as best she can.

Watching Rebecca Chang's news story is all it takes to complete Case 1-1. To clear Case 1-2, you'll need to visit Fortune City Hotel, which is now marked on your map.

Speak to Sullivan on your way out of the Safe House; he'll give you a special key that allows you to enter and make use of the many maintenance rooms around Fortune City. We'll get to those in a moment.

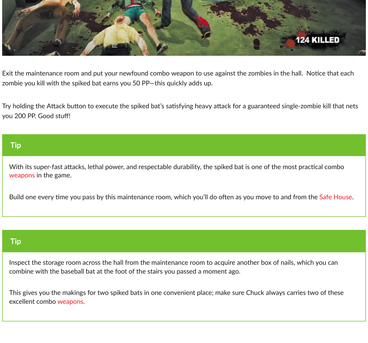

MORE MESSAGES

Shortly after exiting the Safe House, Chuck receives a call from Stacey, who informs him of a few optional tasks he can explore. As luck would have it, these side missions can be accomplished on the way to Fortune City Hotel.

Set your guide arrow to the "Lost..." mission and follow it toward your destination.

HIGH MAINTANCE

Before getting very far, Chuck notices a maintenance room and steps inside. Spying a baseball bat and box of nails, Chuck ingeniously decides to combine the two into a powerful combo-weapon: the spiked bat!

You automatically receive the spiked bat's combo card at this point.

> Note
>
> Combo cards can be acquired in a variety of ways, and each one tells you how to merge two regular weapons into a unique and lethal combo weapon.
>
> You don't need combo cards to make combo weapons, but you earn extra PP when using combo weapons whose cards you own.
>
> In addition, owning a combo card allows you to use that weapon's heavy attack (if applicable)—do this by holding down the Attack button as you would with any regular weapon.
>
> This walkthrough will help you nab every hidden combo card as you work at rescuing survivors and clearing Chuck's name.

Grab the baseball bat inside the maintenance room and place it on the workbench. Do the same with the box of nails on the shelf and Chuck automatically combines the two items into the spiked bat combo-weapon. Now you're getting into the swing of things!

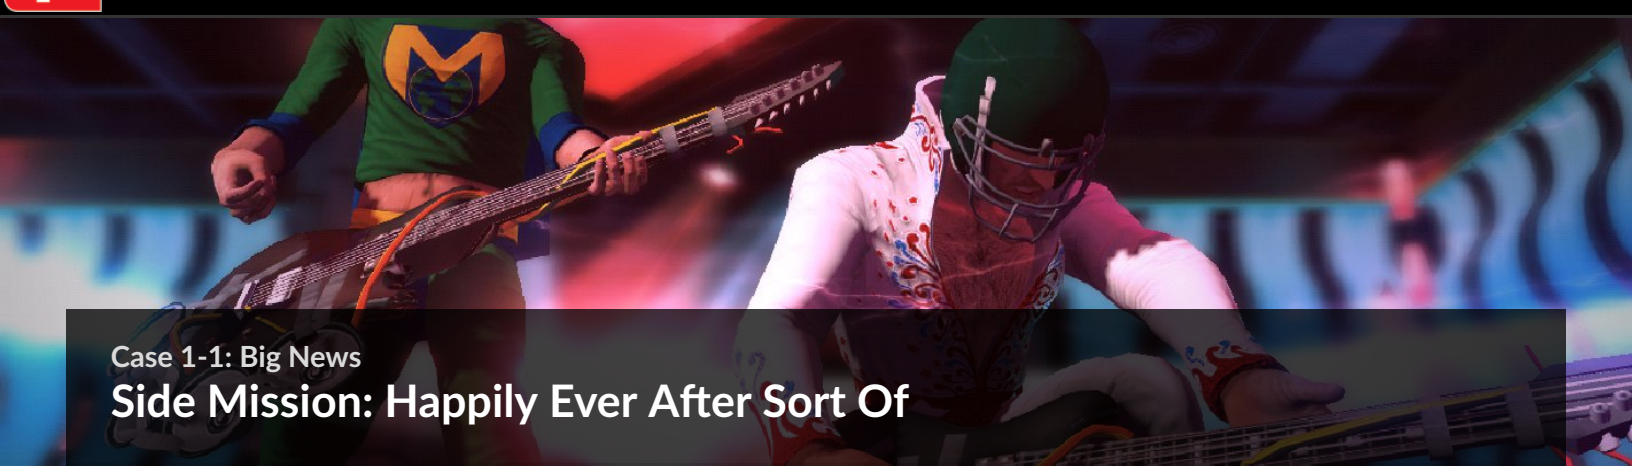

BATTER UP

Exit the maintenance room and put your newfound combo weapon to use against the zombies in the hall. Notice that each zombie you kill with the spiked bat earns you 50 PP—this quickly adds up.

Try holding the Attack button to execute the spiked bat's satisfying heavy attack for a guaranteed single-zombie kill that nets you 200 PP. Good stuff!

> Tip
>
> With its super-fast attacks, lethal power, and respectable durability, the spiked bat is one of the most practical combo weapons in the game.
>
> Build one every time you pass by this maintenance room, which you'll do often as you move to and from the Safe House.

> Tip
>
> Inspect the storage room across the hall from the maintenance room to acquire another box of nails, which you can combine with the baseball bat at the foot of the stairs you passed a moment ago.
>
> This gives you the makings for two spiked bats in one convenient place; make sure Chuck always carries two of these excellent combo weapons.

Case 1-1: Big News

Side Mission: Happily Ever After Sort Of

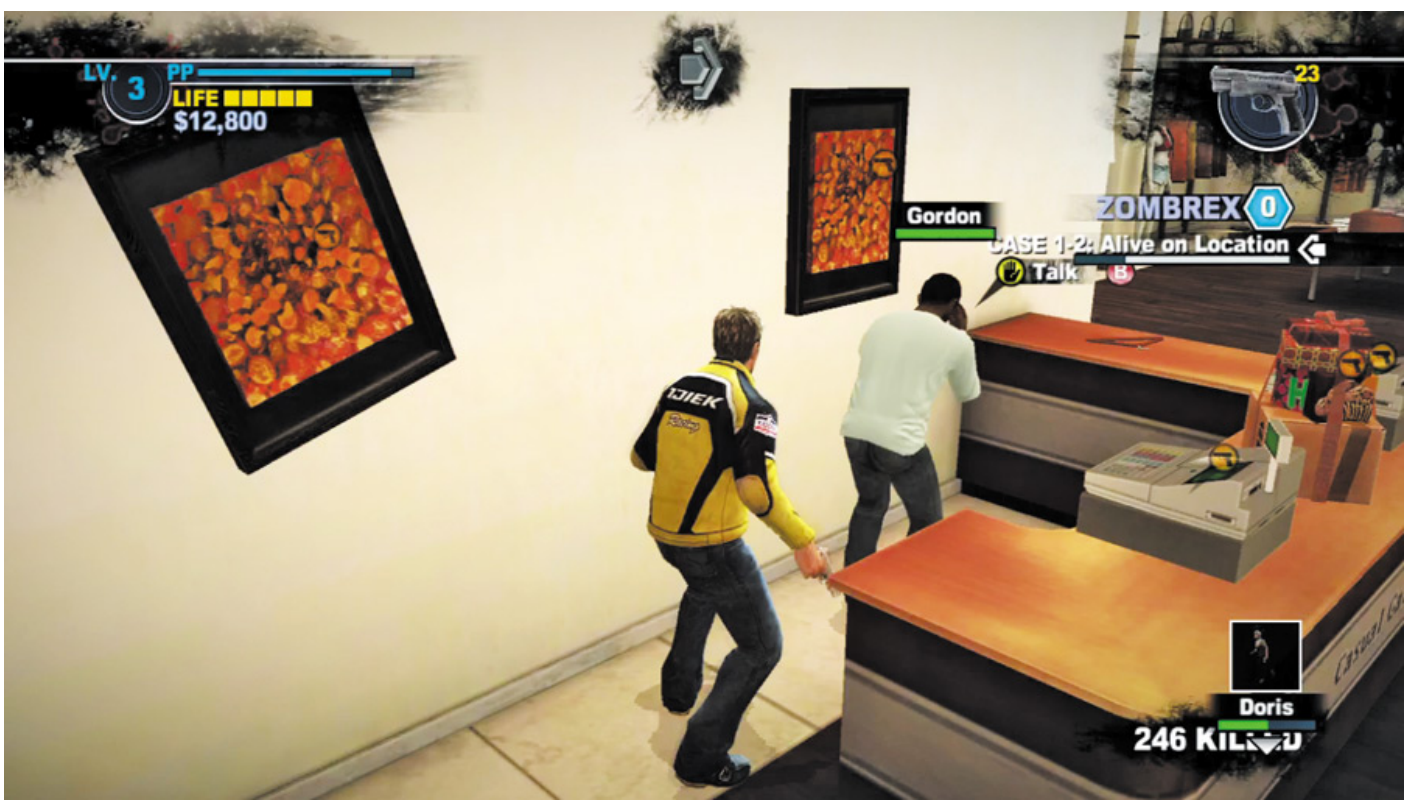

Entering Royal Flush Plaza proper, Chuck sees a woman named LaShawndra standing atop one of The Dark Bean coffee shop's counters. The poor woman is surrounded by zombies and pleading for help; clear out the undead and speak with her until she joins you.

Tip

If you're low on food, The Dark Bean always has a coffee creamer on its outer counter, and two more on its central counter.

These are potent curatives and well worth picking up each time you pass by The Dark Bean, which you'll do quite often.

LaShawndra agrees to accompany Chuck to the Safe House, but also hints that her cowardly husband, Gordon, should be somewhere nearby.

You can hear Gordon's screams; he's holed up in the nearby Casual Gals clothing store. Check your map to find the store with ease and speak with Gordon to have him join you as well.

Note

Most survivors will follow close behind Chuck after they agree to join him. If for some reason they aren't keeping up, press the Call button to yell out to them— they'll rush to Chuck's position.

By holding the Aim button before pressing the Call button, you can order survivors to wait at specific locations—this is helpful if you don't want them following Chuck into a dangerous place.

You're right near the Safe House, so go ahead and escort these two survivors back to safety. This earns you a healthy dose of PP that could potentially level Chuck up.

Save your progress at the Safe House restroom before exiting to follow the guide arrow toward the "Lost..." mission once more.

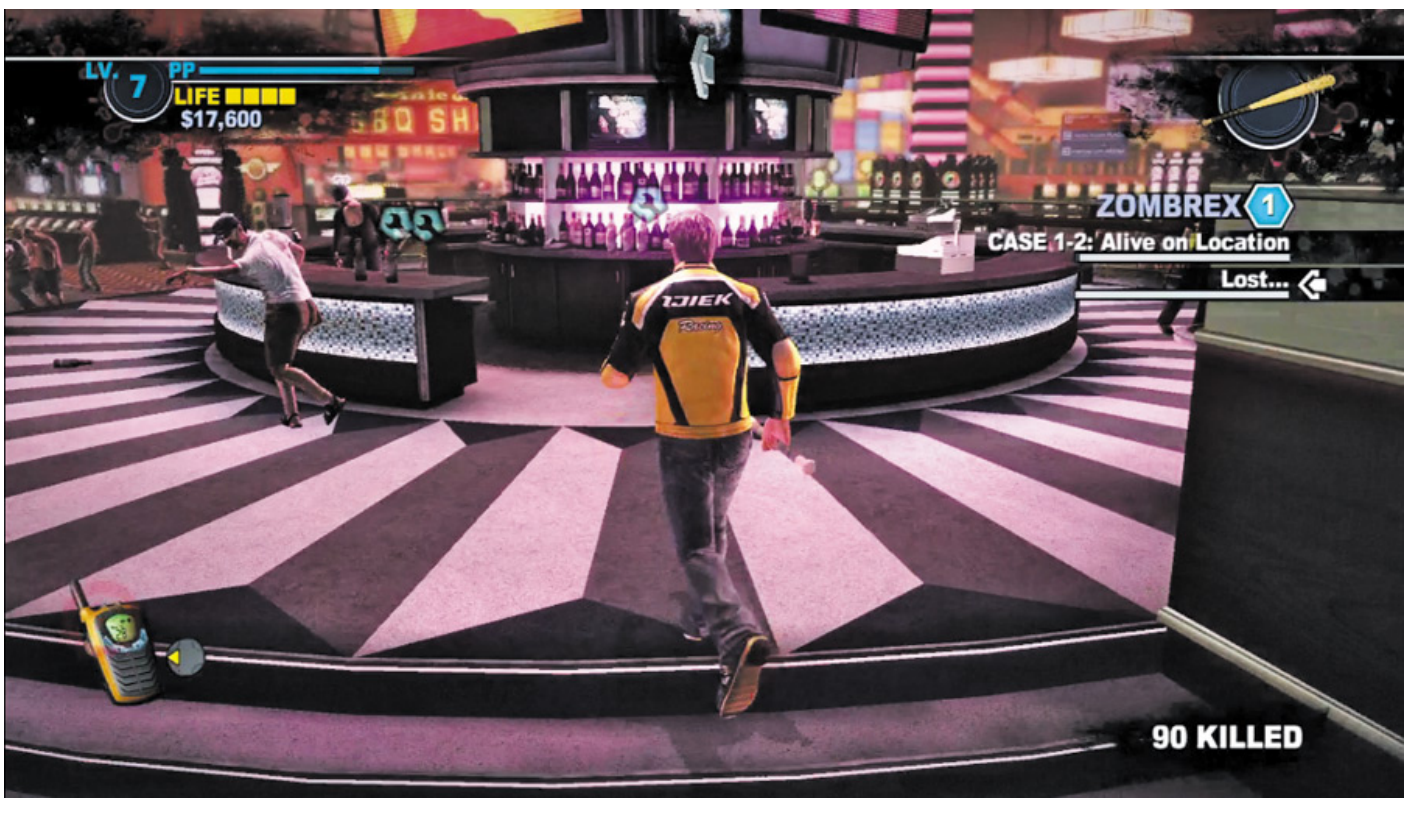

Tip

Grab a fresh spiked bat on your way back through Royal Flush Plaza—it helps to have two like-new spiked bats on hand at all times.

Case 1-1: Big News

Super Juice

As you follow the guide arrow through Americana Casino en route to the "Lost..." side mission, make a quick stop at the casino's central bar, Shots & Awe, where you discover an endless supply of wine, vodka, and whiskey on its spherical shelving.

A blender sits on the nearby counter, making this an excellent place to mix up super-nutritional juice drinks!

Caution

Shots & Awe is easily accessible by zombies, so be ready to beat back any that shamble near.

You could flip to the "Appendix" chapter of this guide for a complete list of all possible juice drinks, but we'll boil things down for you here. Shots & Awe conveniently allows you to make two very useful juice drinks, and you'd be wise to take full advantage:

Juice Drink	Benefits
Quick Step	Restores six units of health and greatly increases Chuck's movement speed. It's easily made here by combining two wines together, or two coffees or coffee creamers (if you picked them up from The Dark Bean), or any combination of these items (wine + coffee, etc.)
Pain Killer	Restores six units of health and reduces the damage Chuck suffers from enemy attacks. Combine two whiskeys or two vodkas together.

Use the blender to fill Chuck's inventory with Pain Killers, excluding the two slots being occupied by spiked bats. Depending on which of Chuck's stats have improved through leveling up thus far, you may be able to carry two or more Pain Killers.

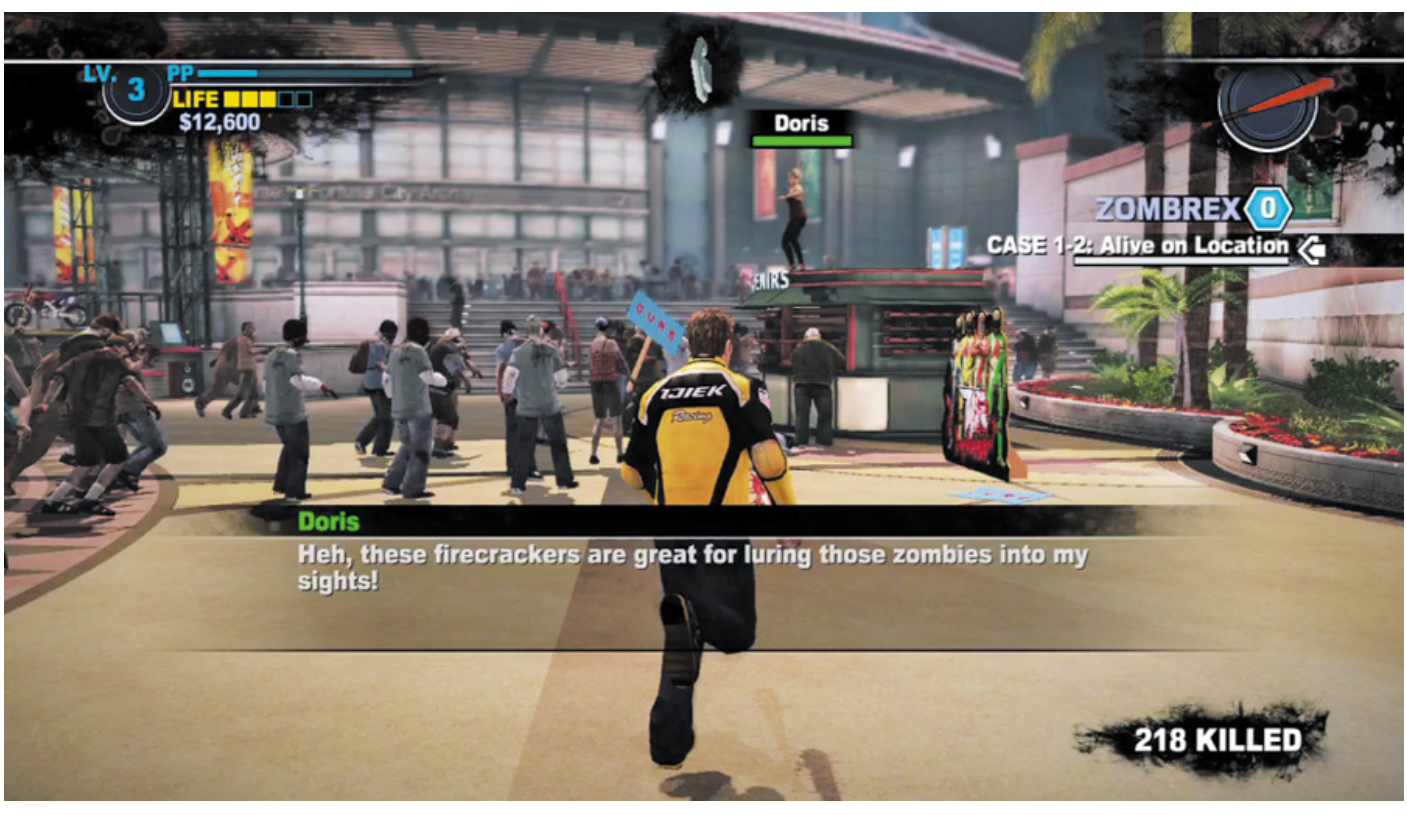

Forgo the Quick Steps for now; although extremely useful, these won't be of much use once survivors begin to follow you.

Case 1-1: Big News

Side Mission: Lost

After mixing a few juice drinks at Shots & Awe, follow your guide arrow through Americana Casino and into Platinum Strip. There you find a woman named Doris standing atop a souvenir stand, using firecrackers to lure zombies within range of her handgun.

Note

All missions, including cases and side missions, have limited time in which they can be completed. This is shown visually by the bar that runs below the mission's name while viewing your list of messages at the map screen.

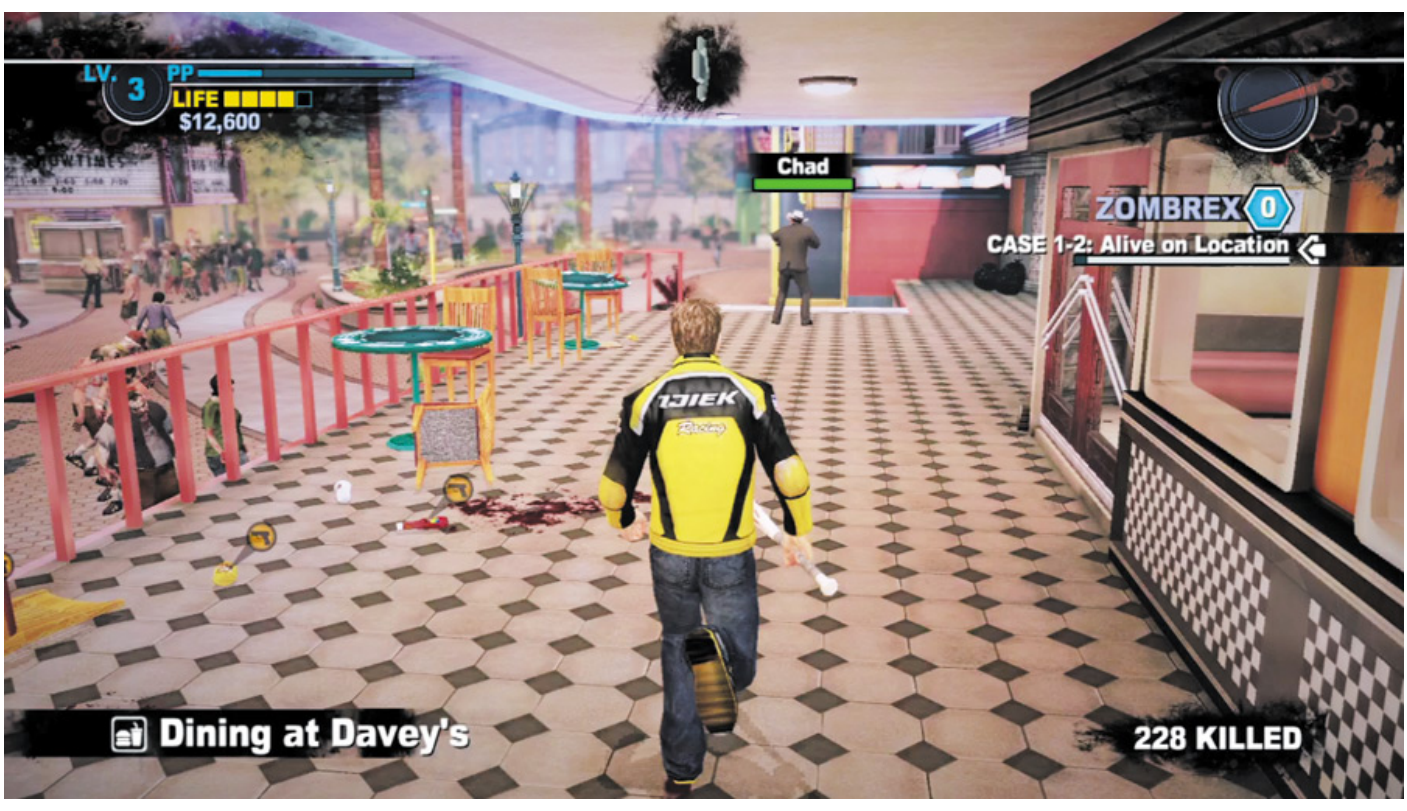

As the bar shrinks, it changes from white to yellow to red. Keep an eye on your tasks and avoid letting them expire, or you'll miss out on valuable PP and other special extras.

Use your spiked bat to clear zombies away from the rear of the souvenir stand, then jump upon to the stand to speak with Doris. Unfortunately, she won't leave her position of safety until her man Chad finds her. Looks like you'll need to locate this Chad fellow.

Tip

Take a moment to examine the standee that's right near Doris's souvenir stand. Chuck sticks his head in the hole and makes a face, pocketing 1,000 PP for his silly behavior.

Drop down from the stand and sprint north, dodging zombies to make good time. It isn't long before you see Chad letting loose with a shotgun a little farther up Platinum Strip—he's right near Dining at Davey's. Speak with Chad several times until he joins you.

Tip

Want that shotgun? Simply hand Chadany non-combo item and he'll trade it to you.

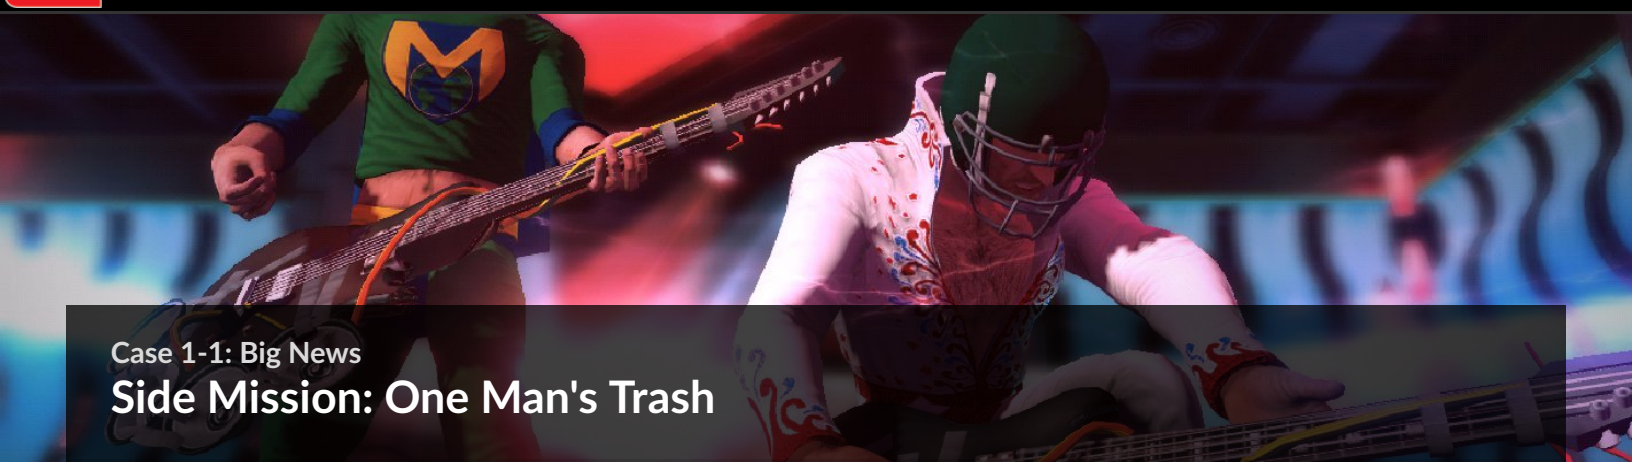

Lead Chad back to Doris, but be ready for some serious mayhem. Doris'sfirecrackers have attracted a throng of zombies by now, and you've got to clear out the monsters before Doris will join you.

Avoid harming either survivor while you work at clearing away the undead. When the blood bath subsides, speak with Doris to at last gain her company.

Tip

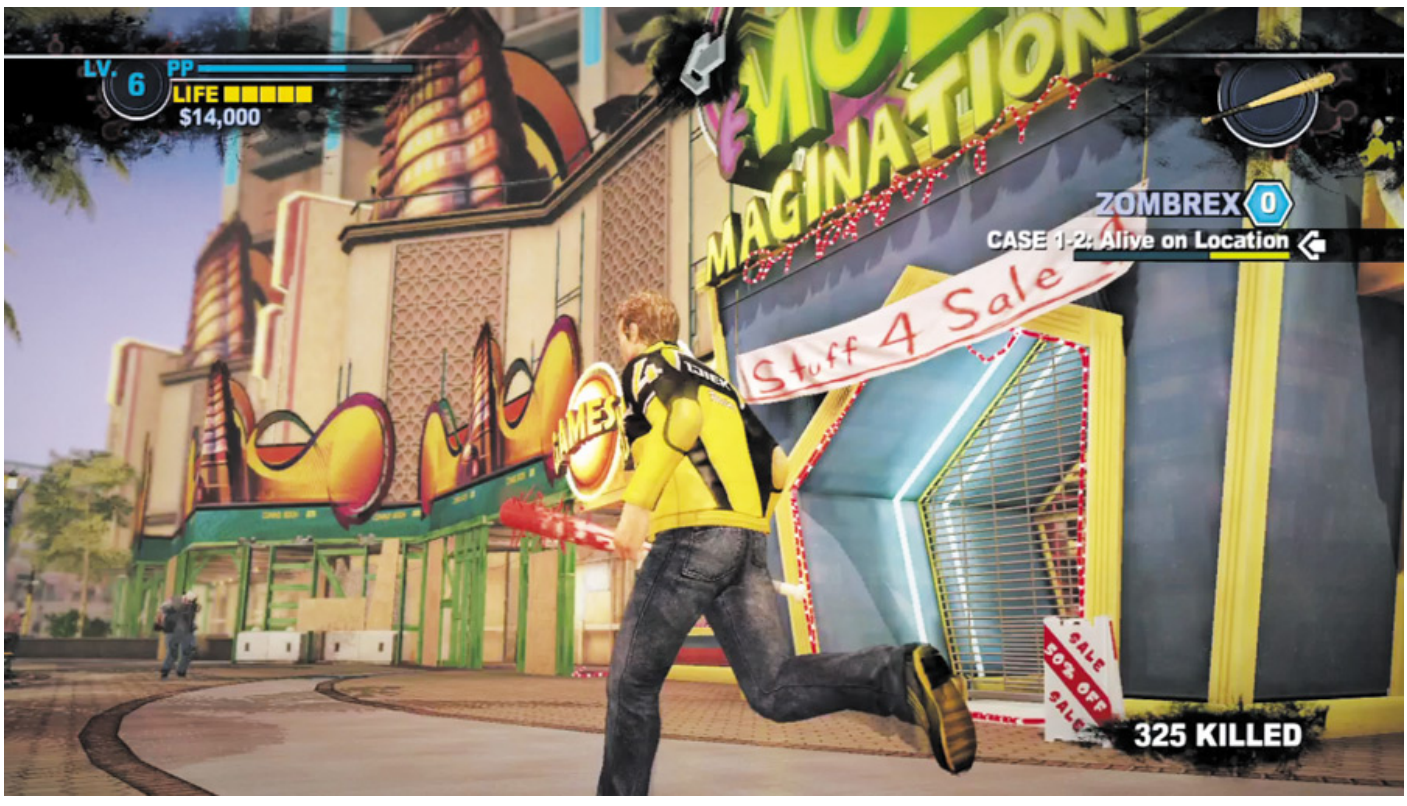

Use the spiked bat's heavy attack to single out zombies, reducing the odds of whacking nearby survivors. Too many hits from Chuck will cause survivors to defect and turn against our hero!

If you take heavy damage, climb onto the souvenir stand to catch your breath and consume foods. You can also give healing items to those who have joined you, which they'll immediately consume to replenish their health.

Case 1-1: Big News

Side Mission: One Man's Trash

With the gun-toting couple following your lead, it's time to get the heck out of here.

Set your guide arrow to the "One Man's Trash" mission and sprint north through Platinum Strip, heading for Moe's Maginations. Approach the store's front gate and speak with the looter beyond.

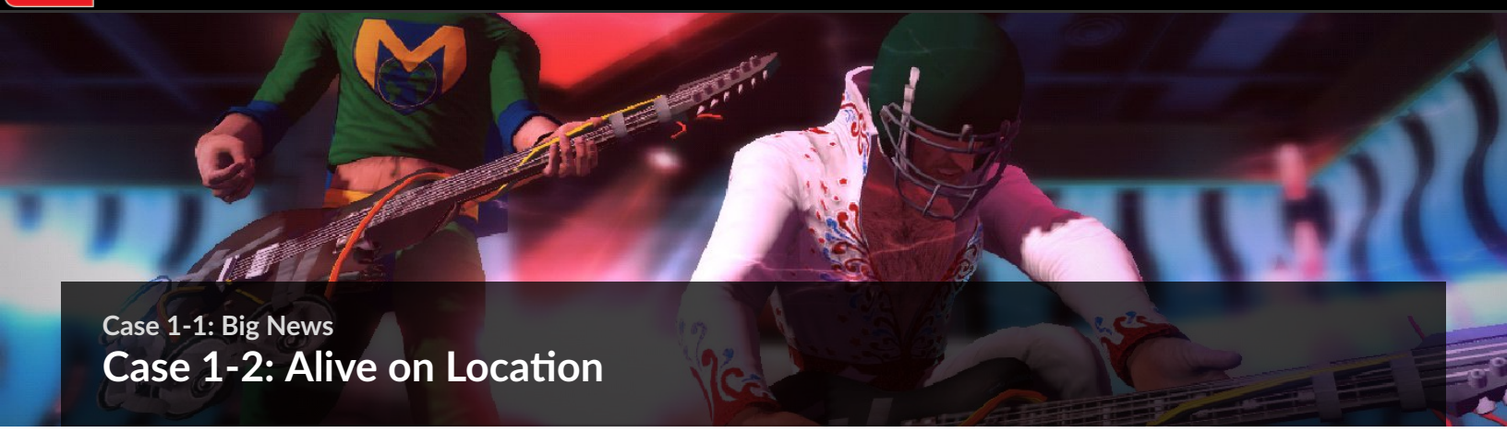

Chuck hates looters, but this one informs him that he can visit pawnshops throughout Fortune City to buy stuff he needs—at an absurd mark up, of course.

Finish the dialogue to enter the shop and complete this easy side mission. This makes every pawn shop throughout Fortune City accessible to Chuck.

Note

The primary item of interest at pawnshops is Zombrex. This is the only reliable source of the drug, which Chuck needs to acquire and administer to Katey everyday between 7:00 AM and 8:00 AM.

There are many ways to acquire Zombrex without paying for it, however; follow this walkthrough and you'll never give those filthy looters a penny for Katey's sake.

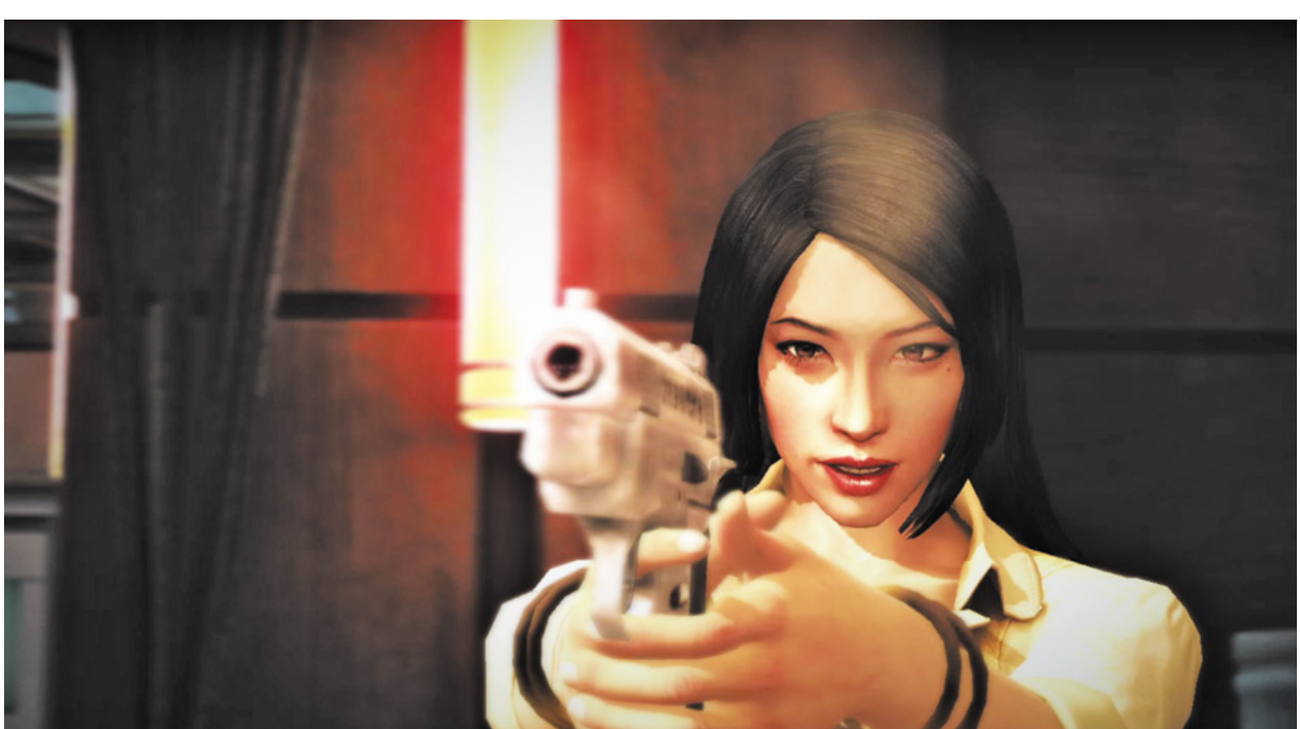

Case 1-1: Big News

Case 1-2: Alive on Location

With Doris and Chad still following your lead, set your guide arrow to Case 1-2 and follow it to reach the lobby of the nearby Fortune City Hotel.

Ensure that Chad and Doris are close by before entering the hotel or they won't follow Chuck through. The tiny green door icon that appears near a survivor's onscreen health bar lets you know they're close enough to follow Chuck into the next area.

At the hotel lobby, Chuck encounters the news reporter he recently saw on TV, Rebecca Chang. He wastes no time telling the beautiful woman that she's got her facts mixed up—he had nothing to do with the recent outbreak.

Unsure of his story, but nonetheless intrigued, Rebecca suggests they examine the arena's security room to see if they can find any sort of video feed that might clear things up. With no other options, Chuck agrees to accompany her.

Note

As long as you're careful not to harm survivors that are following Chuck, you can lead them all around Fortune City if you like.

It's therefore best to collect several survivors at once, reducing the number of trips you must make to and from the Safe House and saving precious time.

Persuading survivors to follow Chuck is usually enough to complete their associated missions, so you don't need to worry about hurrying them back to the Safe House once they've joined you.

If Chuck's charges become badly wounded, simply find a safe place to hole up and hand them food to help them recover.

Case 1-1: Big News

Case 1-3: Insecurity

The arena isn't far, but time is short. Speak to Rebecca to have her lead the way to Fortune City Arena's security room.

Tip

If you can't get enough of skateboards, pick up the Skateboarding magazine that rests on the coffee table in the hotel lobby—this increases the durability of skateboards and allows Chuck to ollie over obstacles.

We prefer Quick Step juice drinks to get us where we're going, but skateboards can certainly help quicken the pace as well.

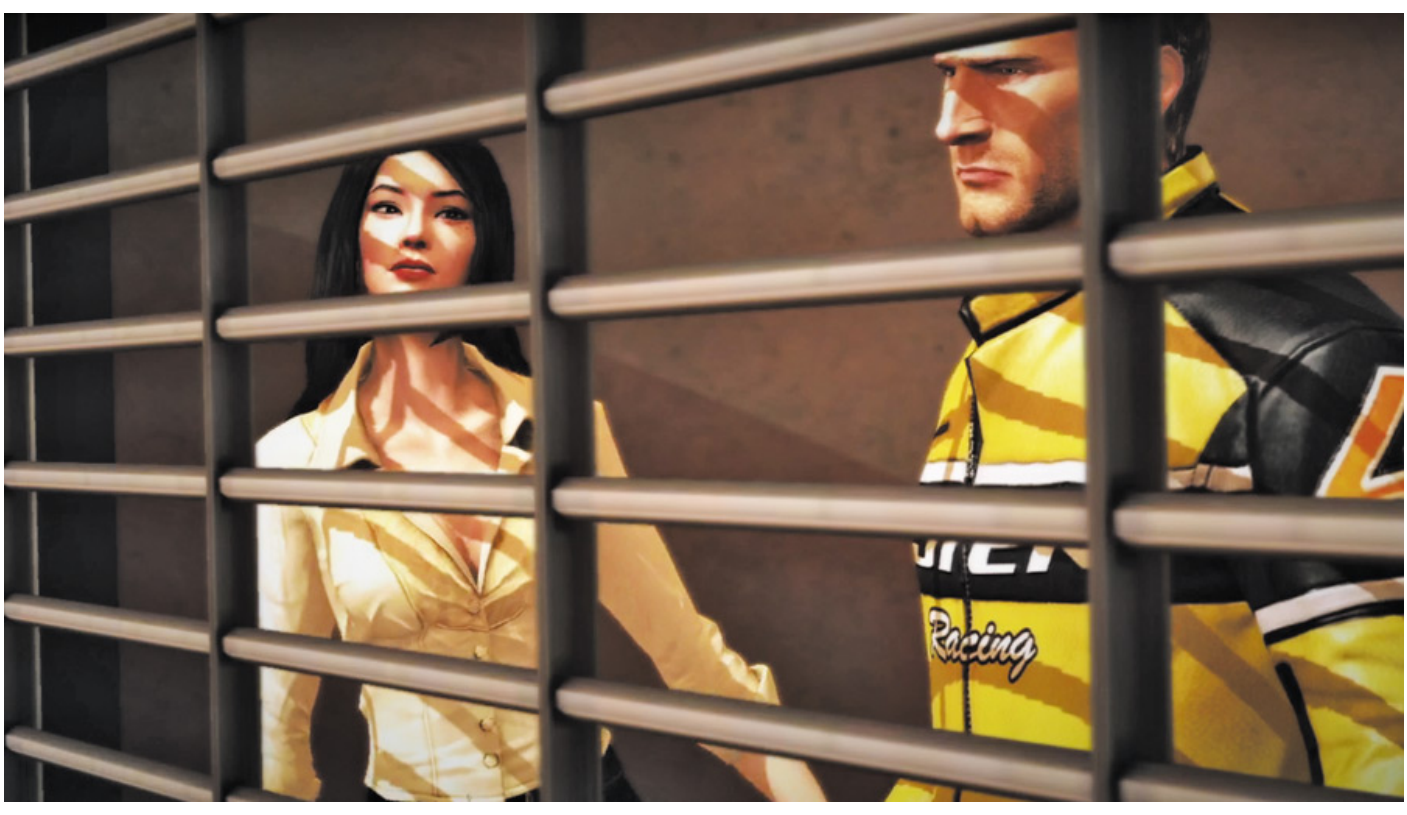

You can find a convenient supply of skateboards at In The Closet, which is right near The Dark Bean in Royal Flush Plaza, and therefore easy to visit as you move to and from the Safe House.

Rebecca cuts through South Plaza, which is still under construction. Before getting very far, she leads Chuck to a nearby restroom— save your game and then speak to Rebecca afterward to get moving again.

Tip

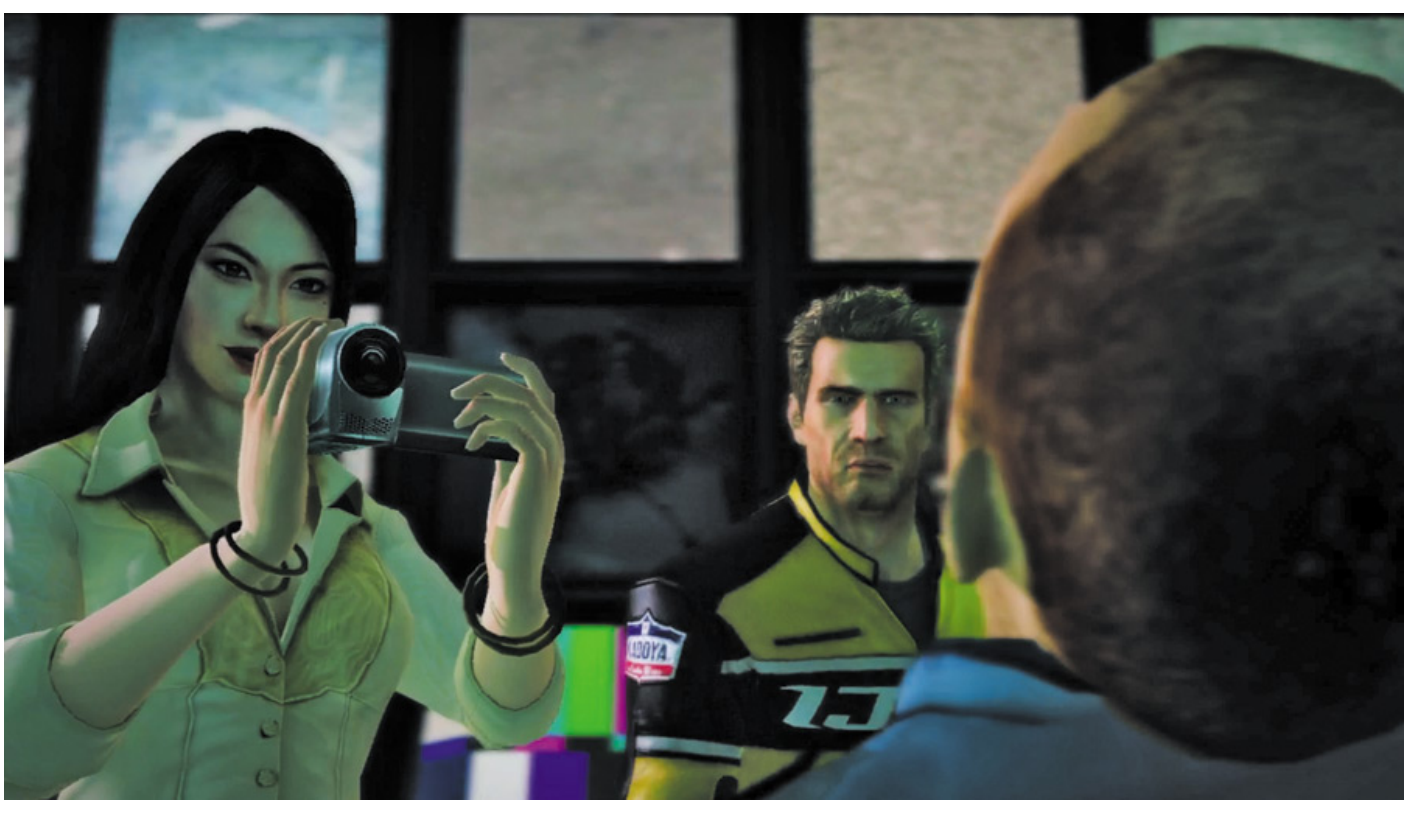

Continue to avoid confrontations with zombies as you rush through South Plaza. In fact, unless otherwise stated by this walkthrough, you should always avoid combat with zombies unless it's absolutely necessary.

The arena is sealed up tight, but the resourceful reporter manages to open the gate. Continue dodging zombies as you follow Rebecca to the security room, then examine the door.

The security room is locked as well, but that won't stop a reporter of Ms. Chang's talents. Rebecca quickly produces a tool and picks the lock.

SPOILER : Inside, Chuck and Rebecca find the security room torn to shreds, along with the men who were stationed there.

Someone didn't want any evidence of what really happened being left behind, and the absence of any bite marks makes it clear that no zombies did the killing here. Chuck gets a call from Stacey, urging him to return to the Safe House. Looks like this lead has gone cold.

Case 1-1: Big News

Gearing Up

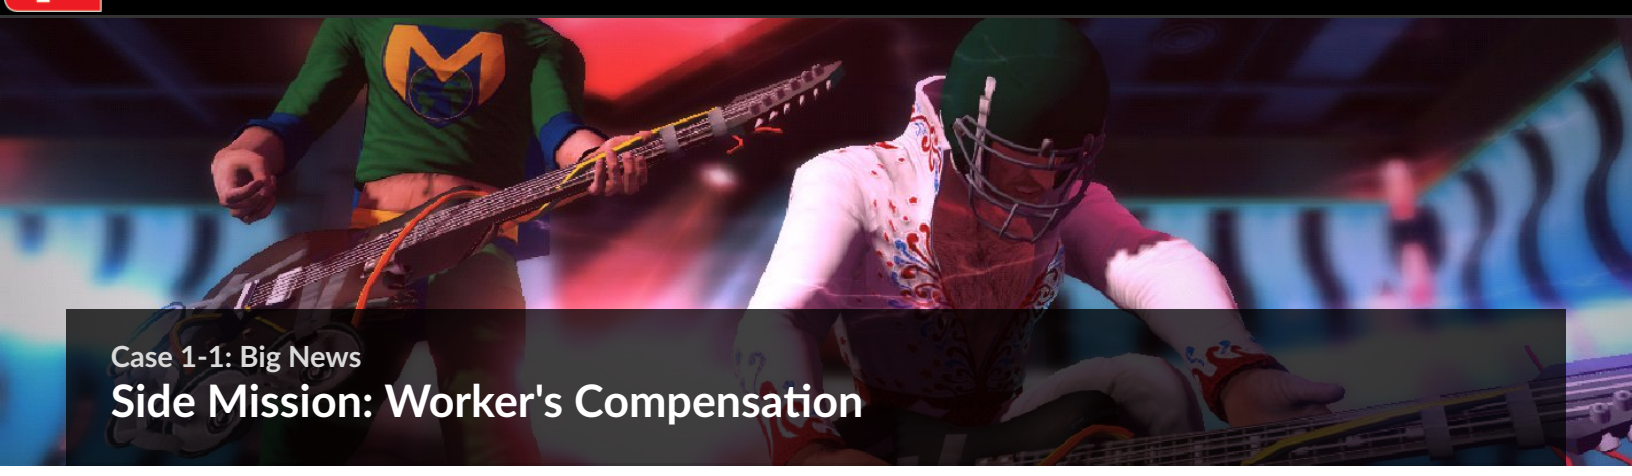

Before heading back to the Safe House, reenter the security room and collect a magazine from the counter near one of the dead guards. The magazine, Rescue, gives Chuck 25 per cent more PP from survivor-related activities.

By keeping this on hand for the entire adventure, Chuck will level up much faster.

Nab a coffee creamer from a counter near the Rescue magazine if you wish, and if you're in need of a good combo weapon, build a pole weapon by merging the machete in the nearby maintenance room with the push broom that stands against the wall just outside the door.

Case 1-1: Big News

Side Mission: Worker's Compensation

By this point, you've likely received additional missions from Stacey. One of them, "Worker's Compensation," is easy to complete on your way back to the Safe House.

Make your way to Americana Casino to find two former employees, Stuart and Brittany, looting the place. Beware: Stuart will attack you!

Strike Stuart until he smartens up and agrees to stop looting the casino. Speak to both looters afterward to get them to join you, thus completing the mission.

PRIZES ON HIGH

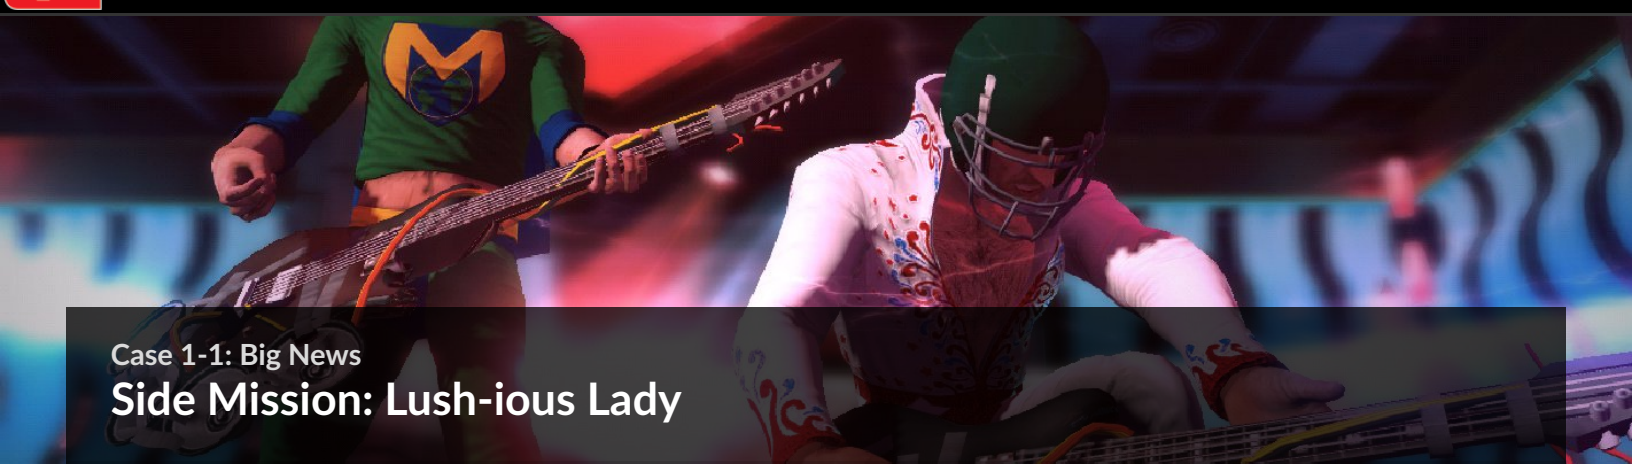

Next, head into Bennie Jack's BBQ Shack and take the stairs up to the second floor. Climb onto the counter to the left of the upstairs barbecue pit, and from there, leap to the large hanging light fixture.

Your companions can't follow, but don't worry; they'll be OK by themselves for a moment.

Continue hopping along the lights to reach a secret stash of goodies, including a Magazine (Bargaining 1) and a dose of Zombrex! Leave the mag (you really don't need it) and grab the wonder drug, along with the cash and the giant stuffed rabbit. It's an ideal gift for Katey!

Case 1-1: Big News

Side Mission: Lush-ious Lady

Before leaving Americana Casino, tune your guide arrow to the “Lush-ious Lady” task and lead your quartet of companions into Americana Casino’s north security office, which isn’t far.

Inside, you discover an incredibly hungover girl named Brittany who’s totally oblivious to the recent outbreak.

Speak with Brittany to explain the situation and get her to join you, then pick up the poor girl and carry her back to the Safe House, ensuring that your less hapless companions follow you.

COMBO CARD: TENDERIZERS

As you pass through the doors to Royal Flush Plaza, inspect the poster on display in the center of the floor directly ahead. The poster gives Chuck an idea of a new combo weapon: the tenderizers!

You can find the MMA gloves required for this weapon inside The Man’s Sport, which is right nearby. Carry the giant stuffed rabbit back to the Safe House, leading your troop of survivors back to the bunker.

Set the rabbit down just outside the security room when you arrive, then enter the room to initiate a dialogue with Stacey, Rebecca, and Sullivan.

Note

Although this walkthrough guides you toward each hidden combo card, there’s little need to use many combo weapons other than the spiked bat, which is arguably the most efficient.

When you have missions to fulfill, avoid going out of your way just to create different combo weapons. A few precious seconds can mean the difference between completing tasks and missing your chance!

Carry the giant stuffed rabbit back to the Safe House, leading your troop of survivors back to the bunker. Set the rabbit down just outside the security room when you arrive, then enter the room to initiate a dialogue with Stacey, Rebecca, and Sullivan.

Case 1-1: Big News

Case 1-4: Alliance

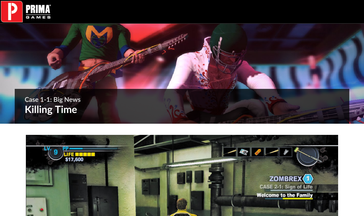

At the Safe House, Chuckfinds Sullivan in an uproar. He's seen the footage of what appears to be Chuck causing the outbreak and isn't sure what to believe.

Chuck manages to talk Sullivan down, however, and the military reserve man agrees to play things one step at a time for now. After Sullivan departs, Chuck, Stacey, and Rebecca all agree to help one another find out what's really going on in Fortune City.

After forging your alliance with the two beautiful ladies, collect the giant stuffed rabbit you left outside and hand it to Katey to brighten up her day—and pocket some more PP in the process!

Case 1-1: Big News

Killing Time

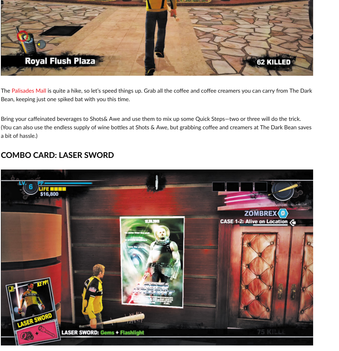

Case 2-1 doesn't begin until 7:30 PM, so you've got some free time on your hands now. Exit the Safe House after saving, then check your Messages to see multiple side missions requiring your attention. Tune your guide arrow to "Welcome to the Family" and head out.

Note

Don't worry about the "Short Sighted" mission, which is also running low on time; you'll catch that one on your way back from "Welcome to the Family."

Tip

Remember to grab restoratives at the Safe House or The Dark Bean, and to build a new spiked bat on your way out!

The Palisades Mall is quite a hike, so let's speed things up. Grab all the coffee and coffee creamers you can carry from The Dark Bean, keeping just one spiked bat with you this time.

Bring your caffeinated beverages to Shots& Awe and use them to mix up some Quick Steps—two or three will do the trick. (You can also use the endless supply of wine bottles at Shots & Awe, but grabbing coffee and creamers at The Dark Bean saves a bit of hassle.)

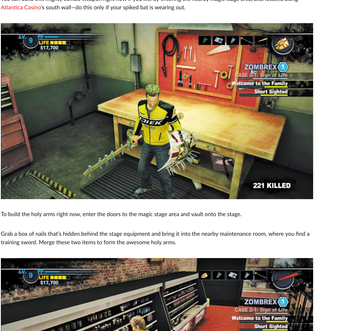

COMBO CARD: LASER SWORD

Immediately down a Quick Step after blending them, then bolt for the doors to Platinum Strip, which isn't far from Shots & Awe.

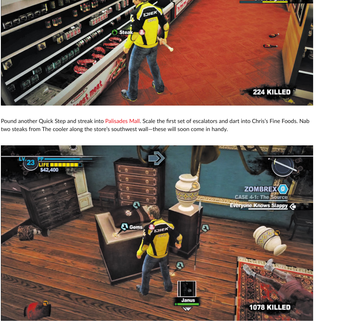

Sprint down the strip and make a quick pit stop into Paradise Platinum Theaters, examining the poster against the far wall to give Chuck the notion for the laser sword combo weapon. We'll show you where to build one of these soon.

COMBO CARD: HOLY ARMS

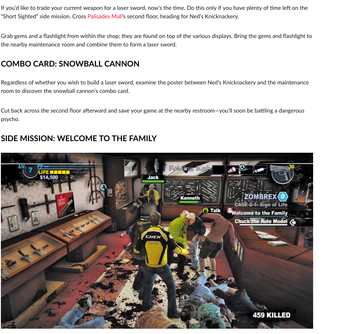

Enter Atlantica Casino on your way to Palisades Mall, where the "Welcome to the Family" mission takes place. Make a slight detour and examine the poster on the casino's south wall to acquire the holy arms combo card.

You can build this mighty combo weapon right now if you like by entering the nearby magic stage area, also located along Atlantica Casino's south wall—do this only if your spiked bat is wearing out.

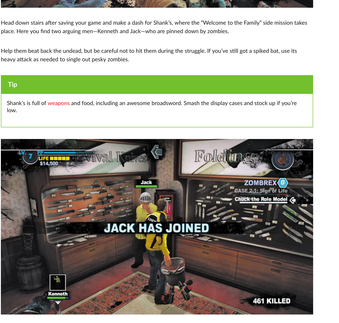

To build the holy arms right now, enter the doors to the magic stage area and vault onto the stage.

Grab a box of nails that's hidden behind the stage equipment and bring it into the nearby maintenance room, where you find a training sword. Merge these two items to form the awesome holy arms.

Pound another Quick Step and streak into Palisades Mall. Scale the first set of escalators and dart into Chris's Fine Foods. Nab two steaks from The cooler along the store's southwest wall—these will soon come in handy.

If you'd like to trade your current weapon for a laser sword, now's the time. Do this only if you have plenty of time left on the "Short Sighted" side mission. Cross Palisades Mall's second floor, heading for Ned's Knicknackery.

Grab gems and a flashlight from within the shop; they are found on top of the various displays. Bring the gems and flashlight to the nearby maintenance room and combine them to form a laser sword.

COMBO CARD: SNOWBALL CANNON

Regardless of whether you wish to build a laser sword, examine the poster between Ned's Knicknackery and the maintenance room to discover the snowball cannon's combo card.

Cut back across the second floor afterward and save your game at the nearby restroom—you'll soon be battling a dangerous psycho.

SIDE MISSION: WELCOME TO THE FAMILY

Head down stairs after saving your game and make a dash for Shank's, where the "Welcome to the Family" side mission takes place. Here you find two arguing men—Kenneth and Jack—who are pinned down by zombies.

Help them beat back the undead, but be careful not to hit them during the struggle. If you've still got a spiked bat, use its heavy attack as needed to single out pesky zombies.

Tip

Shank's is full of weapons and food, including an awesome broadsword. Smash the display cases and stock up if you're low.

Speak to Kenneth when things settle down, then talk to Jack to get both men to join you. Waste no time exiting Shank's and leading your new found comrades west into Yucatan Casino.

Case 1: Big Boss

Optional Psycho: Ted and Snowflake

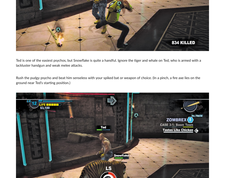

The first time you enter Yucatan Casino, you encounter an obese psycho named Ted, who has design-con feeding Chuck to his beloved tiger, Snowflake. Not very friendly!

Tip

As the battle begins, hold the Aim button and then press the Call button to order Jack and Kenneth to wait in a nearby corner, out of harm's way.

Ted is one of the easiest psychos, but Snowflake is quite a handful, ignore the tiger and whale on Ted who is armed with a tactitube handgun and weak melee attacks.

Rush the pudgy psycho and beat him senseless with your spiked bat or weapon of choice. (In a pinch, a fire axe hits on the ground over Ted's starting position.)

Snowflake will pounce on you from time to time as you walking on her master. If she tackles you to the ground, quickly initiate the on-screen commands to escape and reduce the damage you suffer.

Continue to ignore Snowflake until you've dealt with Ted.

If you need to heal up, race for Bistro Vie Brahaus, where you'll discover all manner of food items, along with the Health Z magazine, which doubles the healing effect of all cookies.

Use the blender on the counter to set up Lime drinks if you like, or simply down some wine for fast healing. Just don't drink more than three alcoholic beverages or Chuck will get sick!

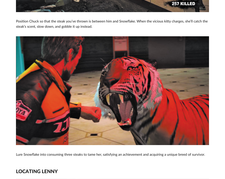

TAMING THE TIGER

After the fat man finally falls, turn your attention to taming Snowflake. To do this, return to the west fire pit area where the psycho fight first began and grab a short stack off the rack.

Stand in the relatively spacious area just outside of the fire pit area and use the Aim button to toss a steak onto the ground in open territory.

You can also find a steak on a table inside of Bistro Vie Brahaus if you're one short, and there's another after the casino's overhead platforms, which you can reach by jumping off slot machines and the like. Carrying steaks with you into the casino is the easiest way to go, though.

Position Chuck so that the steak you've thrown is between him and Snowflake. When the vicious kitty charges, she'll catch the steak's scent, slow down, and gobble it up instead.

Lure Snowflake into consuming three steaks to tame her, satisfying an achievement and acquiring a unique breed of survivor.

LOCATING LENNY

If there's ample time left on the "Short Sighted" mission, call out to gather your survivors—including Snowflake—and make for the casino's south VIP room by entering a door near the bar.

Inside you find a man named Lenny, who will only join Chuck if Snowflake has been killed or tamed.

Speak with Lenny until he joins you, then follow him across the casino floor and into the north maintenance room. Examine the switch that comes shoes you to turn on all the slot machines within Yucatan Casino. Nice!

COMBO CARD: FREEDOM BEAR

Check your map to find you're right next to the Yucatan Casino's restrooms. Enter them and eye the poster on the wall just outside the men's room to obtain the freedom bear combo card.

COMBO CARD: BLAMBOW

Time is likely running out on the "Short Sighted" mission by now, so don't dally. Lead your gang of survivors back to the Safe House, cutting through the Food Court and Dirt Farm Casino on your way to Royal Flush Plaza.

As you move through the Food Court, examine the poster on the south west wall to acquire the combo card for the awesome blambow.

Caution

The clock will likely strike 7:00 PM as you make your way to the"Short Sighted" mission. Day turns to night at this point, and zombies become more aggressive and powerful. Stay sharp and avoid these clusters of brain eaters!

SIDE MISSION: SHORT SIGHTED

Race back toward Royal Flush Plaza and take up to its second floor. Bolt into Children's Castle to locate a confused old woman named Esther. Speak with Esther multiple times until she at last complete the mission, allowing you to relax at last.

Esther is slow and vulnerable, so you'll need to carry her back to the Safe House—this is why we advised you not to visit her until this point.

Chuck can only kick while carrying a survivor, so it's a good thing the bunker isn't far. Make sure Chuck's in good health before sweeping Esther off her feet.

Note

If you can out of blow trying to save Esther, consider loading a previous save and visiting her first, before going after Kenneth and Jack.

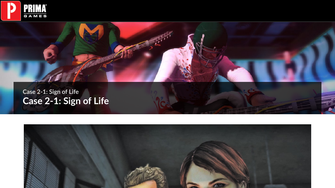

Mix your Quick Steps at Shuts & Awe as before, but this time, use them to cut through Royal Flush Plaza and rescue Kenneth. Lead his comrade, the pre-op old woman around her police a while as you catch back and Kenneth and battle Ted and Snowflake.

Press the interact button to set her down as needed, preferably well out of harm's way.

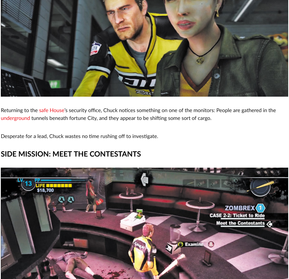

You'll likely get a call from Kenny as you escort your troop back to the Safe House. She asks Chuck to meet her at the security room—this is your clue that you can now begin Case 2, and you're already on your way.

Kenneth
Kenny: Chuck. I was wondering if you could come back to the Safe House and help me? I just need to talk to you about Kenny. I'm a little worried about her.

Lenny shoes say comfy & stylish at a fair and reasonable price. Actually, Maybe Chuck will buy the Lenny shoes to further disturb Lenny. Do.

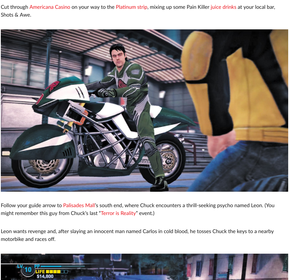

Case 2-1: Sign of Life

Returning to the safe House's security office, Chuck notices something on one of the monitors: People are gathered in the underground tunnels beneath fortune City, and they appear to be shifting some sort of cargo.

Desperate for a lead, Chuck wastes no time rushing off to investigate.

SIDE MISSION: MEET THE CONTESTANTS

Chuck may be in a hurry to clear his name, but this also happens to be a perfect time to complete some profitable side missions. Make sure you're carrying two fresh spiked bats, then set your guide arrow to the "Meet the Contestants" side mission.

Cut through Americana Casino on your way to the Platinum strip, mixing up some Pain Killer juice drinks at your local bar, Shots & Awe.

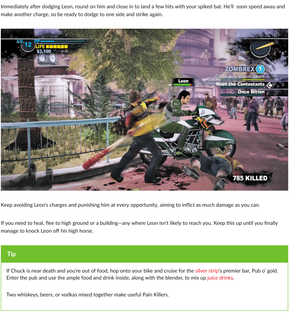

Follow your guide arrow to Palisades Mall's south end, where Chuck encounters a thrill-seeking psycho named Leon. (You might remember this guy from Chuck's last "Terror is Reality" event.)

Leon wants revenge and, after slaying an innocent man named Carlos in cold blood, he tosses Chuck the keys to a nearby motorbike and races off.

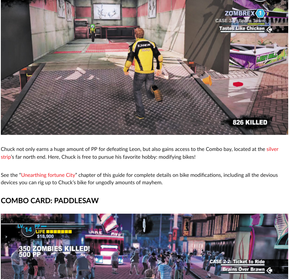

You can't let a lunatic like that roam free. Climb onto the bike and speed east along the strip, chasing Leon into fortune Park.

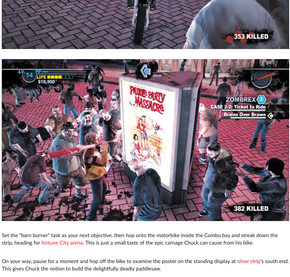

Pursue Leon until you finally catch sight of him—he'll be cruising all around fortune Park, mowing down zombies.

When you finally locate Leon, do the unthinkable and get off your bike—it's no use trying to ram Leon because he'll always knock you for a loop, and you can't fight him from the bike's seat.

Keep an eye on Leon while moving on foot, doing your best to keep away from tight packs of zombies, each time Leon zips toward you, run to one side to avoid being hit. It's surprisingly easy to avoid Leon as long as you see him coming and are quick to react.

Immediately after dodging Leon, round on him and close in to land a few hits with your spiked bat. He'll soon speed away and make another charge, so be ready to dodge to one side and strike again.

Keep avoiding Leon's charges and punishing him at every opportunity, aiming to inflict as much damage as you can.

If you need to heal, flee to high ground or a building—any where Leon isn't likely to reach you. Keep this up until you finally manage to knock Leon off his high horse.

Tip

If Chuck is near death and you're out of food, hop onto your bike and cruise for the silver strip's premier bar, Pub o' gold. Enter the pub and use the ample food and drink inside, along with the blender, to mix up juice drinks.

Two whiskeys, beers, or vodkas mixed together make useful Pain Killers.

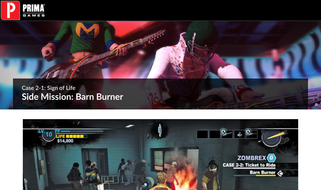

Chuck not only earns a huge amount of PP for defeating Leon, but also gains access to the Combo bay, located at the silver strip's far north end. Here, Chuck is free to pursue his favorite hobby: modifying bikes!

See the "Unearthing fortune City" chapter of this guide for complete details on bike modifications, including all the devious devices you can rig up to Chuck's bike for ungodly amounts of mayhem.

COMBO CARD: PADDLESAW

Set the "barn burner" task as your next objective, then hop onto the motorbike inside the Combo bay and streak down the strip, heading for fortune City arena. This is just a small taste of the epic carnage Chuck can cause from his bike.

On your way, pause for a moment and hop off the bike to examine the poster on the standing display at silver strip's south end. This gives Chuck the notion to build the delightfully deadly paddlesaw.

Case 2-1: Sign of Life

Side Mission: Barn Burner

After pocketing the paddlesaw's combo card, follow the guide arrow to fortune City arena's green rooms, where you discover two survivors who are trapped by fire and zombies, and are screaming for help. Into the area.

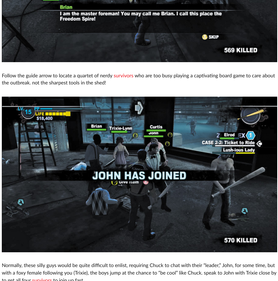

Clear away the zombies and then grab a fire extinguisher from the nearby wall. Take aim and spray out the flames that are trapping the people. It's not long before the flames die down.

Enter the green room and speak to the man, Elrod, to get the couple to join you. There are several food items lying around the room that Chuck can munch on if he's wounded.

SIDE MISSION: BRAINS OVER BRAWN

Highlight the "brains over brawn" mission next and make tracks for south Plaza, which isn't far. ensure that Elrod and Trixie follow you into the area.

Tip

If you're in need of a good weapon, quickly visit south Plaza's southwest maintenance room, where you discover a paddle. a chain saw lies just outside the room; merge these two items to form the paddlesaw that you've just learned how to create.

However, don't drop any spiked bats you're carrying in favor of the paddlesaw; we know it's tempting, but spiked bats will serve you better in an upcoming battle.

Follow the guide arrow to locate a quartet of nerdy survivors who are too busy playing a captivating board game to care about the outbreak. not the sharpest tools in the shed

Normally, these silly guys would be quite difficult to enlist, requiring Chuck to chat with their "leader," John, for some time, but with a foxy female following you (Trixie), the boys jump at the chance to "be cool" like Chuck. speak to John with Trixie close by to get all four survivors to join up fast.

SIDE MISSION: CHUCK THE ROLE MODEL

Fill your inventory with food—there's a bunch near the south Plaza nerds—then set your guide arrow to the "Chuck the Role Model" mission and cut through the arena on your way to Americana Casino.

Order your comrades to wait just outside the restroom where it's relatively safe, then head inside to confront a dangerous psychopath named Brandon.

Brandon attacks by darting into close range and slashing at Chuck with a large piece of glass. He can also leap and stab Chuck from a short distance—this is his most dangerous attack.

Run circles around the central urinals, attempting to lure Brandon into leaping and missing. Capitalize each time he does with a barrage of bat strikes, landing as many blows as you can before Brandon retaliates with a weak attack and flees.

Brandon commonly leaps over the restroom's stalls, disappearing for a time. The psycho can reappear from any stall—even those on the opposite side of the room—so run away and watch carefully, waiting for him to reappear.

Once he does, begin the same game of cat and mouse around the central urinals, aiming to make Brandon miss so you can punish him with your spiked bat.

Tip

Consume food when Brandon flees to the stalls. it's the safest time to do so. If you run out of nourishment, duck out of the restroom and find more at Americana Casino's restaurant, Bennie Jack's BBQ shack, or mix up some Pain Killers at shots & awe.

If you need a fresh weapon, the electric guitars and broadswords mounted to the casino's walls will serve you well.

Repeat the process of outmaneuvering and punishing Brandon until the psycho is at last defeated. It isn't easy, but quick reflexes, a sense of timing, and plenty of food will win you the fight.

Slaughter the zombie that emerges after Brandon's passing, then speak with the bound woman, Vikki, to untie her and gain her company.

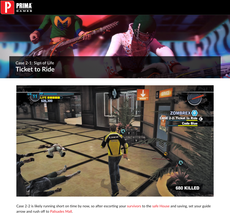

Call out to your other comrades and then save your progress here at the restroom before racing back to the safe House with your troop.

Tip

Mix up a few Quick steps at shots & awe as you motor back to the safe House—they'll soon come in handy.

Case 2.1: Sign of Life

Ticket to Ride

Case 2.1 is likely running short on time by now, so after escorting your survivors to the safe House and saving, set your guide arrow and rush off to Pahuatec Mall.

Construct a spiked bat on the way and then down a Quick stop to hasten the trip.

Tip

Cut through Hat Exchcoonery rear maintenance hall to reach Pahuatec Mall more quickly.

Streak to the far end of Pahuatec Mall and locate a door that leads to Fortune City's Underground. The door is marked with orange signage that reads "service" and the guide arrow leads you directly to it.

After moving through the door, head downstairs and save your game at the restroom at the front of the stairs. You're about to begin a challenging mission.

SPOILER - Just beyond the stairwell, Chuck spies a group of workers in orange uniforms who are milling about a warehouse. A train soon pulls up, and none other than Tyrone "T.K" King, the obnoxious voice of the "Terror in Reality" game show, steps off.

What could that clown possibly have to do with all of this?

The men notice Chuck, after hearing a good laugh, T.K. orders his cronies after him. Looks like you'll need to fight your way out of this.

MERCENARY MASH-UP

The men in orange suits are hired mercenaries, and each one carries a rapid-fire assault rifle. Take cover behind the warehouses' tall shelves and time their firing patterns, popping out to let lose with your spiked bat between bursts.

The mercenaries' gunfire is surprisingly weak, so don't worry about being shot a few times. Be aggressive, using the shelves as cover only when you're not hunting in a mercenary's brains. Defeat all three orange-clad thugs to advance.

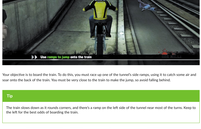

HIGH-SPEED PURSUIT

T.K.'s mercenaries didn't get the job done, and the gutless villain isn't about to hang around. He orders his remaining men to board the train, and quickly departs.

Chuck manages to knock a mercenary straggler off a motorbike. Seeing a golden opportunity, he quickly hops onto the bike and races off to catch up to the crooked game show host.

Hit the gas and get after that train, brewer. The mercenaries near the back will open fire and toss debris at you, some of which is dangerously explosive. Do your best to avoid being hit as you race onward.

Your objective is to board the train. To do this, you must race up one of the tunnel's side ramps, using it to catch some air and soar onto the back of the train. You must be very close to the train to make the jump, so avoid falling behind.

Tip

The train slows down as it rounds corners, and there's a ramp on the left side of the tunnel near most of the turns. Keep to the left for the best odds of boarding the train.

Keep speeding toward the train and leaping off ramps until you at last manage to sail aboard. Time for some payback, punks!

Tip

If you waste too much time chasing after the train, consider loading your previous save and trying again.

It's possible to board the train very quickly once you get a feel for the event, but it's also easy to burn lots of time fruitlessly hooping around the Underground.

TICKETS PLEASE

You face many more armed mercenaries aboard the train. Dispatch them as you did the previous trio. Hide behind objects, wait for breaks in their firing patterns, then rush out and clobber them with your spiked bat.

If all of your foes have been broken by now, a handy sledgehammer sits near your starting position on the train, and there are plenty of other weapons to be had as well.

Tip

After killing the first mercenary, grab the assault rifle he was wielding and put it to good use against the rest. Ranged weapons such as these tend to work better if you hold the aim button while firing.

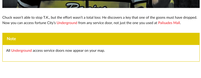

Make a slow, calculated advance up the train, dispatching each mere you encounter in turn. Don't hesitate to retreat and consume restoratives if Chuck is gravely wounded—you'll find lots of orange juice and other healing items aboard.

Secure the train, then examine the far door to at last approach the lead car, T.K. applauds Chuck's heroics, but he isn't about to get caught so easily.

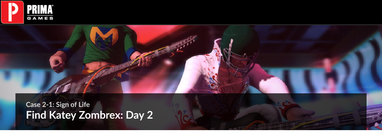

He suddenly uncouples his car, then quickly opens fire on Chuck, forcing our hero to duck while the villain makes good his escape.

Chuck wasn't able to stop T.K., but the effort wasn't a total loss. He discovers a key that one of the goons must have dropped. Now you can access Fortune City's Underground from any service door, not just the one you used at Pahuatec Mall.

Note

All Underground access service doors now appear on your map.

Case 2-1: Sign of Life

Find Katey Zombrex: Day 2

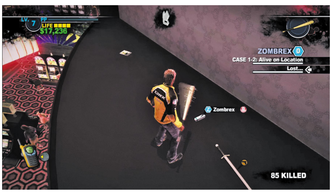

Case 3 doesn't kick off for a while yet, but Stacey calls Chuck shortly after he pockets the Underground access Key, reminding him that Katey will need another dose of Zombrex soon.

No worries: if you followed this walkthrough carefully, you already found Zombrex on Americana Casino's hidden ledge. Don't worry if you haven't acquired any Zombrex yet; we'll soon show you how to score some.

For now, run north along the tunnel, heading for the service door that leads up to Americana Casino. Go upstairs to reach the casino floor.

If you didn't grab the Zombrex from the Americana Casino before, enter Bonnie Jack's BBQ shack and sprint upstairs to its second floor.

Hop onto the counter to the left of the upstairs fire pit, then leap along the hanging light fixtures to reach a secret ledge, where a dose of Zombrex awaits.

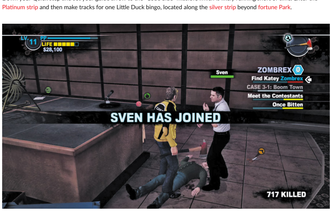

KILLING TIME: PART 2

Now that you've got Zombrex, it's time to complete some more side missions. Remember, you can't give little Katey her medicine until 7:00 am, so let's be constructive with the free time you've got. Begin by mixing up a Quick step at shots & awe if you haven't got one.

SIDE MISSION: CODE BLUE

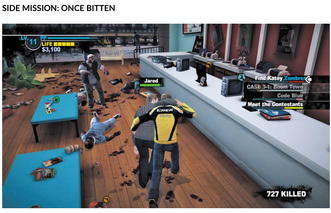

Down your Quick step and set your guide arrow to the "Code blue" mission, which is likely running short of time. Enter the Platinum strip and then make tracks for one Little Duck bingo, located along the silver strip beyond fortune Park.

Inside, you find a paramedic named Sven who's vainly attempting to resuscitate a goner named Tim Duggan. Poor Tim can't be saved, but Sven certainly can. Speak to Sven until he agrees to join you, then immediately tune your guide arrow to the "once bitten" task.

> Note
>
> If you didn't have time to locate Lenny after defeating Ted and taming snowflake before, now's the time to do so. Lead Sven to Yucatan Casino and find Lenny inside the south VIP room.
>
> Follow Lenny to the casino's control room and turn on the slots, then lead Lenny and Sven through the food Court and slot Ranch Casino, heading for the "once bitten" side mission.

SIDE MISSION: ONCE BITTEN

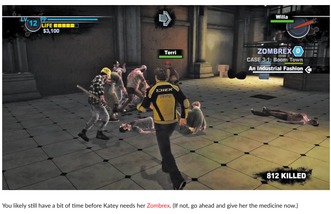

Take an escalator up to the plaza's second floor and follow the guide arrow to locate a man named Jared, who's slumped down on the floor, bleeding profusely from a nasty zombie bite.

Give Jared your Zombrex to save his life and get him to join you, then lend him a shoulder and lead your two survivors back to the safe House.

> Note
>
> Don't worry about giving your Zombrex to Jared: Sven hands you a free dose after you bring him back to the safe House!

SIDE MISSION: AN INDUSTRIAL FASHION

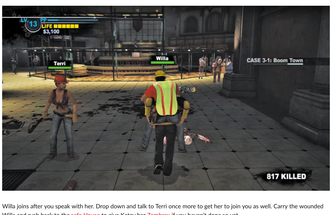

You likely still have a bit of time before Katey needs her Zombrex. (If not, go ahead and give her the medicine now.)

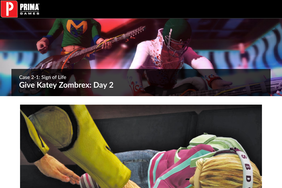

Exit the safe House and tune your guide arrow to "an industrial fashion" then follow the guide arrow to south Plaza, where you find two female construction workers fighting for their lives against the undead.

Help Terri clear out the undead, then speak with her. She won't come with you until you check on her friend, Willa. Climb onto the nearby crate and scaffolding to speak with Willa, who's badly wounded.

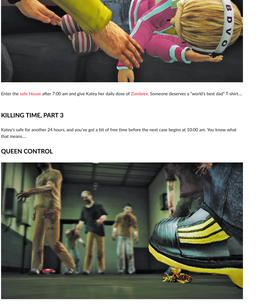

Willa joins after you speak with her. Drop down and talk to Terri once more to get her to join you as well. Carry the wounded Willa and rush back to the safe House to give Katey her Zombrex if you haven't done so yet.

Case 2-1: Sign of Life

Give Katey Zombrex: Day 2

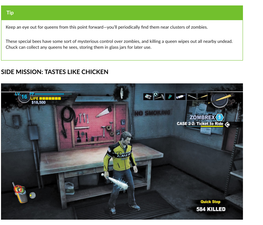

Enter the safe House after 7:00 am and give Katey her daily dose of Zombrex. Someone deserves a "world's best dad" T-shirt...

KILLING TIME, PART 3

Katey's safe for another 24 hours, and you've got a bit of free time before the next case begins at 10:00 am. You know what that means...

QUEEN CONTROL

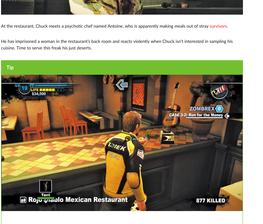

On his way out of the safe House, Chuck notices a mob of zombies, along with an annoying little bee. Chuck swats the pest from the air, then steps on it. Surprisingly, this causes all of the nearby zombies' heads to explode!

Tip

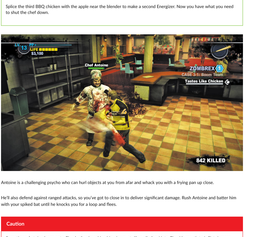

Keep an eye out for queens from this point forward—you'll periodically find them near clusters of zombies.

These special bees have some sort of mysterious control over zombies, and killing a queen wipes out all nearby undead. Chuck can collect any queens he sees, storing them in glass jars for later use.

SIDE MISSION: TASTES LIKE CHICKEN

After the queen scene plays out, duck into the maintenance room and construct a couple of spiked bats. If you're low on food, load up on coffee creamer at The Dark Bean before making your way to the Food Court's Cocina Demenzi.

At the restaurant, Chuck meets a psychotic chef named Antoine, who is apparently making meals out of stray survivors.

He has imprisoned a woman in the restaurant's back room and reacts violently when Chuck isn't interested in sampling his cuisine. Time to serve this freak his just deserts.

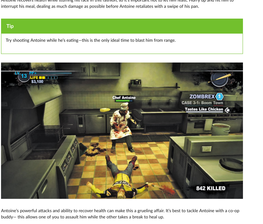

Tip

Antoine can heal himself, so it's vital that you're able to do the same. If your food stock is lackluster, flee the restaurant after initiating the fight and grab three BBQ chickens from the nearby Wild West Grill House.

Bring these to the Rojo Diablo Mexican Restaurant and use the blender there to combine two of the BBQ chickens, creating an Energizer juice drink that restores six units of Chuck's health and makes him invincible for a short time.

Splice the third BBQ chicken with the apple near the blender to make a second Energizer. Now you have what you need to shut the chef down.

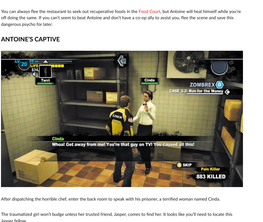

Antoine is a challenging psycho who can hurl objects at you from afar and whack you with a frying pan up close.

He'll also defend against ranged attacks, so you've got to close in to deliver significant damage. Rush Antoine and batter him with your spiked bat until he knocks you for a loop and flees.

Caution

Sometimes Antoine leaps onto Chuck after knocking him down, stuffing vile food into Chuck's mouth to inflict damage. Quickly imitate the onscreen commands to shuck off the chef before this attack causes much harm.

After running away, Antoine often moves to one of several food stations around the restaurant and begins gobbling up his sickening cuisine.

Antoine recovers health while stuffing his face in this fashion, so it's important not to let him feast. Hurry up and hit him to interrupt his meal, dealing as much damage as possible before Antoine retaliates with a swipe of his pan.

Tip

Try shooting Antoine while he's eating—this is the only ideal time to blast him from range.

Antoine's powerful attacks and ability to recover health can make this a grueling affair. It's best to tackle Antoine with a co-op buddy—this allows one of you to assault him while the other takes a break to heal up.

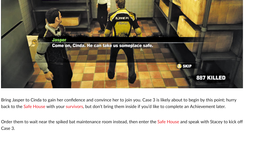

You can always flee the restaurant to seek out recuperative foods in the Food Court, but Antoine will heal himself while you're off doing the same. If you can't seem to beat Antoine and don't have a co-op ally to assist you, flee the scene and save this dangerous psycho for later.

ANTOINE'S CAPTIVE

After dispatching the horrible chef, enter the back room to speak with his prisoner, a terrified woman named Cinda.

The traumatized girl won't budge unless her trusted friend, Jasper, comes to find her. It looks like you'll need to locate this Jasper fellow.

Exit the restaurant and cross the Food Court, heading for the snack machines near Lombart's. Climb them to reach a secret area along the upper awnings.

Jasper is cowering up here; speak with him to gain his company. Take a moment to explore this area as well.

You'll find two boxes armed up here, along with some dynamite, and a Bargaining 2 magazine, which lowers the cost of pawnshop items by 10 percent

Grab a bow and arrow and a stick of dynamite if you feel like testing out the blambow, whose combo card you discovered in the Food Court earlier (it's on the wall near the Wild West Grill House).

Bring Jasper to Cinda to gain her confidence and convince her to join you. Case 3 is likely about to begin by this point; hurry back to the Safe House with your survivors, but don't bring them inside if you'd like to complete an Achievement later.

Order them to wait near the spiked bat maintenance room instead, then enter the Safe House and speak with Stacey to kick off Case 3.

Case 3-1

SPOILER - Arriving at the Safe House's security room, Chuck informs Stacey and Rebecca that he believes Tyrone "T.K." King is responsible for the outbreak, and for framing him.

Suddenly, an explosion rocks the place—shocking her monitors, Stacey discovers men are attempting to break into Fortune City's casino vault. With no other leads to work with, Chuck vows to stop the criminals.

CASE 3-2: RUN FOR THE MONEY

You may have a few side missions to check on, but Case 3-2 is quite involved, so it's best to get to work on it right away.

Head for Americana Casino's vault, grabbing a fresh spiked bat and some restoratives on your way (as usual). If you rescued Jasper and Cinda from the psychotic chef Antoine before, ensure that they follow you.

SPOILER - Shots ring out as you near the vault—armed mercenaries aren't about to let you foil their team's plans. Say, these guys look familiar—they're T.K.'s hired goons! That greedy villain must be behind these robberies!

Batter T.K.'s men with your bat between bursts of assault rifle fire. Use the environment to your advantage and try not to expose yourself to more than one or two execs at a time.

Tip

Run sideways to make it harder for the execs to hit you.

Slaughter all the mercenaries, then start swinging at the massive drill they're using to crack the vault door. Keep whaling away with the drill becomes inoperable.

We some Pain Killers at Shots & Ave and construct a fresh spiked bat on your way to Skin Ranch Casino, where another vault is being robbed. You find a similar task here: wipe out the mercenaries, then destroy their drill.

Tip

Remember to food food to your followers, healing them up when they suffer harm.

SIDE MISSION: ROCK HEROES

Before moving on to the third vault at Fortune Casino, lead Jasper and Cinda to the Blue Stage's giant rock stage, where you discover a trio of metal heads hanging out tunes for a crowd of rabid zombies.

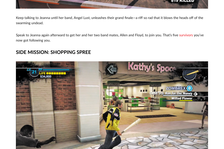

Climb up on stage to speak to the lead rocker, a righteous chick named Joanna.

Keep talking to Joanna until her band, Angel Dust, unleashes their grand finale: a riff so rad that it blows the heads off of the zooming zombies.

Speak to Joanna again afterward to get her and her two band mates, Allen and Floyd, to join you. That's five survivors you've now got following you.

SIDE MISSION: SHOPPING SPREE

Continue to ignore the Fortune Casino's vault robbers as you lead your gang into Royal Flush Plaza. Take an escalator up to its second floor and visit Kathy's Spoon, where three women are having difficulty carrying their giant pile of shopping boxes home.

Lend the ladies a hand by offering to carry the shopping boxes for them. You thus acquire three more survivors. That makes eight faithful followers—enough to satisfy the "Come on! Follow me!" Achievement!

SIDE MISSION: WILTED FLOWER

Lead your eight survivors back to the Safe House for a dialogue of PP that is sure to lead Chuck up multiple times.

Free of followers at last, make your way to Shots & Ave and ride up two or three Quick Steps. Use these to reach Palisades Hall with all speed and enter the Nexus Touch Spa to explore the "Wilted Flower" side mission.

Enter the spa's back room to find a young woman named Linette, who became stuck inside a tanning bed during the outbreak. The poor girl now matches the sharp-toothed tanning bed's color perfectly.

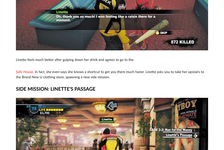

Naturally, Linette is terribly parched from her ordeal. If you don't have any sort of beverage in hand but, visit the back room and locate a cup of coffee or a bottle inside the store's main area. This does the trick!

Linette feels much better after guzzling down her drink and agrees to go to the Safe House. In fact, she even says she knows a shortcut to get you there much faster. Linette asks you to take her upstairs to the Brand New Clothing store, opening a new side mission.

SIDE MISSION: LINETTE'S PASSAGE

Linette is too sore to move very fast—pick her up and carry her out of Nexus Touch Spa, heading for the nearest escalator. Hurry up to the mall's second floor.

Enter the Brand New U clothing store. Linette says the short cut run through the rear changing rooms and links to Royal Flush Plaza, which is right near the Safe House. Examine the changing rooms to discover Linette's secret passage!

Bingo! You appear in Royal Flush Plaza's restroom, just as Linette promised. The Safe House is just a short jog away. Funny that Linette knew of a shortcut to the men's room, however...

Linette did you a huge favor, the least you could do is hurry the girl back to the Safe House. Rush there with out delay to pocket some PP, then return your attention to more urgent matters.

Case 3-1

Back to Business

Use Linette's shortcut to quickly reach the Yucatan Casino vault, then lay waste to the mercenary thieves you find there. Then destroy the third and final drill to advance the plot.

Tip

Each time you use Linette's shortcut to reach the Palisades Mall, you emerge right near a blender.

Simply vault the second floor railing to drop to the mall's main floor, then enter the central grotto to find a blender at the bar.

Bring coffee and creamers here from The Dark Bean if you plan to mix up Quick Steps, or toss vodka and cocktails into the blender to create Pain Killers. Refer to the "Appendix" chapter of this guide for a complete list of juice drinks.

VAN DAMAGE

You've ruined the thieves' scheme; now you must prevent their getaway. A new Case 3-2 objective marker appears at Fortune Park— exit Yucatan Casino via the south doors to reach the Silver Strip.

Load up on food at Luaii Wauii or Pub O' Gold on your way to the case objective.

The remaining mercenaries make a final stand near their getaway van, and there are a lot of them. Kill them all with out mercy, using their own assault rifles to gun them down.

Be prepared to flee and consume food if Chuck's health drops low. Pub O' Gold is your nearest source of curatives and it also has a useful blender.

After securing the site, turn your ire against the getaway van itself. Punish the vehicle until it is destroyed, at last completing Case 3-2.

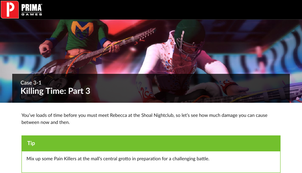

Note

The next time you visit this area, you'll be able to pass through the gaping hole that remains in the wall where the thieves van was parked. This serves as a small yet functional shortcut between Fortune Park and the Atlantica Casino vault.

Rebecca was taping the entire battle between Chuck and T.K.'s goons, and the savvy reprter is now starting to believe that Chuck may be innocent.

At last she agrees to arrange a meeting between Chuck and her source - the person who gave her the tape that seemingly showed Chuck causing the outbreak. Rebecca tells our hero to meet her at the Shoal Nightclub at 11:00PM, the departs. Way to go!

Case 3-1
Killing Time: Part 3

You've loads of time before you must meet Rebecca at the Shoal NightClub, so let's see how much damage you can cause between now and then.

Tip

Mix up some Pain Killers at the mall's central grotto in preparation for a challenging battle.

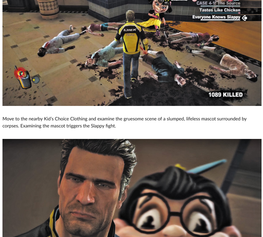

Swing by the High-Noon Shooting Range on the mall's second floor, where a host of firearms is available for the taking.

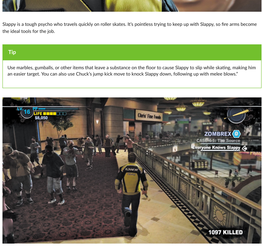

Swipe two shotguns from the racks behind the counter, then head for the Severed Ties kiosk at the opposite end of the second floor, closer to your objective.

Tip

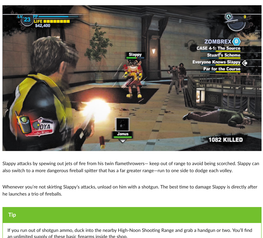

Naturally, it's much easier to defeat Slappy with two Chucks instead of one. Have a co-op buddy join you and take down Slappy twice as fast!

Hop on to the top of the Severed Ties kiosk to discover a third shotgun sitting atop the circular sign. With three shotguns and a number of Pain Killers in your inventory, you're ready to fight a psycho.

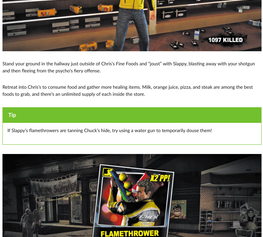

Move to the nearby Kid's Choice Clothing and examine the gruesome scene of a slumped, lifeless mascot surrounded by corpses. Examining the mascot triggers the Slappy fight.

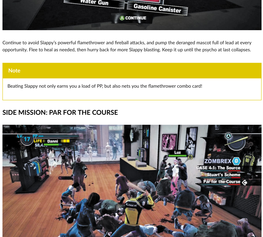

Slappy is a tough psycho who travels quickly on roller skates. It's pointless trying to keep up with Slappy, so fire arms become the ideal tools for the job.

Tip

Use marbles, gumballs, or other items that leave a substance on the floor to cause Slappy to slip while skating, making him an easier target. You can also use Chuck's jump kick move to knock Slappy down, following up with melee blows."

The moment the showdown begins, immediately run away from Slappy, heading for Chris's Fine Foods. It's quite a hike, but Chris's is the ideal place to battle Slappy because it's stocked with nutritional num-nums.

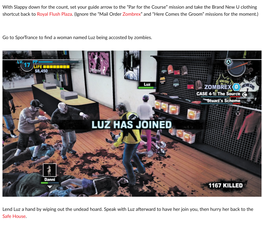

Slappy attacks by spewing out jets of fire from his twin flamethrowers—keep out of range to avoid being scorched. Slappy can also switch to a more dangerous fireball splitter that has a far greater range—run to one side to dodge each volley.

Whenever you're not skirting Slappy's attacks, unload on him with a shotgun. The best time to damage Slappy is directly after he launches a trio of fireballs.

Tip

If you run out of shotgun ammo, duck into the nearby High-Noon Shooting Range and grab a handgun or two. You'll find an unlimited supply of these basic firearms inside the shop.

Stand your ground in the hallway just outside of Chris's Fine Foods and "joust" with Slappy, blasting away with your shotgun and then fleeing from the psycho's fiery offense.

Retreat into Chris's to consume food and gather more healing items. Milk, orange juice, pizza, and steak are among the best foods to grab, and there's an unlimited supply of each inside the store.

Tip

If Slappy's flamethrowers are tanning Chuck's hide, try using a water gun to temporarily douse them!

Continue to avoid Slappy's powerful flamethrower and fireball attacks, and pump the deranged mascot full of lead at every opportunity. Flee to heal as needed, then hurry back for more Slappy blasting. Keep it up until the psycho at last collapses.

Note

Beating Slappy not only earns you a load of PP, but also nets you the flamethrower combo card!

SIDE MISSION: PAR FOR THE COURSE

With Slappy down for the count, set your guide arrow to the "Par for the Course" mission and take the Brand New U clothing shortcut back to Royal Flush Plaza. Ignore the "Mall Order Zombies" and "Here Comes the Groom" missions for the moment.)

Go to SporTacos to find a woman named Luz being accosted by zombies.

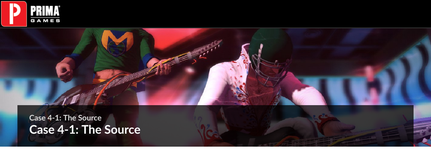

Lend Luz a hand by wiping out the undead hoard. Speak with Luz afterward to have her join you, then hurry her back to the Safe House.

SIDE MISSION: STUART'S SCHEME

If you rescued Stuart Holmes earlier in the game (during the "Worker's Compensation" side mission), you'll now find him standing near the Safe House's restroom, all in a huff.

Speak with Stuart multiple times to get him to calm him down, thereby preventing a mutiny within the Safe House. You also pocket a tidy sum of PP for completing this easy task.

Save your game and build a couple of spiked bats on your way to the Rastan Casino's Shoal NightsLib—it's time to tackle Case 4.

Case 4-1: The Source

A few active side missions await your attention, but time's running short on Case 4-1. Set your guide arrow and build two spiked bats on your way to Royal Flush Plaza's restroom shortcut, saving your progress before traveling through.

Tip

After exiting the shortcut, make a quick stop at Palisades Mall's grotto bar and stock up on Pain Killers—Rebecca's source is not the friendly sort!

Follow the guide arrow through Palisades Mall and into Yucatan Casino. Zombies swarm the tunnel leading to the private nightclub where Rebecca asked you to meet her. Lay into them with a spiked bat to preserve your health as you press toward your objective.

SOURCE OF EVIL

SPOILER : Arriving at the Shoal Nightclub, Chuck finds Rebecca in a compromising position. She's been bound and is being held captive by none other than Amber and Crystal Bailey—the gorgeous twins from the Terror Is Reality show!

The two women are clearly in cahoots with T.K., and they're determined to put an end to Chuck's meddling in their affairs.

Remain in the center of the club, where you have the most room to move. Spin your view around until you see one or both of the girls rush you with their razor-sharp swords, then start running to avoid their attacks.

Tip

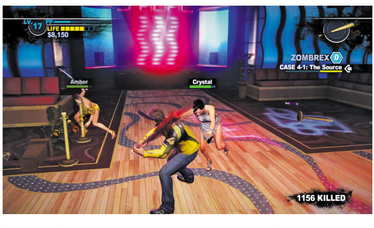

If you've unlocked the Dodge Roll skill, make liberal use of it to skirt the twins' swift sword strikes. Things unlock at random as Chuck levels up, however, so it's possible you may not have acquired the Dodge Roll skill just yet.

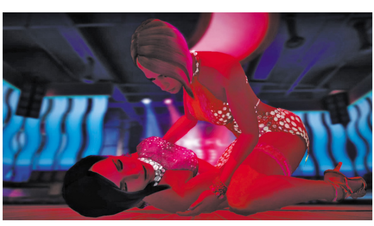

Whether or not you're hit by the twins, quickly counter with a barrage of bat strikes until one of the girls knocks you down and they both flee. As with most psycho fights, focus on pouring on the damage at every opportunity.

Tip

If you're lucky and the twins attack simultaneously, you can hit both of them with each swing of your spiked bat

You only need to defeat one of the twins to bring this battle to an end, so keep that in mind. Inflict as much pain as you can when they close in, consuming food when the femmes fatales flee to the shadows.

Seeing her beloved sister murdered before her eyes, the remaining twin spits curses at Chuck before taking her own life. There's two more pointless deaths caused by T.K.'s insatiable greed.

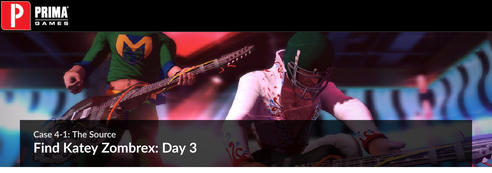

SPOILER : Chuck hurries and unties Rebecca, who lightens the mood with some good news: While she was being held hostage, Rebecca overheard the twins saying that T.K. has a nevac chopper coming in.

The villain is planning to flee Fortune City with his ill-gotten wealth—but not if Chuck Greene has anything to say about it.

Tip

Try using one of the swords that the twins leave behind—these are rare and deadly weapons!

Case 4-1: The Source

Find Katey Zombrex: Day 3

It's almost that time again: Katey will need a fresh shot of Zombrex soon. Not to worry; there are several ways to obtain more of the precious drug. Let's take care of some more side missions during your search.

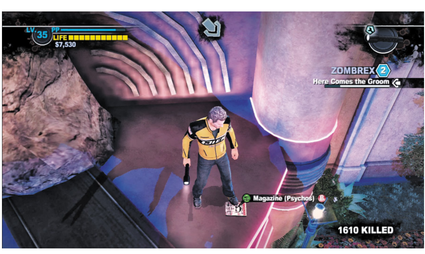

VALUABLE MAGAZINE PSYCHOS

Chuck most likely has a sizable inventory by now. (That's what all the ladies back at the Safe House are saying, anyway.)

This is, therefore, a perfect time to collect a very valuable magazine, Psychos. Exit the Yucatan Casino via its south doors and enter the Silver Strip.

Visit the Combo Bay at Silver Strip's north end and use Chuck's motorbike to quickly reach Cash Gordon's Casino, located along the Platinum Strip. Get off the bike and climb onto the snack machine outside the casino so you can reach the awning above.

Leap over to the neighboring awning to locate some gems and a flashlight—the makings for a laser sword. Keep going to discover the Psychos magazine, which gives Chuck 25 percent more PP from defeating psychopaths. This one's a keeper!

SIDE MISSION: HERE COMES THE GROOM

Now that you've found the Pyschos mag, let's get some use out of it. Get back on Chuck's bike and head for the Swept Away chapel, where yet another dangerous psychopath awaits.

Tip

If your spiked bat supply is low, collect two baseball bats from the Silver Strip's Barrel of Goods kiosk, then go north and enter the easternmost maintenance room at the Silver Strip's dead end, close to the Luaii Wauwii restaurant.

Combine your bats with the two boxes of nails found inside the maintenance room.

Need healing? Use Pub O' Gold's blender to mix up some Pain Killers. Then save your game at Fortune Park's central grotto before carrying on.

Inside the Swept Away Chapel, Chuck witnesses a horrific sight. A deranged lunatic named (appropriately enough) Randy has been capturing women, forcing the minister (his father) to marry them, and then doing God-knows-what with his newfound "brides."

This villain needs to have more than his vows broken, and Chuck's just the man to break stuff.

Randy is much faster than he looks, and his chain saw attacks are vicious. Play cat and mouse around the chapel's pews and pillars, aiming to round on Randy after he charges and misses an attack.

Make certain to assail Randy from the side or rear—you don't want to touch that running chain saw!

Caution

Randy's rushing attacks are by far the worst. Don't let him charge into Chuck!

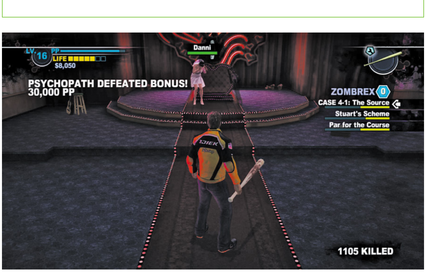

Whale on Randy every time he misses, or whenever he pauses to taunt you or catch his breath. These are also ideal times to consume food.

If Chuck becomes dangerously low on health, run around the pews with food in hand, waiting for Randy to miss or taunt Chuck before quickly gobbling it down.

Tip

You can always flee the chapel to acquire more curatives—the nearby Pub O' Gold is your best source.

Batter Randy relentlessly at every opportunity until the deviant is at last driven to hell. After Randy meets his timely demise, approach his prisoner, a young bride named Danni, and speak with her to get her to join you.

Try out the giant pink chain saw that Randy leaves behind—it's epically deadly!

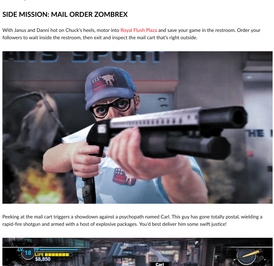

Case 4-1: The Source

Side Mission: Janus Survivor

With Danni following Chuck's lead, make your way to Fortune Park, heading for the entrance to Atlantica Casino.

If you don't have a firearm on hand, climb onto the standing poster display at the Silver Strip's south end the same one that gave you the pathfinder combo card and collect a handgun from up top.

A briefcase toting man named Janus is being harassed by zombies near the entrance to the Atlantica Casino. Wipe out the surrounding ghouls so you may speak with Janus, discovering that his case is full of moola.

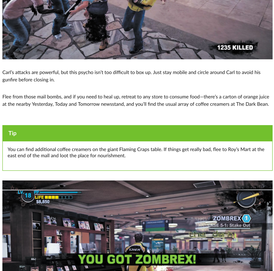

Janus won't accompany Chuck to the Safe House unless he's packing a firearm--good thing you grabbed that handgun a moment ago.

SIDE MISSION: MAIL ORDER ZOMBREX

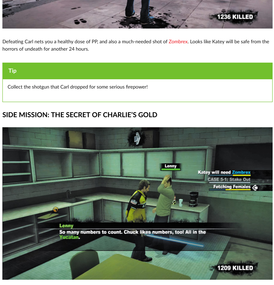

With Janus and Danni hot on Chuck's heels, motor into Royal Flush Plaza and save your game in the restroom. Order your followers to wait inside the restroom, then exit and inspect the mail cart that's right outside.

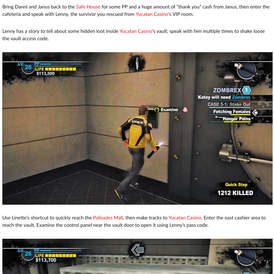

Peeking at the mail cart triggers a showdown against a psychopath named Carl. This guy has gone totally postal, wielding a rapid-fire shotgun and armed with a host of explosive packages. You'd best deliver him some swift justice!

Like Sloppy, Carl always fires his shotgun in bursts of three. Circle around Carl to avoid his shots, then quickly close in and deliver as much first-rate punishment as you can.

Eventually, Carl will whack you with his shotgun and flee. When Carl runs, he often hurls an explosive package or two at Chuck, along with a bit of postal humor, like "Special delivery!" Get moving--you don't want to be anywhere near he when Carl's packages go boom.

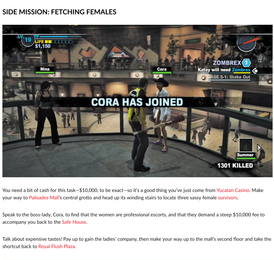

Carl's attacks are powerful, but this psycho isn't too difficult to box up. Just stay mobile and circle around Carl to avoid his gunfire before closing in.

Flee from those mail bombs, and if you need to heal up, retreat to any store to consume food--there's a carton of orange juice at the nearby Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow newsstand, and you'll find the usual array of coffee creamers at The Dark Bean.

Tip

You can find additional coffee creamers on the giant Flaming Craps table. If things get really bad, flee to Roy's Mart at the east end of the mall and loot the place for nourishment.

Defeating Carl nets you a healthy dose of PP, and also a much-needed shot of Zombrex. Looks like Katey will be safe from the horrors of undeath for another 24 hours.

Tip

Collect the shotgun that Carl dropped for some serious firepower!

SIDE MISSION: THE SECRET OF CHARLIE'S GOLD

You've got Katey's Zombrex, but there's still plenty of time between now and 7:00 AM.

Bring Danni and Janus back to the Safe House for some PP and a huge amount of "thank you" cash from Janus, then enter the cafeteria and speak with Lenny, the survivor you rescued from Yucatan Casino's VIP room.

Lenny has a story to tell about some hidden loot inside Yucatan Casino's vault: speak with him multiple times to shake loose the vault access code.

Use Linette's shortcut to quickly reach the Palisades Mall, then make tracks to Yucatan Casino. Enter the east cashier area to reach the vault. Examine the control panel near the vault door to open it using Lenny's pass code.

Once inside the vault, examine the lockbox that draws Chuck's eye. This nets you a tidy sum of cash; hurry back into Palisades Mall with your new found moola.

SIDE MISSION: FETCHING FEMALES

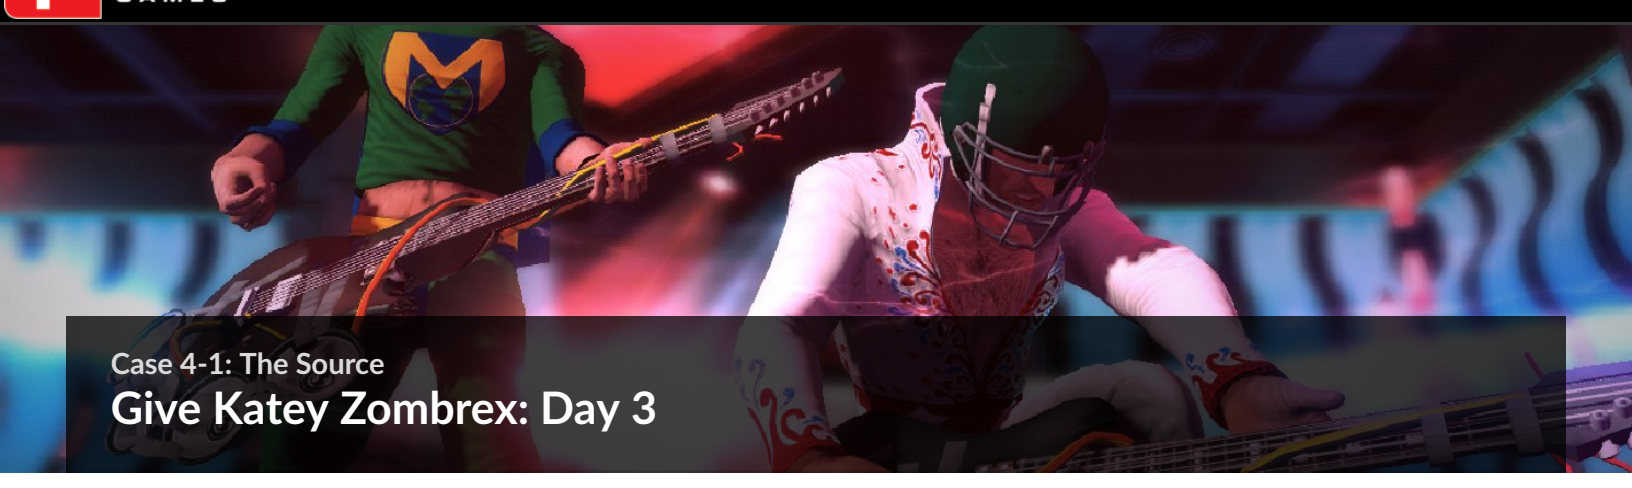

You need a bit of cash for this task--$10,000, to be exact--so it's a good thing you've just come from Yucatan Casino. Make your way to Palisades Mall's central grotto and head up its winding stairs to locate three sassy female survivors.

Speak to the boss-lady, Cora, to find that the women are professional escorts, and that they demand a steep $10,000 fee to accompany you back to the Safe House.

Talk about expensive tastes! Pay up to gain the ladies' company, then make your way up to the mall's second floor and take the shortcut back to Royal Flush Plaza.

Tip

Slide down the grotto's waterslide to give Chuck a rush--and some easy PP!

Case 4-1: The Source

Give Katey Zombrex: Day 3

Katey will be needing Zombrex by now, so give her a shot when you arrive at the Safe House with your three lovely escorts in tow. (Does Chuck know how to make an entrance or does Chuck know how to make an entrance?)

Speak with Lenny in the cafeteria afterward to complete the “Legend of Charlie’s Gold” side mission, then save your progress and head back into the fray.

SIDE MISSION: HUNGER PAINS

Grab a brownie, cake, or any sort of solid food item(no beverages) from The Dark Bean on your way out of the Safe House, then slip through Americana Casino on your way to the Platinum Strip.

Follow your guide arrow to Dining at Davey’s, where you find a portly man named Richard who is simply starving. Rich won’t budge an inch without food; hand him whatever goodie you plucked from The Dark Bean to satisfy his craving and convince him to join you.

Note

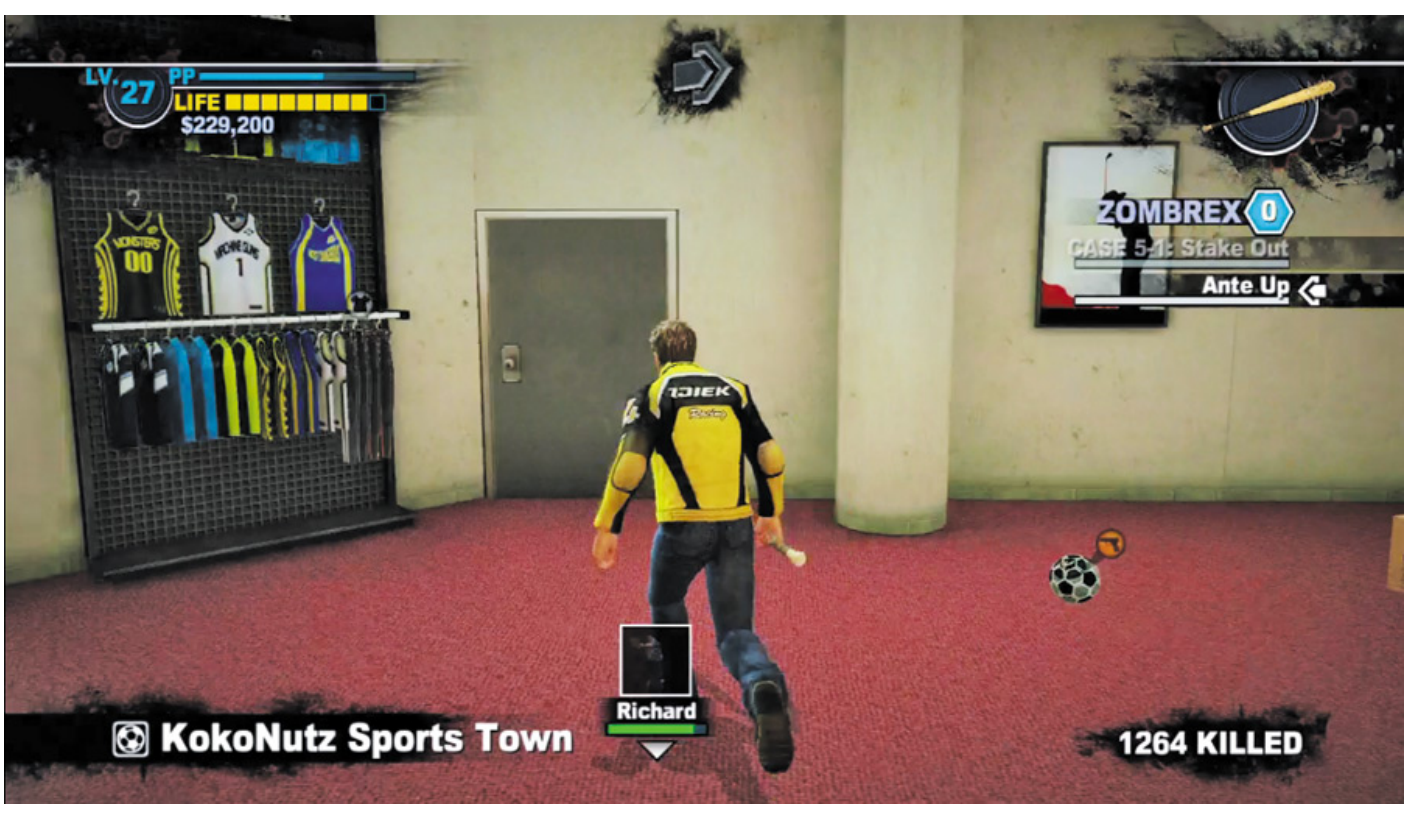

If you don’t have any food on hand, the nearest source is Juggz Bar & Grill, which is directly across the strip from Dining at Davey’s. Again, any solid food item will do the trick.

SIDE MISSION: TAPE IT OR DIE 1

With Richard following Chuck’s lead, run to the far north end of Silver Strip.

Enter Luaii Wauwii restaurant and collect some plates from the counter, then grab the cement saw that’s on the ground right outside the nearby maintenance room. (The one at the Silver Strip’s dead end.)

With plates and a cement saw in hand, lead Richard into Palisades Mall, taking the maintenance hall short cut through Hot Excitorama.

Visit KokoNutz Sports Town on the mall’s first floor and enter its back door, which is only unlocked between the hours of 6:00 AM and 12:00 PM on Day 3. Here Chuck encounters four survivors that he can’t persuade to join him.

Instead, one of the survivors, Wallace, asks Chuck to bring him some plates and a cement saw, which you’ve just acquired. Show these items to Wallace to obtain a secret combo card: the plate launcher!

Note

Don’t fret over these four survivors; you’ll have a chance to recruit them later in the adventure.

SIDE MISSION: ART APPRECIATION

Since you’re already kickin’ it at the Palisades Mall, head upstairs andvisit The Cleroux Collection, a schmancy art shop where you meet avery upset man named Randolph.

Speak to the sobbing fellow and agree to buy his funny painting for $3,000—you should easily have this amount on hand. This cheers Randolph up immensely and convinces him to join you.

Make sure to collect the funny painting you’ve just paid for—it’s an ideal gift for Katey and this is the only time you can obtain it!

Tip

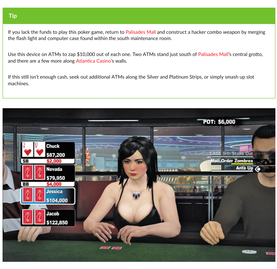

Pilfer a “peace art” plant from the art store before leaving—you’ll need it later and this will save you the trip.

Side Mission: High Rollers

With Richard and Randolph in your party, save your game at the nearby restroom on Palisades Mall's second floor, then proceed to Atlantica Casino.

Visit the casino's north poker room to encounter three hard-core gamblers who are looking for a fourth player for their high-stakes game of Texas Hold 'Em.

Play against these high rollers by examining the poker table.

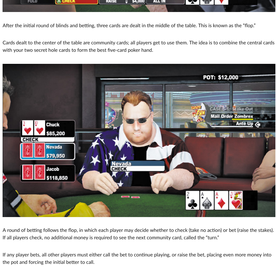

It costs you $100,000 to buy into the game, and you should easily have this amount if you've followed this walk through carefully saving Janus and completing Lenny's "The Secret of Charlie's Gold" side mission has lined your pockets with loads of paper.

Tip

If you lack the funds to play this poker game, return to Palisades Mall and construct a hacker combo weapon by merging the flash light and computer case found within the south maintenance room.

Use this device on ATMs to zap $10,000 out of each one. Two ATMs stand just south of Palisades Mall's central grotto, and there are a few more along Atlantica Casino's walls.

If this still isn't enough cash, seek out additional ATMs along the Silver and Platinum Strips, or simply smash up slot machines.

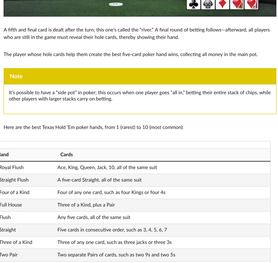

Luck of the draw plays a role in your success in poker, but it helps to understand the game. Here are the rules: Each player is dealt two "hole" cards, which only they may see. One player automatically posts the big blind (BB), a forced bet meant to stimulate action.

The player to the left of the big blind is forced to post the small blind (SB), which is always half of the big blind.

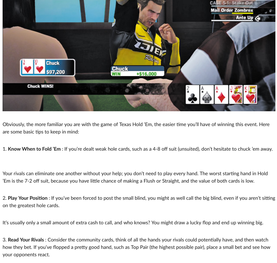

The remaining players have the option to review their hole cards before deciding whether to "call" the big blind (bet the same amount and play their hand) or "fold" (bet nothing and sit out the hand).

Players may also elect to "raise" on any turn (bet even more than the current wager); once a raise has been made, all other players must call the raise if they wish to continue playing the hand.

After the initial round of blinds and betting, three cards are dealt in the middle of the table. This is known as the "flop."

Cards dealt to the center of the table are community cards; all players get to use them. The idea is to combine the central cards with your two secret hole cards to form the best five-card poker hand.

A round of betting follows the flop, in which each player may decide whether to check (take no action) or bet (raise the stakes). If all players check, no additional money is required to see the next community card, called the "turn."

If any player bets, all other players must either call the bet to continue playing, or raise the bet, placing even more money into the pot and forcing the initial better to call.

The third option is to fold, forfeiting any money you've placed into the pot thus far and giving up on the hand.

A fifth and final card is dealt after the turn; this one's called the "river." A final round of betting follows—afterward, all players who are still in the game must reveal their hole cards, thereby showing their hand.

The player whose hole cards help them create the best five-card poker hand wins, collecting all money in the main pot.

Note

It's possible to have a "side pot" in poker; this occurs when one player goes "all in," betting their entire stack of chips, while other players with larger stacks carry on betting.

Here are the best Texas Hold 'Em poker hands, from 1 (rarest) to 10 (most common):

Hand	Cards
1. Royal Flush	Ace, King, Queen, Jack, 10, all of the same suit
2. Straight Flush	A five-card Straight, all of the same suit
3. Four of a Kind	Four of any one card, such as four Kings or four 4s
4. Full House	Three of a Kind, plus a Pair
5. Flush	Any five cards, all of the same suit
6. Straight	Five cards in consecutive order, such as 3, 4, 5, 6, 7
7. Three of a Kind	Three of any one card, such as three jacks or three 3s
8. Two Pair	Two separate Pairs of cards, such as two 9s and two 5s
9. One Pair	One Pair of cards, such as two aces or two 2s
10. High Card	If no player has made even one Pair, then the player with the highest hole card wins

Obviously, the more familiar you are with the game of Texas Hold 'Em, the easier time you'll have of winning this event. Here are some basic tips to keep in mind:

1. Know When to Fold 'Em : If you're dealt weak hole cards, such as a 4-8 off suit (unsuited), don't hesitate to chuck 'em away.

Your rivals can eliminate one another without your help; you don't need to play every hand. The worst starting hand in Hold 'Em is the 7-2 off suit, because you have little chance of making a flush or Straight, and the value of both cards is low.

2. Play Your Position : If you've been forced to post the small blind, you might as well call the big blind, even if you aren't sitting on the greatest hole cards.

Go ahead and play hands like queen-5 when it's cheap to buy in; fold them immediately otherwise.

3. Check and Trap : Even if you've made a great hand, such as flopping a Two Pair or Three of a Kind, consider checking instead of betting. This can entice your rivals to bet, assuming that your hand is weak.

Call each bet until you reach the river card, then make a bold raise and see if they fall for it. Even if they somehow have you beat, you've risked less money by checking and calling instead of betting and raising.

6. High Hands Are Rare : It's not very often that someone makes a Straight or Flush in a four-handed poker game—the odds are quite high against it.

If you've made Two Pair or Three of a Kind, feel confident that you've drawn the best hand, and play it accordingly. Even Top Pair can be a monster hand in a four-handed event.

7. Open Up at the End : Start playing more aggressively as players are eliminated from the game.

Lead out and bet with every hand before the flop—this works because players are far more likely to draw weak hole cards than strong ones in Texas Hold 'Em, and betting early will usually entice your rivals to fold.

However, if you're bluffing and you're called, expect that your rival has you beat and look for a way out. Pride has no place at the poker table.

Chuck must be the last player standing to win the "High Rollers" poker game, so be prepared to grind it out. The prize pool is well worth the effort: $1,000,000 goes into Chuck's pocket, and he gains the company of three more survivors!

Tip

Don't shy away from loading your last save if things don't go well at the table. No matter how good you are at poker, sometimes the cards come cold, landing you little chance of winning.

With a cool kit it'll your jacket and Run faithful followers at your flank, take the Govt jog across Fortune Park and enter Sol Ranch Casino, looking for a man named Woodrow who's fiddling with an ATM.

Beat back the surrounding zombies as you chat with Woodrow, who isn't about to let all of Fortune City's perfectly good money go to waste just because of little outbreak.

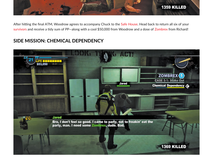

You'll likely witness a cinematic as you leave Atlantico Casino and enter Fortune Park, in which four psychotic snipers are introduced.

Ignore these snipers for now; they've taken up elevated positions around the Silver and Platinum Strips. We'll let you know when the time's right to fight them. Until then, just hurry through the strip to avoid being shot.

Caution

Follow Woodrow around Sol Ranch Casino and the Food Court as he "liberates" the cash stored in each of its ATMs. Keep the zombies away from Woodrow so he can complete his greedy scheme.

After hitting the final ATM, Woodrow agrees to accompany Chuck to the Safe House. Head back to return all six of your purchases and receive a tidy sum of $. along with a cool $10,000 from Woodrow and a dose of Zombies from Richard!

SIDE MISSION: CHEMICAL DEPENDENCY

If you rescued Jared Dorts during the "Once Bitten" mission, then he's likely in need of Zombrex by now. Fortunately for him, we're just acquainted an entire mid.

Follow the guide arrow to find Jared in rough shape. Be a pal and give him your spare Zombrex to spare his life and collect a huge XP bonus.

Tip

Don't forget to give little Kialey the funny patching you've been carrying around all this time: it'll set you some into PP.

SIDE MISSION: SLAVE TO FASHION AND WWWD

Three Side Job missions are best completed simultaneously. Both two subjects start on your way out of the Safe House and connect a Quick Step and some Pain Killers at Shots & Awe.

Use the Quick Step to hasten your journey to Fortune City Hotel.

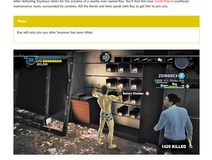

Locate a scantily-clad woman named Europa hiding behind some plants near the lobby elevators. She's too embarrassed to follow Chuck back to the Safe House unless Chuck is also nigh-nude.

Europa tells Chuck to undress at a shop in the South Point. Hey, whatever it takes!

While en route to the shop (which once appears on your map as an objective), you encounter a deranged security guard named Seymour who is taking the law into his own twisted hands by hanging innocent people in the square.

You can't allow this psycho to go on killing uninvited.

Seymour is armed with a handgun, and he's pretty quick on the draw. He's also packing a club for close-range attacks and can leave Chuck from medium-range to set up vicious wounds.

There's no science to wrapping this lunatic simply rush Seymour from the start and button him with relentless blows, interrupting his attack rhythm and keeping him on the defensive.

Pound Pain Killers as needed, but otherwise just keep pounding on Seymour.

Focus

As always, it's best to flee to a safe location before consuming food. There are plenty of nooks and crannies around South Point for you to explore.

After defeating Seymour, listen for the screams of a nearby man-named Ray. You'll find him near South Plaza's southeast maintenance room, surrounded by zombies. Kill the fiends and then speak with Ray to get him to join you.

Perks

Ray will only join you after Seymour has been killed.

Ray's about to get a whole lot more of Chuck Greene than he bargained for.

Continue to the clothing store that Europa has pointed out (it's marked as an objective on your map) and examine the underwear display to retrieve Chuck, stripping him down to his skivvies. Sorry, Ray—it's either this or death by zombies.

Huff it back to Europa to show her that Chuck's not afraid of running around in his undies. Impressed by our hero's bravado, Europa at last agrees to accompany Chuck back to the Safe House.

Don't load her down just yet, however—time is likely running out on the "Know When to Fold 'Em" task, which is easy to complete and not far away.

Focus

The next time you return to the Safe House, you can use the lockers inside the restroom to change back into Chuck's normal attire (if you wish). Or just jump into any clothing store you see to don some fresh duds. Europa won't mind!

SIDE MISSION: KNOW WHEN TO FOLD 'EM

Make tracks to the Steer Dry, meeting quickly to avoid being shot by those psychotic snipers. Head into the Shamrock Casino to speak with a real gambler near named Bill.

The house always wins, as they say, and poor Bill has had it all to playing the slots for far too long.

But, like any true addict, this guy won't budge until he's recouped his losses. Bail Bill out by handing him $20,000—you should easily have this if you helped Woodrow during the "Bank Run" mission.

Incredibly, Bill then demands another $5,000—hand this over as well to finally get him to see reason and join you.

SIDE MISSION: BENT WOOD

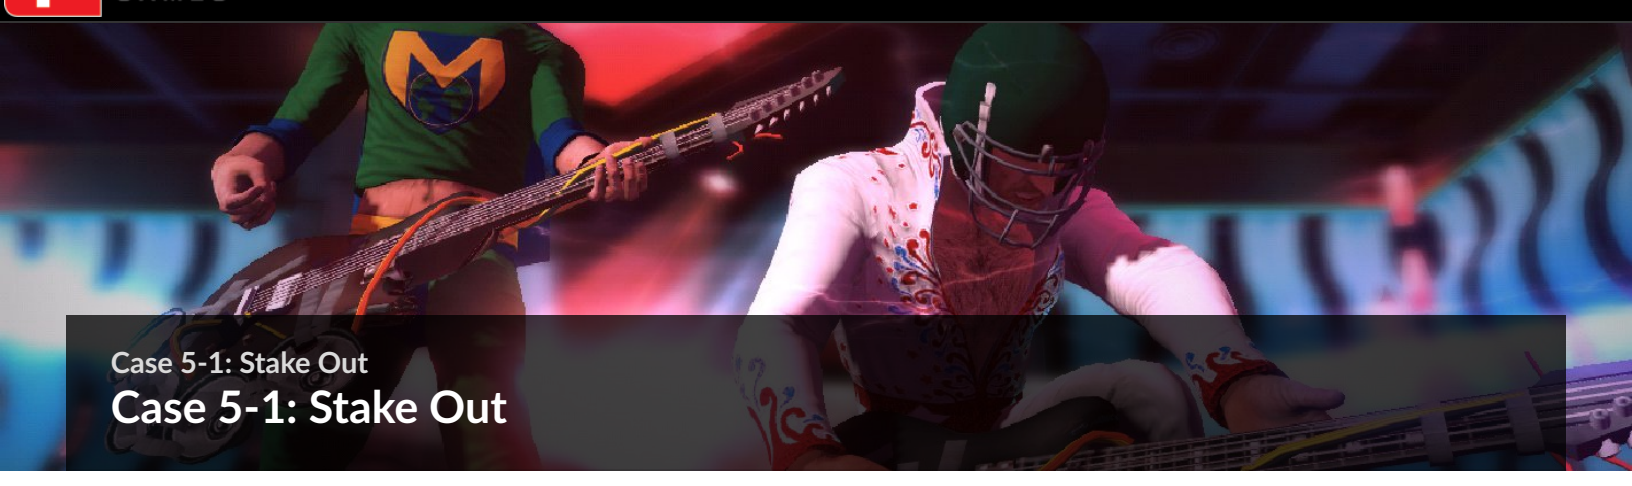

With Bill, Ray, and Europa following behind, hurry back to the Safe House, making a quick stop at Retail Flash Plaza's Spot Trees store on the way. Grab the golf club on the ground near the Cactus Cup mini-game—you'll soon find out why you need it.

Once you're back at the Safe House, pop by the lounge and speak with Luz, who's upset because she has no golf club with which to keep her skills sharp. Luz sets you to find her a club—but you're already one stroke ahead.

Hand her the one you've just collected to score some easy cash and PP.

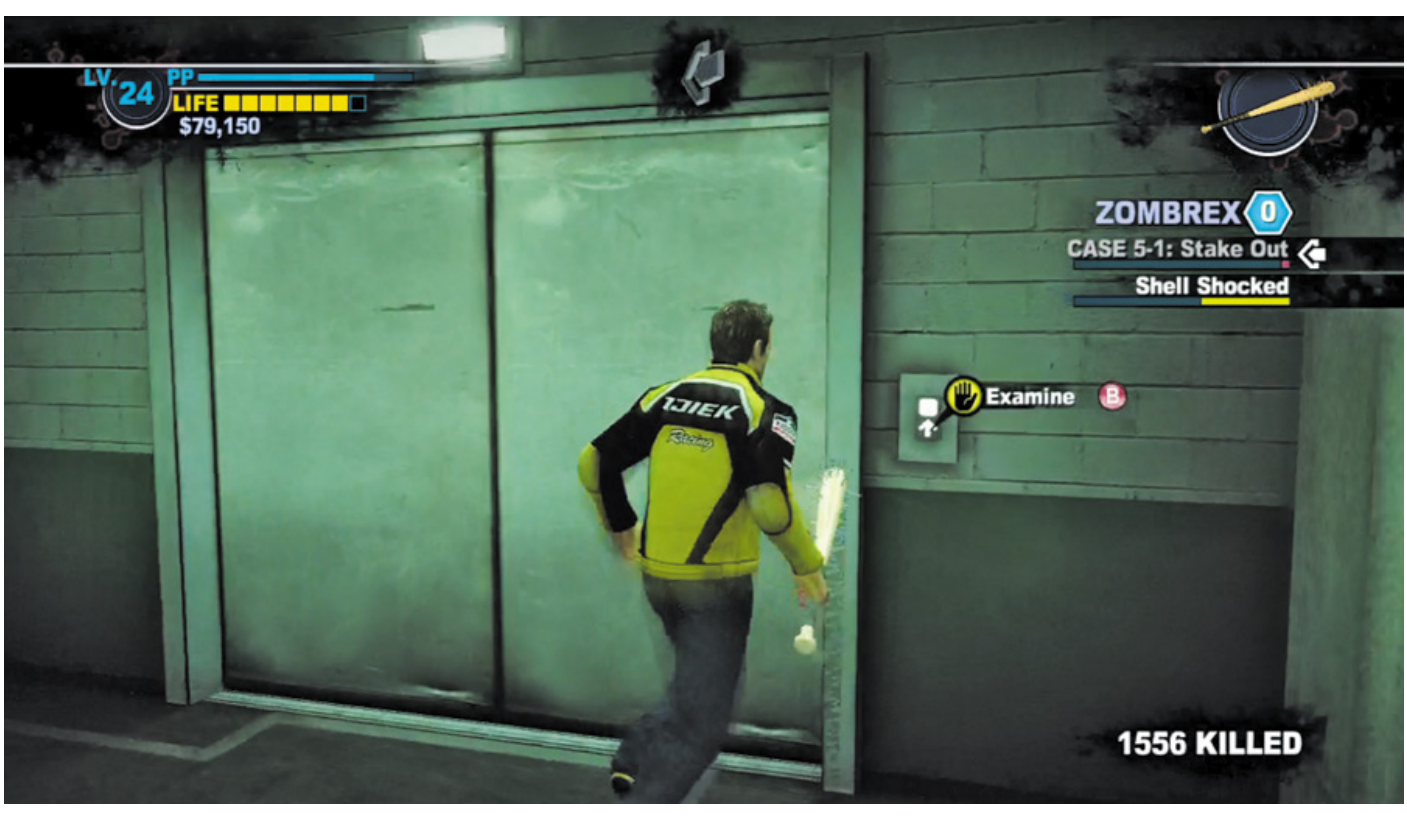

Tip

That's all the side missions you have time for at the moment—Case 5 is it about to begin. Save your game and then hurry to the Safe House's rooftop to attend your meeting with Rebecca.

Case 5-1: Stake Out

Case 5-1: Stake Out

As the clock nears 8:00 PM, Stacey calls Chuck to remind him that Rebecca is waiting for him on the Safe House roof. This is your cue that you may now begin Case 5-1. Tune the guide arrow and follow it to locate the elevator that brings you to the Safe House's rooftop.

Good as her word, Rebecca greets Chuck on the rooftop by handing him a pair of binoculars. T.K.'s chopper should be on its way, and Chuck silently monitors the horizon, scanning for its landing site.

SPOILER : Sure enough, Chuck spots T.K.'s chopper as it touches down on the roof of the Fortune City Hotel. That scum—there's no way T.K. is going to get away with this. Chuck hurries off to stop the madman once and for all.

SIDE MISSION: SHELL SHOCKED

A side mission is about to expire, so let's quickly tackle it before going after T.K. Head for the Americana Casino to locate a man named Dean, who has taken up position inside the American Historium.

Dean's a war veteran and knows his way around a firearm, but he can't stay holed up here forever.

Speak with Dean until he agrees to join you. Unfortunately, Dean's legs were wounded during his service, and he's not about to let Chuck carry him around like some help less cripple.

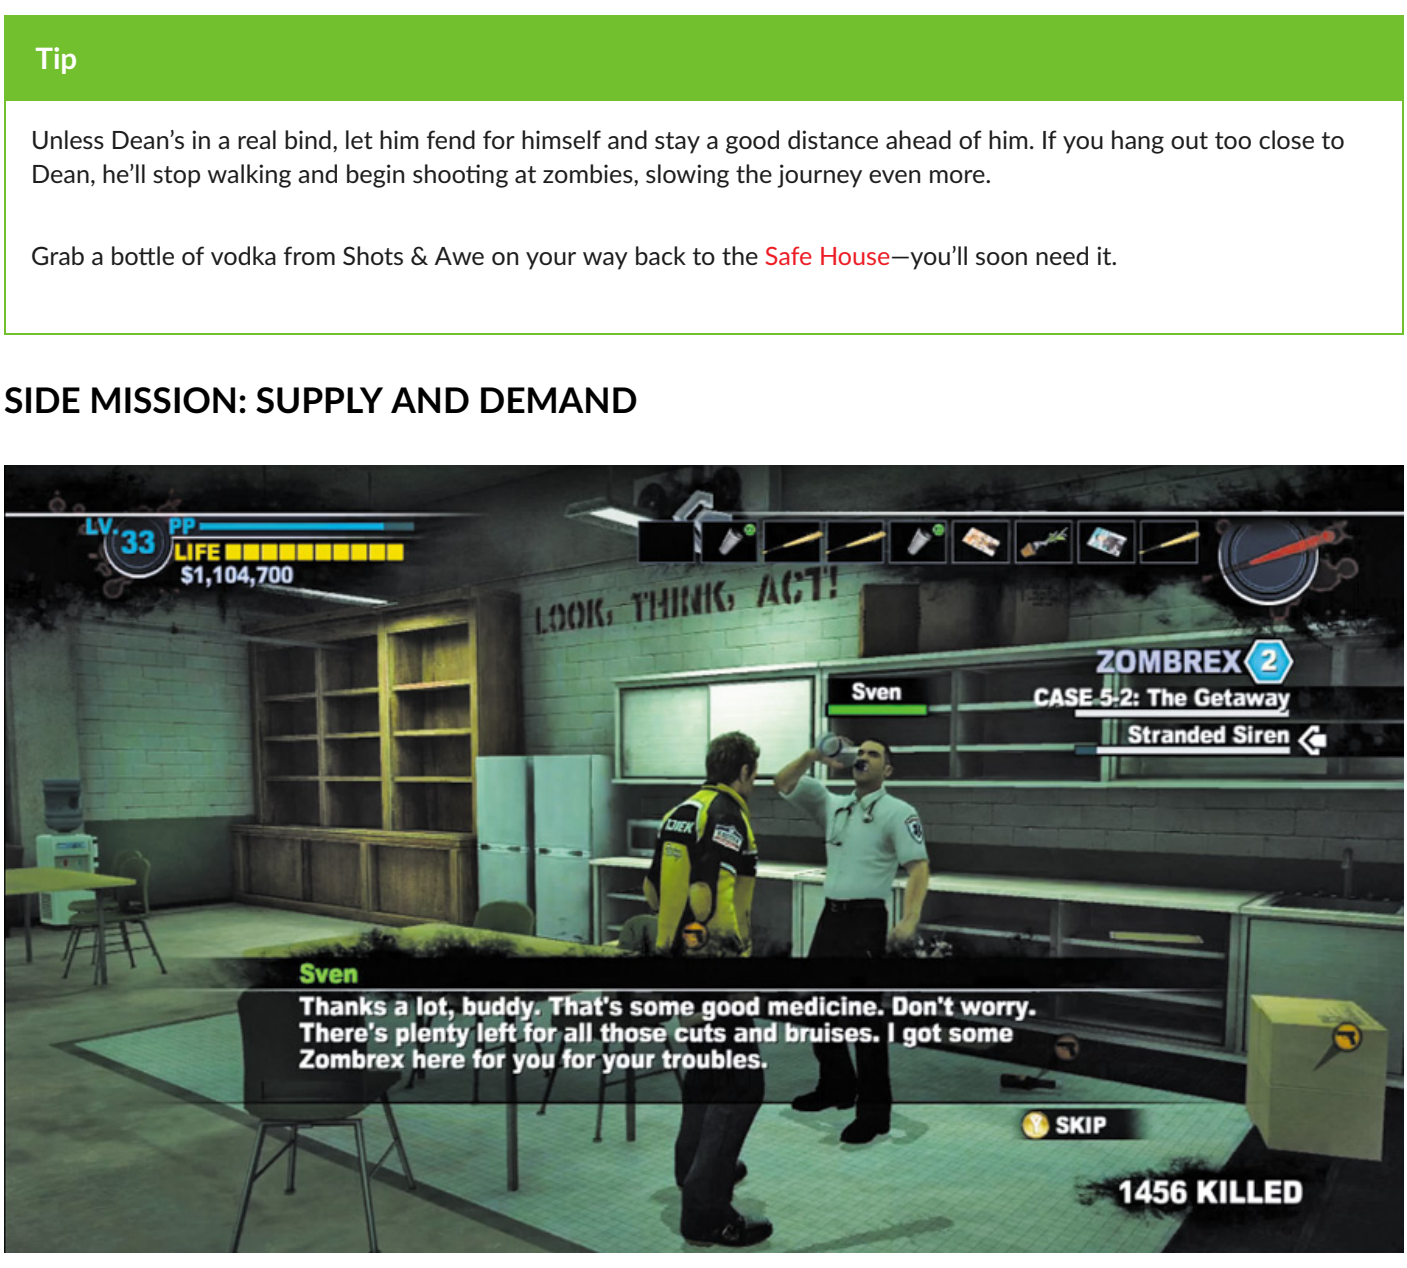

It's therefore slow going back to the Safe House, but at least it isn't far. Guide Dean back to ensure this hero doesn't meet a tragic end.

Tip

Unless Dean's in a real bind, let him fend for himself and stay a good distance ahead of him. If you hang out too close to Dean, he'll stop walking and begin shooting at zombies, slowing the journey even more.

Grab a bottle of vodka from Shots & Awe on your way back to the Safe House—you'll soon need it.

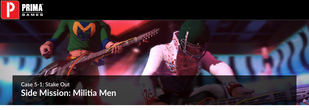

SIDE MISSION: SUPPLY AND DEMAND

Deliver Dean to the Safe House for a bit of PP, then visit the cafeteria and speak with Sven, assuming you rescued him during the "Code Blue" side mission a while back.

The good doctor has his hands full with treating all of the Safe House survivors and, with dwindling supplies, he asks Chuck to bring him some vodka or whiskey to use as a disinfectant.

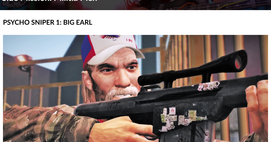

Hand Sven the bottle of booze you pilfered from Shots & Awe to complete this task in short order, gaining some easy PP. Sven is so thrilled, he also gives Chuck a spare dose of Zombrex in thanks!

Case 5-1: Side Out

Side Mission: Militia Men

PSYCHO SNIPER 1: BIG EARL

As you pass through Fortune Park anytime after 9:00 AM on Day 3, the scene shifts to show a quartet of gun-toting psychopaths picking shots at innocent survivors from an elevated position.

You've most likely seen this scene already; the time has come to bring these villains down. Craft two spiked bats on your way out of the Safe House and mix up some Quick Stops at Shots & Awe, downing one on your way to the Platinum Strip.

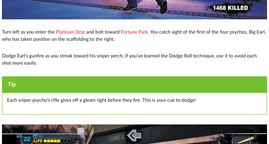

Turn left as you enter the Platinum Strip and bolt toward Fortune Park. You catch sight of the first of the four psychos, Big Earl, who has taken position on the scaffolding to the right.

Dodge Earl's gunfire as you streak toward his sniper perch; if you've learned the Dodge Roll technique, use it to avoid each shot more easily.

Tip

Each sniper psycho's rifle gives off a gleam right before they fire. This is your cue to dodge!

Don't worry if you don't have a ranged weapon; you'll be confronting these psychos head-on.

Hop onto the white cement blocks at the base of Big Earl's perch, using them to climb all the way up to the psycho. Time Earl's gunshots so you aren't hit while vaulting up to him.

Big Earl is dangerous at close range. He produces a deadly machete when you approach. He prefers to use his powerful rifle though, and will commonly flee to take aim from range.

Each time Big Earl misses, make him pay dearly with your spiked bat. Pile on the damage to dispatch this psycho fast.

Tip

Wolf down the food around each sniper's perch to replenish Chuck's health after each showdown. This helps you conserve juice drinks and the like for later use.

PSYCHO SNIPER 2: DEETZ

Deetz is stationed atop the roof of the Paradise Platinum Screens movie theater, which is directly across the strip from Big Earl's perch.

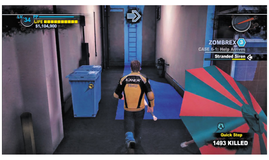

Head after dropping Big Earl, then cut across the strip, sprinting to the alley that runs behind Juggz Bar & Grill, where you discover a ladder.

Note

If for some reason Deetz is not visible atop the movie theater, enter the Americana Casino, then turn around and reenter the Platinum Strip to make Deetz appear. (He's a shy one.)

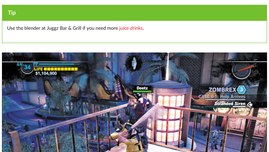

Tip

Use the blender at Juggz Bar & Grill if you need more juice drinks.

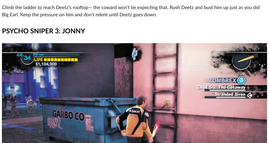

Climb the ladder to reach Deetz's rooftop— the coward won't be expecting that. Rush Deetz and bust him up just as you did Big Earl. Keep the pressure on him and don't relent until Deetz goes down.

PSYCHO SNIPER 3: JONNY

Descend the ladder after dispatching Deetz and then sprint through Fortune Park into the Silver Strip. Dash for the maintenance room to the left of the doors leading to Slot Ranch Casino, and scale the ladder you find near the maintenance room's door.

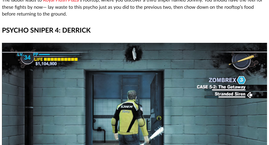

The ladder leads to Royal Flush Plaza's rooftop, where you discover a third sniper named Johnny. You should have the feel for these fights by now— by waste to this psycho just as you did to the previous two, then chow down on the rooftop's food before returning to the ground.

PSYCHO SNIPER 4: DERRICK

The final rooftop sniper, Derrick, has hunkered down atop the Atlantica Casino. To reach him, cut across the Silver Strip and enter the alley that's just south of Hot Excitorama.

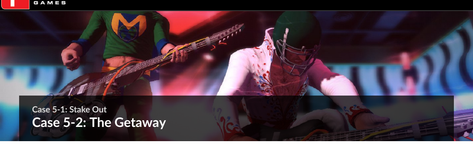

Follow the alley to its end, flinging open a door to locate a ladder.

Climb the ladder to confront Derrick on the roof, using the same tactics to eliminate this final sniper. Excellent work! Fortune City's strips are now much safer thanks to your courage.

Tip

Save your progress at Fortune Park's central grotto—you don't want to fight these four psychos again!

Case 5-2: The Getaway

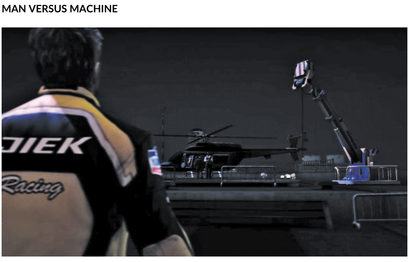

That's all the time you have for side missions—you've got to stop T.K.'s getaway. Hurry to Fortune City Hotel to encounter multiple armed mercenaries near the lobby elevators. Take your bat to 'em and wipe out each merc to claim 1,000 PP a pop.

The elevator arrives after you beat down the guards in the lobby, and one last hired gun steps out. Beat him senseless and then board the elevator, using the controls inside to reach the hotel's roof.

MAN VERSUS MACHINE

SPOILER : Chuck arrives just in time to witness T.K. loading untold amounts of ill-gotten cash onto his getaway chopper.

The villain tries to flee, but Chuck manages to hitch a crane winch onto his helicopter at the last second, preventing his escape. Time for some payback, buddy!

To down T.K.'s copter, you must damage it by hurling objects at it. Gunfire and similar ranged attacks won't work; only thrown objects can damage the whirlybird.

The moment the battle begins, quickly turn around and grab one of the spotlights on the helipad, then take aim and hurl it at T.K.'s ride.

Tip

It helps to approach the railing before throwing an object at the helicopter. Aim a little high and target the middle of the chopper for the best odds of scoring a hit.

The winch soon releases, cutting T.K. enough slack to fly around in circles, attempting to clothes line Chuck with the crane. You should have the Dodge Roll skill by this point—use it to roll under the crane each time it passes by.

Note

If you don't have the Dodge Roll skill, you'll need to flee to the far side of the helipad to escape the crane's reach. Stay mobile—the helicopter's gunner will fire on you as well!

A buzzer sounds after a short time (usually after T.K. makes two passes), and the winch controls become active again.

Hurry to the control station at the base of the crane and throw the winch to lock down the helicopter once more. Immediately grab another spotlight and hurl it at T.K.'s chopper to score more damage.

Or, if you're wounded, use the time to consume food instead. Repeat this pattern until T.K.'s chopper comes crashing down.

Tip

You can find more nourishment in the corner to the right of the rooftop elevator.

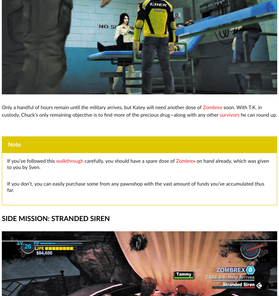

T.K.'s escape has been foiled, and the cretin is knocked unconscious in the helicopter's crash. Chuck wants answers and decides to bring his nemesis back to the Safe House for questioning.

Sullivan doesn't like it, but he agrees to keep watch over the unconscious mongrel. It won't be long before T.K. awakes....

Case 5-1: Stake Out

Find Katey Zombrex: Day 4

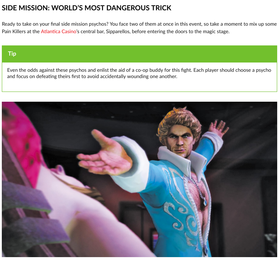

Only a handful of hours remain until the military arrives, but Katey will need another dose of Zombrex soon. With T.K. in custody, Chuck's only remaining objective is to find more of the precious drug—along with any other survivors he can round up.

Note

If you've followed this walkthrough carefully, you should have a spare dose of Zombrex on hand already, which was given to you by Sven.

If you don't, you can easily purchase some from any pawnshop with the vast amount of funds you've accumulated thus far.

SIDE MISSION: STRANDED SIREN

Time's running short on this task, so waste no time building a couple of spiked bats on your way out of the Safe House, taking Linette's shortcut to quickly reach the opposite side of the city. Rush to the Atlantica Casino after you emerge.

Follow the guide arrow to locate a woman named Tammy, who is wearing a sweet mermaid outfit. Unfortunately, the getup isn't conducive to fleeing from zombies.

Hop onto the giant clamshell and speak with Tammy to get her to join you—but don't carry her off that clamshell stand just yet!

SIDE MISSION: WORLD'S MOST DANGEROUS TRICK

Ready to take on your final side mission psychos? You face two of them at once in this event, so take a moment to mix up some Pain Killers at the Atlantica Casino's central bar, Sipparellos, before entering the doors to the magic stage.

Tip

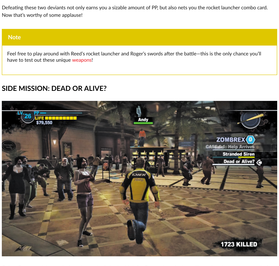

Even the odds against these psychos and enlist the aid of a co-op buddy for this fight. Each player should choose a psycho and focus on defeating theirs first to avoid accidentally wounding one another.

Approaching the stage, Chuck watches in horror as two would-be magicians attempt to saw a woman in half—and fail miserably.

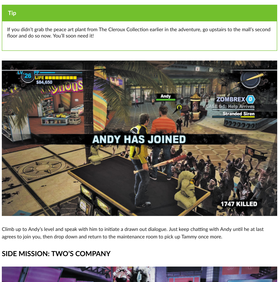

The two men don't enjoy Chuck's criticism and decide to teach him a little "disappearing" act. What a couple of cards! The talkative psycho, Reed, is the more aggressive and dangerous of the two.

He pursues Chuck relentlessly, launching blinding fireworks from his giant cannon that stun, and often following up with a charge or melee blows. Attack Reed relentlessly, fleeing to gobble down food when ever the chance permits.

The talkative psycho, Reed, is the more aggressive and dangerous of the two. He pursues Chuck relentlessly, launching blinding fireworks from his cannon that stun, and often following up with a charge or melee blows.

Attack Reed relentlessly, fleeing to gobble down food whenever the chance permits.

Roger's sword attacks pack a bit more of a wallop, but he's less aggressive, using hit-and-run tactics. This makes it easy to heal up after you've dealt with Reed. Chase Roger around the casino, assailing him each time he rounds on you to strike.

Defeating these two deviants not only earns you a sizable amount of PP, but also nets you the rocket launcher combo card. Now that's worthy of some applause!

Note

Feel free to play around with Reed's rocket launcher and Roger's swords after the battle—this is the only chance you'll have to test-out these unique weapons!

SIDE MISSION: DEAD OR ALIVE?

Collect Tammy and then sprint into the nearby Palisades Mall. Set Tammy down in the mall's south maintenance room, closing the door behind you to ensure her safety.

Then follow the guide arrow to locate a man named Andy, who stands atop a row of slot machines, fending off zombies with a shotgun.

Tip

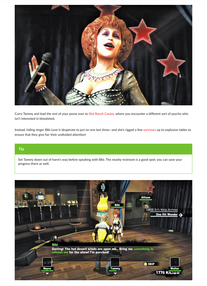

If you didn't grab the peace art plant from The Clerous Collection earlier in the adventure, go upstairs to the mall's second floor and do so now. You'll soon need it!

Climb up to Andy's level and speak with him to initiate a drawn out dialogue. Just keep chatting with Andy until he at last agrees to join you, then drop down and return to the maintenance room to pick up Tammy once more.

Give Katey Zombrex: Day 4

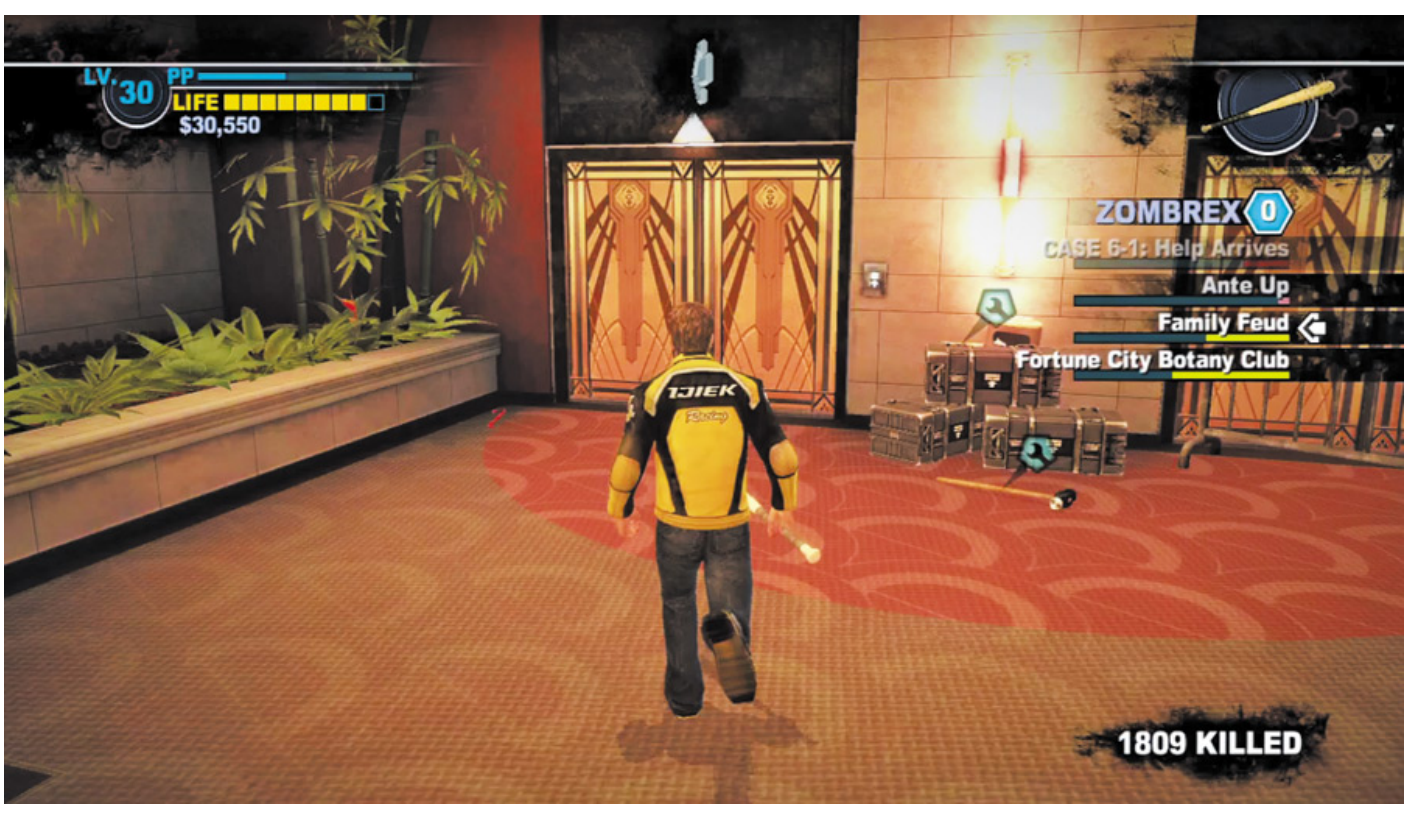

It's that time again, Dad. Give little Katey her daily dose of Zombrex at the Safe House security room, just as you've done many times before. This will be the last shot of Zombrex poor Katey has to endure in this hellacious place!

KILLING TIME, PART 5

Katey is safe from turning for another 24 hours, and the military's arrival is imminent. There are still a handful of hours between now and 10:00 AM, however—enough time for you to round up a few more survivors for PP and glory, if you wish.

SIDE MISSIONS: FAMILY FEUD AND TAPE IT OR DIE 2

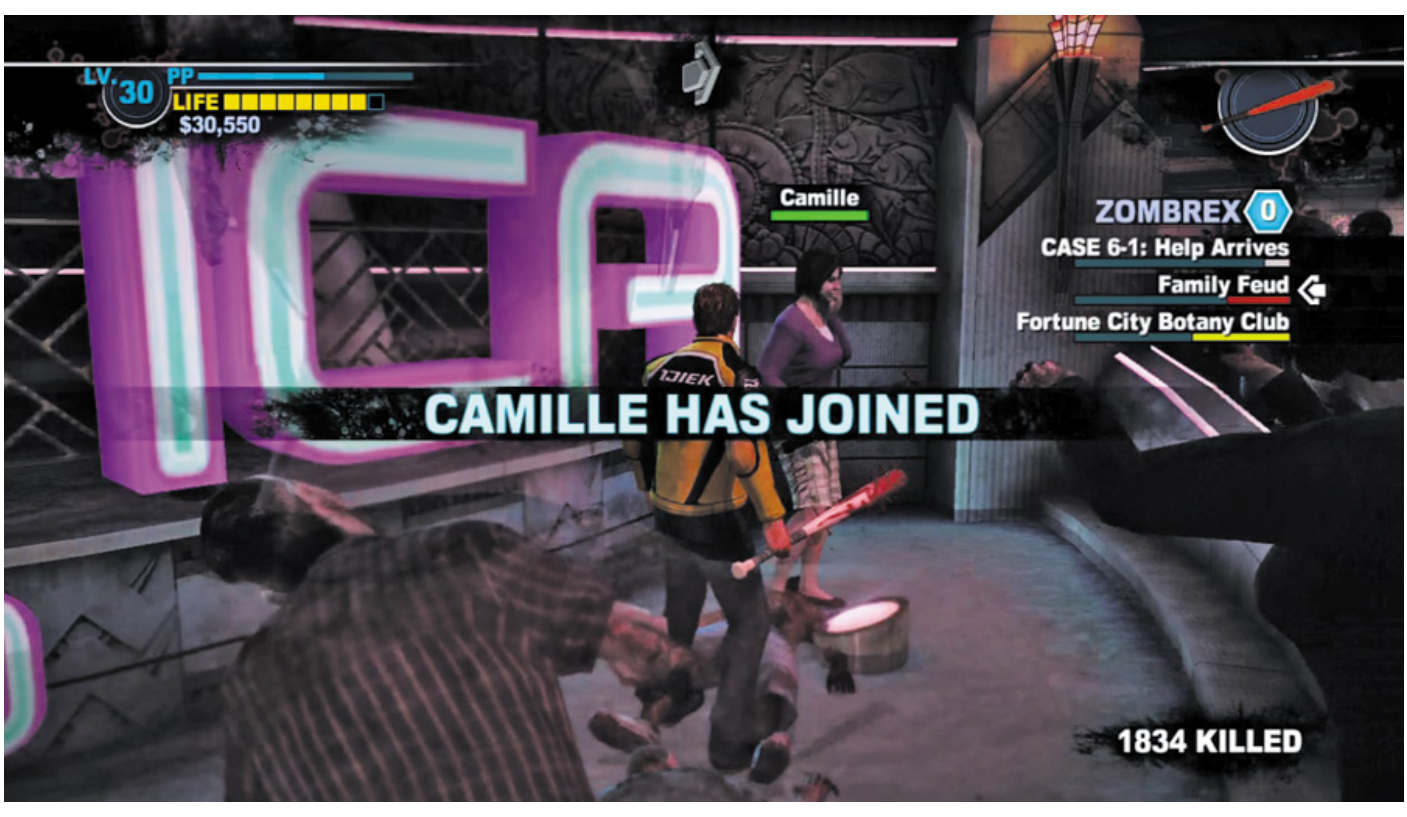

These two side missions are best completed simultaneously. Save at the Safe House before making the long journey to Fortune City Hotel, using Quick Steps mixed at Shots & Awe to speed your travels (make two of them).

Once you arrive at the hotel lobby, take the elevators up to the roof top—the same ones you used when moving to spoil T.K.'s getaway plan.

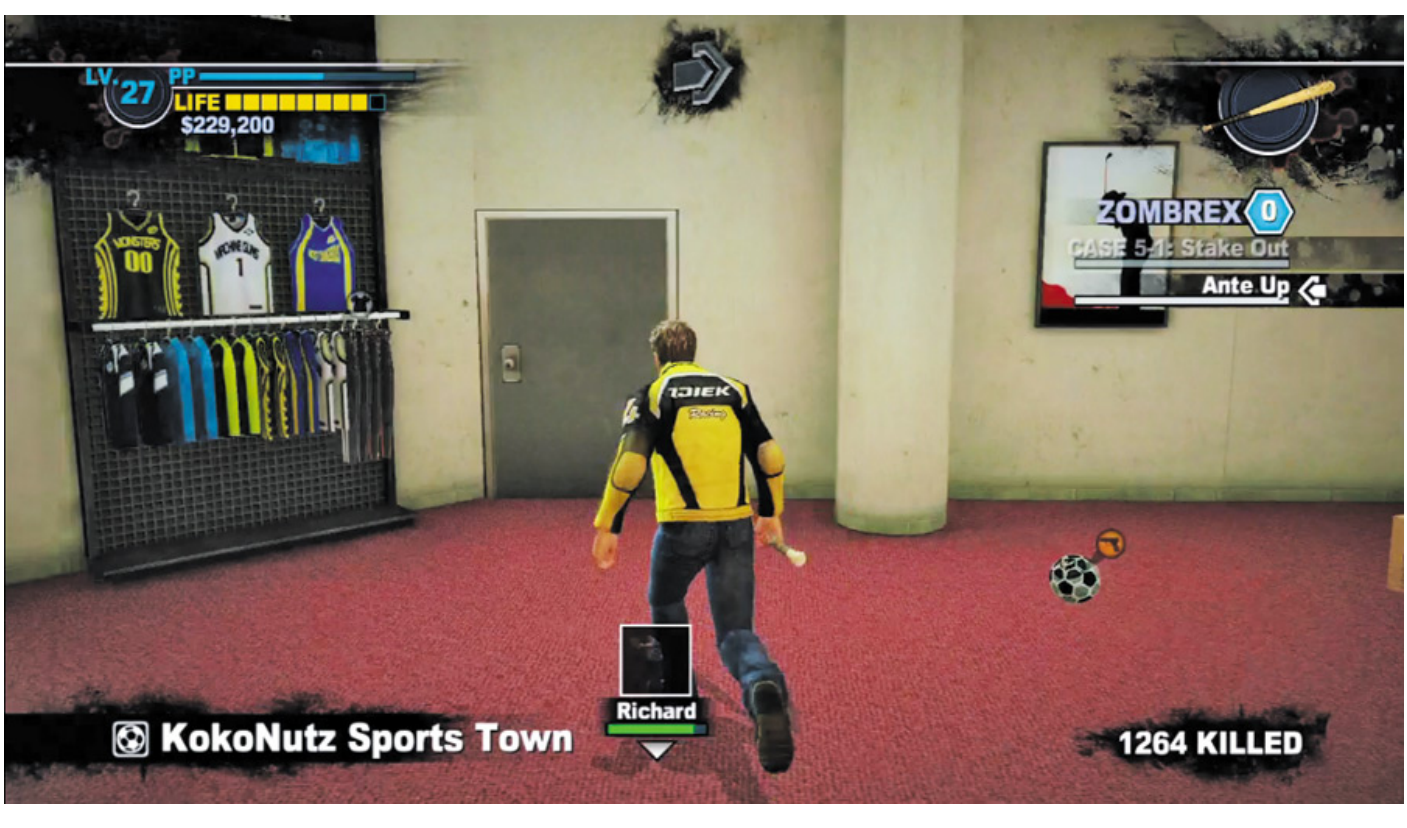

Sprint to the far end of the roof to find a young woman named Lillian who's terribly distraught.

Apparently, Lillian and her mother had quite an argument about where to hide out, and her mother has stormed off to take shelter in the Atlantica Casino. You've got to go find her!

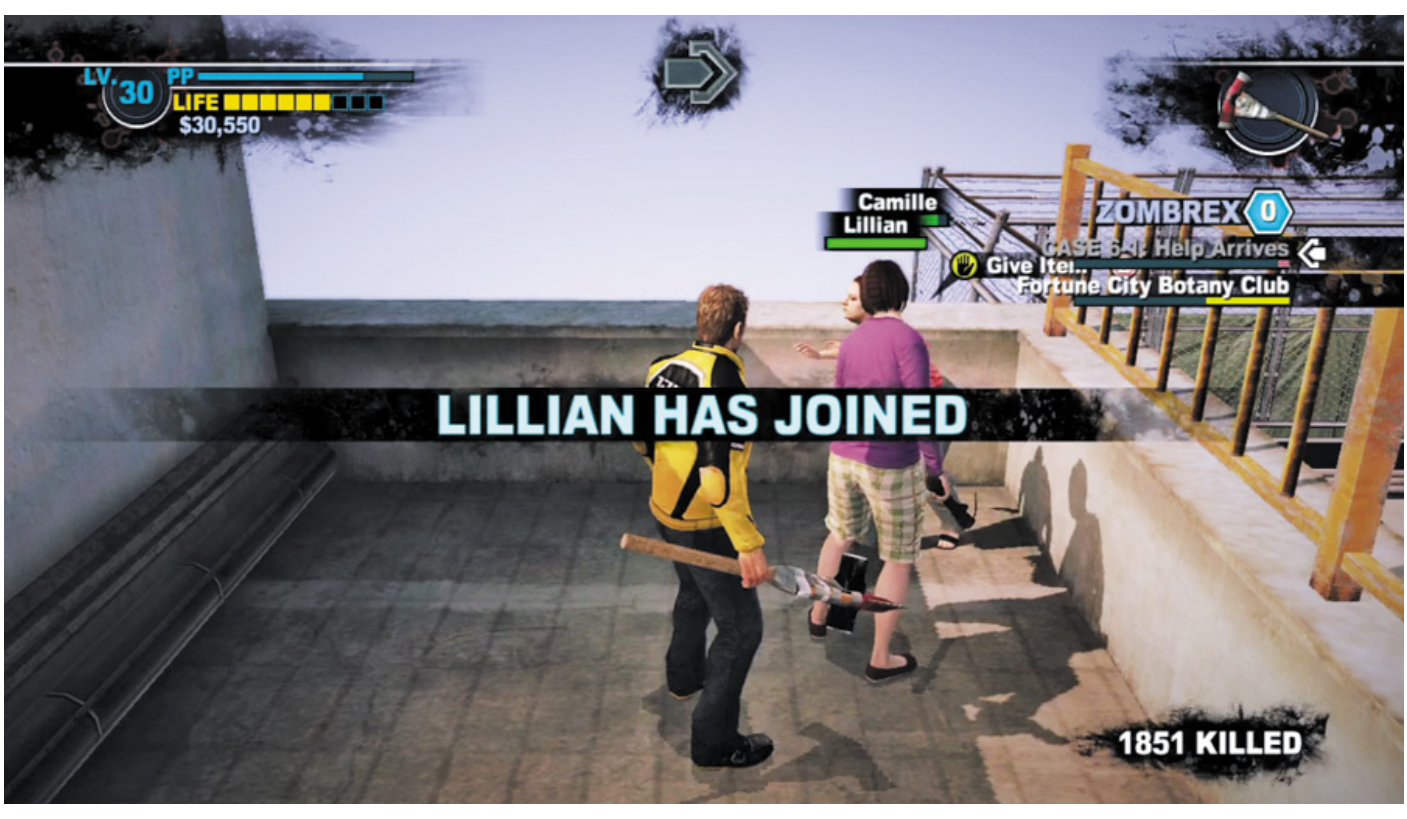

Pound another Quick Step and bolt back to the lobby, following the guide arrow to the Atlantica Casino. There you find Lillian's mother, Camille, desperately fending off the undead.

Clear out the swarm and then speak with Camille to gain her company.

Next, motor to Koko Nutz Sports Town and visit the back room, where you encountered Wallace and his three companions before.

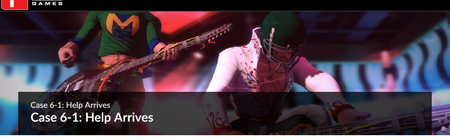

Help these people defeat the swarming zombies to gain their confidence and at last convince all four to join you.

Rush back to Fortune City Hotel's rooftop and reunite the wayward mother with her sobbing daughter. The two embrace and then Lillian joins you— hurry and lead these final survivors to the Safe House before the clock strikes 10:00 AM!

Caution

You receive urgent messages warning you to return to the Safe House throughout the 9 o'clock hour—get back there before 10:00 AM or you'll never discover the truth of what has really happened here in Fortune City.

Case 6-1: Help Arrives

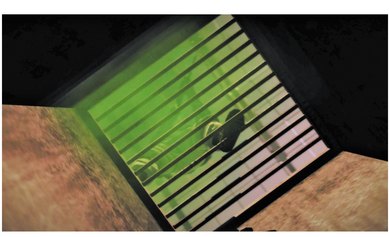

Back at the Safe House security room, Chuck, Stacey, Sullivan, and little Katey all watch the monitors with a vested interest as they await the military's imminent arrival.

So much time in a dingy bunker tends to make one anxious for rescue, particularly when they're surrounded by the less-than-living.

SPOILER : Mercifully, the military soon comes to the rescue, smashing into the north end of the Silver Strip by way of the city's underground tunnel system.

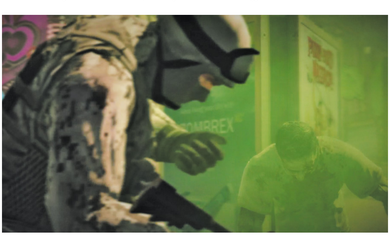

The heavily armed men are more than a match for the mindless zombies and seem to genuinely enjoy slaughtering their way to the Safe House.

SPOILER : Everything seems to be going according to plan—until suddenly, a strange chemical gas begins flooding up from the city's sewer vents. The gas is not the military's doing, and soon the men are surrounded by a thick, green fog.

SPOILER : Not only is the gas a hindrance to vision, it also seems to have some sort of effect on the teeming zombies. Many of the undead soon begin to shudder and mutate, becoming far more powerful and aggressive.

SPOILER : Blinded and surrounded by what can only be described as super zombies, the situation quickly deteriorates for the military.

Soldiers begin firing on one another in the confusion and chaos, and only the squad leader makes it out alive, fleeing the scene in a humvee.

SPOILER : Back at the Safe House, the survivors watch in shock and horror as the grisly scene plays out. What just happened out there? How could zombies take out a trained military column?

SPOILER : Panic begins to set in, but Sullivan assures his comrades that another rescue attempt will occur in 24 hours.

When pressed by Stacey, Sullivan also divulges that, should the second attempt fail, the military's fallback option will be to firebomb the city to ensure the outbreak doesn't spread.

Even the Safe House won't be able to withstand a full-scale bombardment like that.

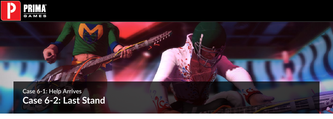

SPOILER : Then, more bad news: The gang catches sight of Rebecca running through the green haze and into the underground tunnels. What's she doing out there? Chuck knows he has to go out now and save her.

Note

Rebecca's time is running out, but you still have a bit of time to complete any outstanding side missions you might have. Super zombies will make things very difficult from this point forward, however.

Escorting survivors is particularly challenging now. Hopefully you've followed this walkthrough carefully and have already completed every available optional task!

Case 6-1: Help Arrives

Case 6-2: Last Stand

Chuck gets his first taste of super zombie shortly after leaving the Safe House. Two of the fiends come shambling toward him in the now-hazy maintenance passage.

Quickly clobber both zombies with your trusty spiked bat, building two more on your way to Royal Flush Plaza—the spiked bat's fast attacks and wide spread knock-back are more valuable now than ever.

Caution

Super zombies are much faster and far more aggressive than the sluggish undead you're accustom to. If one grabs Chuck, you'll need to rapidly imitate several button commands to break its grasp.

Super zombies can also vomit blood as a ranged attack— this causes Chuck to double over in agony when hit, allowing the undead to swarm him.

GO YOUR OWN WAY

Rather than following the guide arrow to Royal Flush Plaza's southeast service door, exploit the restroom shortcut to emerge at Palisades Mall instead.

Vault the fence and visit the grotto bar to mix up some Pain Killers. Grab the chain saw that's stashed behind the counter as well.

Tip

Yank the chain saw's ignition cord to start it running--it will then carve into any zombies that get in your way as you dash through the throng.

Streak to Yucatan Casino, hugging the casino's left wall and exiting into Silver Strip via the Yucatan's south doors.

When you hit the strip, carry the chain saw over to Chuck's motor bike inside the Combo Bay. Install the weapon on to the bike to create a very deadly set of wheels.

Feel free to motor up and down the strip, sawing through zombies for a constant trickle of PP. Avoid collisions with objects, however, as this harms Chuck.

When you're done having fun, speed north toward the Silver Strip's dead end and ride down into the Underground via the wide opening that the military created during their arrival.

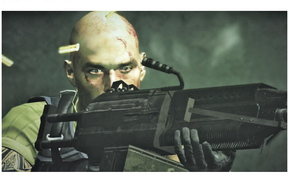

TUNNEL OF TERROR

The Undergroundhas been hit hard by the gas—super zombies are everywhere down here. Fortunately, your souped-up motorbike means you've little to fear.

Zip over to the nearby restroom, clearing out the undead before hopping off the bike to save your progress. Run toward your objective on foot after saving; it isn't far.

SERGEANT PSYCHO

SPOILER! The undead ranks thin out as Chuck nears a crashed humvee. Gunshots ring out from the warehouse beyond; the sergeant is making his final stand here, and he's got Rebecca in custody!

Sgt. Boykin has completely snapped and can no longer tell friend from foe. He opens fire on Chuck—take cover immediately and begin circling around the pillars and cargo crates, aiming to get within striking distance of the militant madman.

In many ways, this fight is similar to the battle against that psychotic mailman, Carl Schliff. Boykin primarily attacks by firing his powerful LMG, but he'll also hurl a grenade at you from time to time—these are most deadly.

Listen carefully to what Boykin says and flee from your position whenever he shouts "grenade" or anything to that effect.

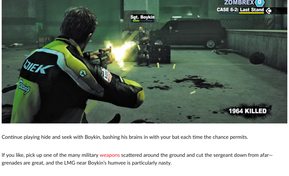

Approach Boykin tactfully by circling around pillars and the like. Punish the sergeant with a slew of spiked bat strikes each time you close in

Flee to cover after Boykin responds by knocking you down, shooting you, and hoaxing you away—then look to repeat the afore mentioned approach technique. Recovering health isn't much of an issue here thanks to the plentiful amount of cover

Tip

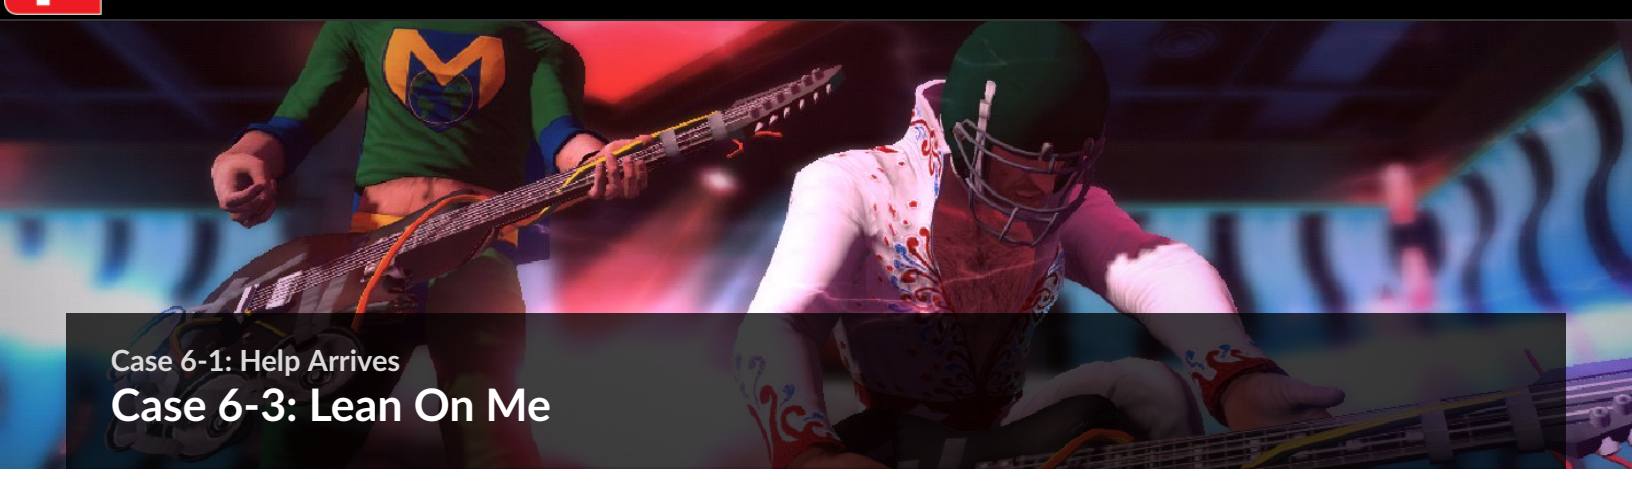

Don't forget about Chuck's Dodge Roll skill—it can be a lifesaver should Boykin pin you down with heavy fire!

Continue playing hide and seek with Boykin, bashing his brains in with your bat each time the chance permits.

If you like, pick up one of the many military weapons scattered around the ground and cut the sergeant down from afar—grenades are great, and the LMG near Boykin's humvee is particularly nasty.

If you came here with enough healing, you should have little trouble handing this fallen hero his discharge papers.

Case 6-3: Lean On Me

Chuck has saved the day once again, but Rebecca didn't escape unscathed this time. Her leg has been badly injured and the shaken reporter is unable to walk.

Ensure that Chuck is at full health, then hoist Rebecca and carry her up the access road to the surface. Simply follow the guide arrow toward daylight.

Tip

Save at the restroom you used prior to fighting Sgt. Boykin—it's a long way back to the Safe House.

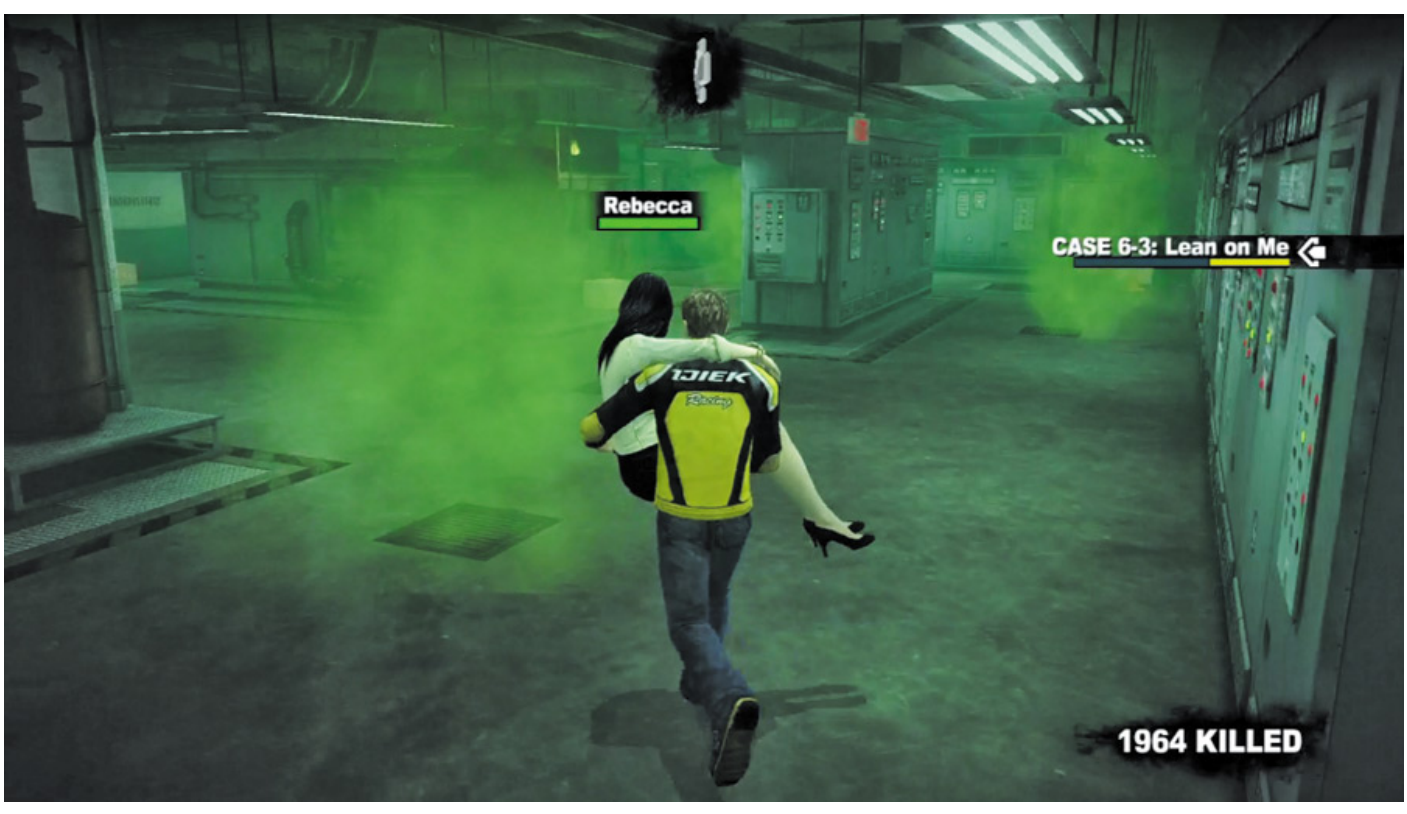

Running with Rebecca through throngs of super zombies is a suicide mission, but it must be done. As always, look for small pockets of space between the undead masses and just keep moving. Sticking close to the wall is usually a sound plan.

Caution

You can't jump or use any skills while carrying Rebecca, so avoiding clusters of zombies is more important than ever.

Tip

Consider moving through Yucatan Casino, into Palisades Mall, and using the second-floor shortcut to return to Royal Flush Plaza more quickly. This allows you to hit the mall's grotto bar if you need more juice drinks.

Don't worry; the two super zombies near the entrance to the Safe House aren't around anymore. Hurry to the hatch to complete your mission!

Tip

Make sure Chuck has plenty of health before entering the Safe House with Rebecca—it's about to become significantly less safe!

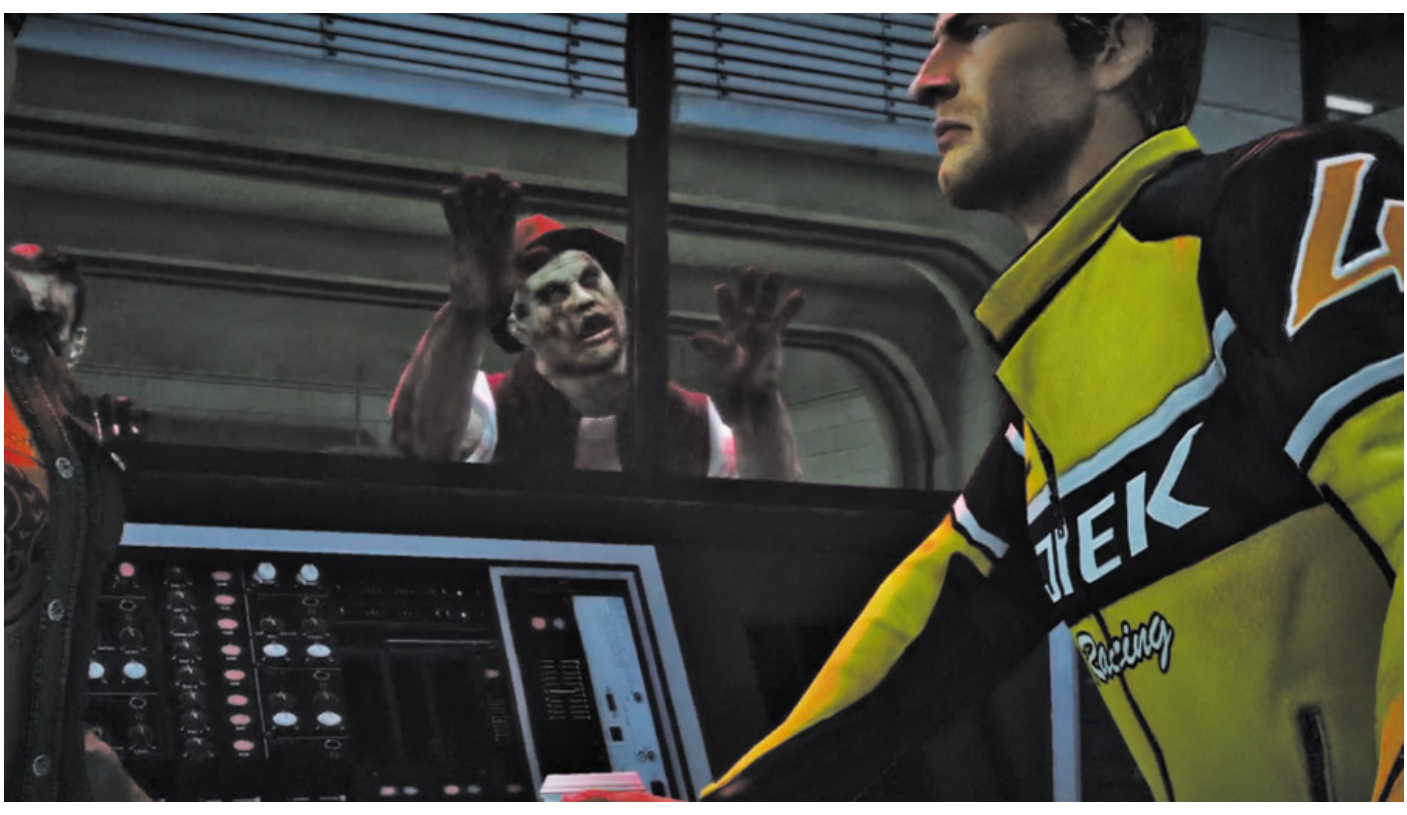

REVOLTING REVELATION

SPOILER! Back at the Safe House, Chuck finds that T.K. has finally come to.

The guy's as charming as ever and, between needling insults, he lets something slip: He wasn't solely responsible for the Fortune City outbreak. T.K. was acting under orders from someone else—some one with there sources to produce the gas that's now choking out the city.

Case 6-4: Breach

SPOILER : Moments later, the gang is startled when zombies begin slamming away at the security office's windows—the Safe House has been breached! Spying a smoking control box, Chuck knows he has to find a way to fix the problem and seal the bunker doors.

You must locate three specific objects needed to hot-wire the control box: a generator, a gas barrel, and a spool of wire. All three objects appear on your map, and they're also listed as missions. Simply follow the guide arrow to track down each object in turn.

Tip

Don't waste time trying to assist the Safe House survivors; they can fend for themselves. Focus on repairing the door.

After collecting one of the needed objects, the guide arrow automatically adjusts to point to the sparking control box.

Simply carry the object to the box, setting it down nearby when you see the "place item" command. A confirmation message then appears to assure you that the object has been properly seated.

Note

Feel free to use the objects to clobber zombies out of your way if need be, but don't break them.

Set all three objects down at the control box, then interact with it when the "hack" command appears.

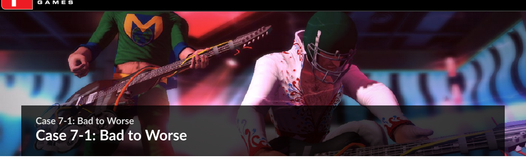

Begin hammering the indicated button as fast as you can to shut the security gate and stem the tide of undead. Don't worry; the zombies won't interfere while you seal the gate.

UNUSUAL ABSENCE

After shutting the gate and taking care of the lingering zombies, Chuck returns to the security room to check on Stacey and Katey.

The two are safe and sound, but Stacey wonders where Sullivan could be—the man was oddly absent during the breach. Chuck decides to look around and find out.

Case 7-1: Bad to Worse

SPOILER : With the Safe House at last secured, Chuck decides to search around for Sullivan, who was strangely absent during the breach. Instead, he is surprised to find T.K. free from his handcuffs and being ravaged by a zombie straggler!

Acting on instinct, Chuck grabs a fire extinguisher and brains the zombie, saving T.K.'s worthless life. Of course, it's now only a matter of time before the villain turns.

SPOILER : Back at the clinic, Chuck finds Sullivan nursing a nasty head wound. Apparently T.K. managed to get the better of the old rascal and may have been responsible for the security breach.

T.K. pleads with Chuck to find him some Zombrex—it can't be long before his infection takes hold.

SPOILER : While deciding his next course of action, Chuck and his comrades catch a news brief that sends shivers up their spines.

The news is reporting that the military found no survivors at Fortune City, so they're proceeding directly with their fall back plan: fire bombing the entire quarantine zone! The eradication is set to begin at precisely 7.00 AM.

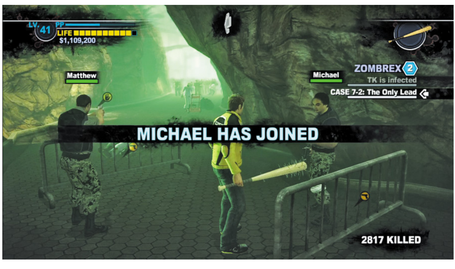

SPOILER : Panic takes hold, but cooler heads prevail. Reviewing Rebecca's footage of the military's failed rescue effort, the crew notices that the mysterious gas had come from beneath the city.

Something very strange is going on in those tunnels, and although Sullivan doesn't like the idea, Chuck is determined to investigate.

> Note
>
> You'll now find queens flying about the Safe House in the wake of the zombie breach. Grab some if you like; they might come in handy. Don't worry about T.K. for the moment. We'll soon show you a convenient source of Zombrex.

SIDE MISSION: DELTA POINT 1

Scouring the Underground can wait a bit. Drop any fire arms you might be carrying, build a couple of fresh spiked bats on your way out of the Safe House, then sprint through Royal Flush Plaza on your way to Fortune Park.

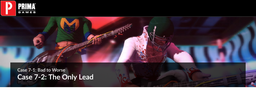

Free of firearms, approach the two soldiers who are making a stand against an onslaught of undead near the park's central grotto. Speak with the men to convince them to accompany Chuck back to the Safe House.

>
> The soldiers will fire on Chuck if he's carrying any sort of firearm. Don't approach the men until you've dropped all of your guns!

One of the soldiers is wounded and can't travel very fast. Lend him a shoulder and speed back to the Safe House, delivering these final two survivors to the bunker.

> Note
>
> Pat yourself on the back if you've followed the walkthrough flawlessly up to this point—you've just rescued every survivor in Fortune City!

Construct two new spiked bats on your way out of the Safe House, then take the restroom shortcut to Palisades Mall.

Mix up some juice drinks at the grotto and grab the chain saw from behind the bar, carrying it through Yucatan Casino and in stalling it onto Chuck's motorbike at the Combo Box as you did before.

Motor into the Underground, following the guide arrow toward your objective. Look for a flashing red light on the tunnel's inside wall near a security gate—this is where you need to go.

Tip

If you wish to save T.K. and need some Zombrex, cruise up the ramp to the west of the security gate and find a dose of the drug just sitting on the high ground.

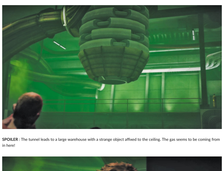

Park near the control panel to the right of the security gate without fear—the surrounding zombies are more interested in whatever lies beyond the gate than they are in devouring Chuck's flesh. Hop off the bike and examine the panel to open the gate and advance.

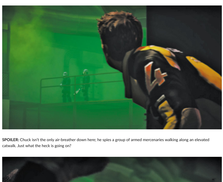

MINDLESS! CONTROLS

SPOILER: After opening the gate, Chuck is surprised when the surrounding zombies calm down and shuffle into the tunnel beyond, seemingly drawn by some mysterious force. Unhindered by the undead, Chuck cautiously follows suit.

SPOILER: The tunnel leads to a large warehouse with a strange object affixed to the ceiling. The gas seems to be coming from in here!

SPOILER: Chuck isn't the only air-breather down here; he spies a group of armed mercenaries walking along an elevated catwalk. Just what the heck is going on?

SPOILER: Soon, a horrible, high-pitched noise rings out. The surrounding zombies react badly—within moments, all of their heads begin to explode in a massive shower of gore, freeing queens that begin madly buzzing about.

Even Chuck is forced to cover his ears at the unnatural sound, but fortunately, his head remains intact.

Whom the noise finally subsides, Chuck watches in awe as the queens obediently fly into the giant object affixed to the ceiling.

Before Chuck can process what's happening, the mercenaries catch sight of him and open fire. It's fight or flight time, and Chuck Greene never runs from a good fight!

FRANTIC FIREFIGHT

You can't do much against the mercenaries from the low ground. Turn left and sprint for some stairs that lead up to the catwalk.

Dodge-Roll your way toward the men's, beating each one senseless with your trusty spiked bat. Their assault rifle fire is as you've come to expect: rapid but weak. You should have little trouble securing the warehouse.

Tip

Drop from the catwalk if you need to consume food; it's safer down below.

After neutralizing the mercenaries, chow down on their food to heal up, and feel free to load up on guns and other weapons if you like. (By climbing up to the ceiling vents, you can obtain a hidden chain saw and broadsword.)

When you're ready, follow the guide arrow as it leads you through a circular tunnel, and examine the control panel on the wall beyond to open the nearby door.

LAB RATS

SPOILER: The door leads to a secret lab. Chuck eavesdrops on two lab technicians who are proudly discussing how well things are going with their "tests" in Fortune City. Far from amused, Chuck angrily calls out to the men, who unexpectedly produce handguns and open fire.

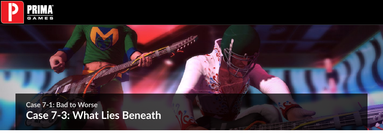

You'll likely eat a few bullets at first, as the men have the drop on you. Immediately Dodge Roll toward them, then beat them senseless with your spiked bat. These two pip-squeaks are no match for the wrath of Chuck Greene!

SPOILER: While accessing the men's laptop computer, Chuck discovers the true source of the outbreak. It was the work of the pharmaceutical giant, Phenotrans!

Chuck grabs the laptop, along with the nearby transceiver, and also swipes an elevator access card off one of the men. If Rebecca thought she had a story before, she's going to flip when she sees this!

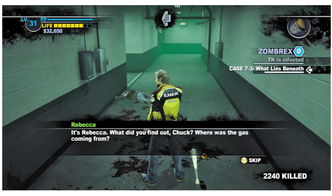

Case 7-1: Bad to Worse

Case 7-3: What Lies Beneath

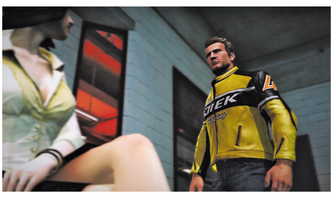

You've got the evidence you need to blow this conspiracy wide open—you just need to return to the Safe House to put it in Rebecca's capable hands.

No need to worry about braving the Underground tunnels again; armed with the Lab Key Card, you can now use the nearby elevator to return to the surface.

You emerge from the elevator in one of the Palisades Mall's maintenance halls. Since you're so close to it, head upstairs and use the shortcut to quickly return to Royal Flush Plaza, then make for the Safe House. Feel free to exploit the grotto bar's blender if you like.

LONG ARM OF THE PHARM

SPOILER : Chuck storms into the security room, eager to show Rebecca his findings. The savvy reporter quickly puts it all together: With fewer and fewer zombie outbreaks, Phenotrans's best-selling drug, Zombrex, isn't in demand like it used to be.

Clearly, the pharmaceutical Conglomerate has engineered this outbreak to enhance the power of zombies, thereby creating a new crisis designed to stimulate worldwide profits. Diabolical!

SPOILER : Tragically, Rebecca doesn't get the chance to shock the world with her story. As the young reporter begins to phone her radio station, Sullivan puts a bullet through her head. That snake—he's been on Phenotrans's payroll all along!

SPOILER : Sullivan has designs on silencing Chuck as well, but Stacey acts fast and knocks his gun from his hand. When Chuck grabs the hand gun off the floor, Sullivan takes his opportunity to flee the scene.

The Facts

SPOILER : The awful truth has at last come to light. Pharmaceutical giant Phenotrans, makers of Zombrex, is the true force behind the Fortune City outbreak—and Raymond Sullivan has been working for them all along.

Rebecca Chang is dead, killed by Sullivan, who is no doubt trying to escape Fortune City. Little does he realize that Chuck Greene isn't about to let that happen.

> Note
>
> If you haven't given T.K. his Zombrex yet, go ahead and do so now. Saving T.K.'s life in this fashion allows you to explore the game's special Overtime ending, so swallow your pride and save T.K.

LEVEL UP, CHUCK

With several hours to kill, now is a fantastic time to level up our hero.

You need every advantage to beat Sullivan, so use combo weapons against zombies to amass PP, or outfit Chuck's motorbike with a chain saw at the Combo Bay and mow down those ghouls along the strip.

Minigames are also good ways to earn PP; see the "Unearthing Fortune City" chapter for a complete breakdown of everything that's available to you in each section of the city.

This is also a perfect time to bring Katey any gifts that you haven't yet given her. You don't have to go far to find these items, and they're each worth significant PP when given to Katey.

Only Snowflake and the funny painting that you purchased from Randolph during the "Art Appreciation" side mission were one-time deals—hopefully you were able to give those gifts to Katey when you had the chance.

Here's a complete list of the remaining gifts you can give to Chuck's little girl:

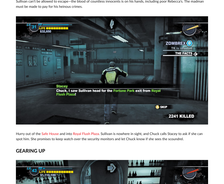

Item	Location
Giant Stuffed Elephant	Stylin' Toddlers on Royal Flush Plaza's first floor.
Robot bear	Astonishing Illusions on Royal Flush Plaza's first floor.
Bag of marbles	Ye Olde Toybox on Royal Flush Plaza's first floor.
Beach ball	Ye Olde Toybox on Royal Flush Plaza's first floor.
Stick Pony	Ye Olde Toybox on Royal Flush Plaza's first floor.
Water gun	The watery areas of Fortune Park; also found in Moe's Maginations on the Platinum Strip.
Giant stuffed bull	Children's Castle on Royal Flush Plaza's second floor.
Giant stuffed donkey	Children's Castle on Royal Flush Plaza's second floor.
Giant stuffed rabbit	The hidden upper platforms of Americana Casino's and Royal Flush Plaza's second floor; also found in Moe's Maginations on the Platinum Strip.

> Note
>
> If you're not certain which gifts you've given to Katey, simply look around the Safe House's security room to find them all on display.
>
> You no longer need to carry the Rescue magazine after you've given all gifts to Katey; there are no other survivor-related activities for you to fulfill.

Case 7-1: Rat in Worry

To Kill a Cretin

Sullivan can't be allowed to escape - the blood of countless innocents is on his hands, including poor Rebecca's. The mastiff must be made to pay for his heinous crimes.

2341 KILLED

Harry out of the Safe House and into Royal Flush Plaza. Sullivan is nowhere in sight, and Chuck calls Stacey to ask if she can spot him. She promises to keep watch over the security monitors and let Chuck know if she sees the scoundrel.

GEARING UP

4211 KILLED

A gate without saying that you'll need lots of powerful cushion on hand for the final battle. Take the short cut to Paladins Hall, storing up as many Pain Killers as you can carry at the control points.

1597 KILLED

Long range weapons are also vital to succeeding in the final encounter, so use this time to track some down.

There's an LMG on one of the gorilla's boom gravy lodges, and two shot guns can be acquired from the High Noon Shooting Range via Fortuna Hall's second floor.

You only need one good melee weapon to help you reach Sullivan, so fill the rest of Chuck's inventory with ranged weapons and countries.

Tip

Nab the Health 2 magazine from the bar in Yucatan Casino's Baxter Ave Brothaus restaurant if you haven't already - it doubles the potency of all healing items.

4210 KILLED

The fire splitter combo weapon is another free option against Sullivan. Find two tiki torches inside Paladins Hall's control grotto and an endless supply of the spitball guns refill in the rear by Ultimate Pay house store.

Merge these together at any maintenance room to form a pair of fire splitters.

2320 KILLED

Stacey eventually pinpoints Sullivan's location. He's soaking now on the roof of the Yucatan Casino.

Streak off until you're happy with your array of ranged weapons and countries.

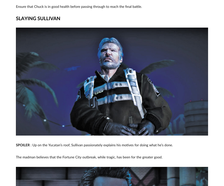

Tip

Save at Yucatan Casino's restroom in case things go poorly up there on the roof.

2329 KILLED

Sullivan has hacked the casino's elevator to reach the rooftop. Eliminate the zombies inside the elevator, then use its interior control panel to ride up.

2342 KILLED

The lift doesn't quite get all the way up to the roof- you need to fight your way through more zombies to get there. Use your lone melee weapon to beat the undead out of your path as you follow the guide arrow upstairs to a door.

Ensure that Chuck's in good health before pausing through to reach the final battle.

SLAYING SULLIVAN

SPOILER - Up on the Yucatan's roof, Sullivan passionately explains his motives for doing what he's done.

The madman believes that the Fortune City outbreak, while tragic, has been for the greater good.

SPOILER - Chuck isn't buying into Sullivan's pathetic excuses. By assisting Mercenaries in their revolting actions, the villain has been responsible for countless deaths.

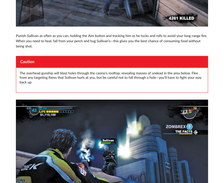

He murdered Rebecca Chung in cold blood and would have done the same to Chuck if it hadn't been for Stacey's interference. Rammed Sullivan will be made to pay.

2362 KILLED

The fight against Sullivan is chaotic. Zombies get in your way on the ground, and Sullivan rains down bullets from his elevated control vantage, and he also tosses flares that cause the overhead sprinkle to fire devastating blasts.

To reduce the odds of being accosted by undead, scamper upon to the scaffolding near Sullivan's perch.

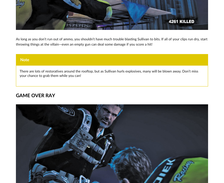

2362 KILLED

Sullivan has a shiv shot at you while you stand on the scaffolding, but he's got a shiv shot of you anywhere. Do your best to remain on the scaffolding as you unload your favorite ranged weapon on the villain.

Tip

Leap from the scaffolding to combat Sullivan on his level, but beware his hot melee attacks and counters. Use Chuck's own hand-to-hand special moves to drop Sullivan to one knee, then quickly follow up with additional attacks.

4201 KILLED

Punish Sullivan as often as you can, holding the Aim button and tracking him as he tucks and rolls to avoid your long-range fire. You may need to look, fall from your perch and hug Sullivan's shin plane you the best chance of conserving food without tying off.

Caution

The overhead gunship will blast holes through the casino's rooftop, revealing masses of undead in the area below. Pick from any targeting flares that Sullivan hurls at you, but be careful not to fall through a hole- you'll have to fight your way back up.

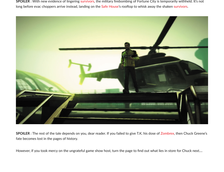

4201 KILLED

As long as you don't run out of ammo, you shouldn't have much trouble blasting Sullivan to bits. If all of your clips run dry, start throwing things at the villain—even an empty gun can deal some damage if you screw a hit!

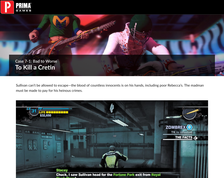

Note

There are lots of molotovtoves around the rooftop, but as Sullivan hurls explosives, many will be blown away. Don't rely your chance to grab them while you can!

GAME OVER RAY

SPOILER - Having at last defeated the double-crossing dog, Chuck uses the transceiver he stole from the underground lab technicians to call Rebecca Chung's former employer, Channel 6 Action News, with the scoop of a lifetime.

SPOILER - With new evidence of lingering survivors, the military firebombing of Fortune City is temporarily withheld. It's not long before rear choppers arrive instead, landing on the Safe House's rooftop to whisk away the shaken survivors.

SPOILER - The rest of the tale depends on you, dear reader. If you failed to give T.K. his dose of Zombots, then Chuck Greene's fate becomes lost in the pages of history.

However, if you took mercy on the ungrateful game show host, turn the page to find out what lies in store for Chuck next...

Case 7: Rat to Worse

Overtime

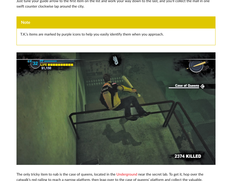

We good dead goes unvanished. If you saved TK's miserable life by giving him a shot of Zombrex before defeating Sullivan, then you're treated to a special epilogue ending called Overtime—but it isn't what you might expect.

Having saved the day and proven his innocence, Chuck Greene returns to the Safe House with an exec chopper. Everyone's glad to be getting out of Fortune City—but Stacey and Billie Kates are nowhere to be found!

Chuck searches the entire Safe House, but finds only Kelvin's backpack. Distraught, he broken father remains in the city, watching the Safe House's security monitors for any trace of Stacey or his beloved little girl.

Suddenly, an all-too-familiar voice rings out over Chuck's transceiver. It's T.K., and—surprise, surprise—he's not calling to thank his savior.

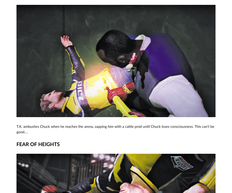

Instead, T.K. has kidnapped Stacey and Kelsey, and he demands that Chuck retrieve a number of precious valuables scattered all throughout Fortune City before he'll let them go. Scavenger hunt, anyone?

WORKIN' OVERTIME

Fortunately, each of T.K.'s items is very easy to track down. Arm yourself with a couple of spiked bats and plenty of food, then head out in search of T.K.'s loot.

Aim tone your guide arrow to the first item on the list and work your way down to the last, and you'll collect the mall in one swift counter-clockwise lap around the city.

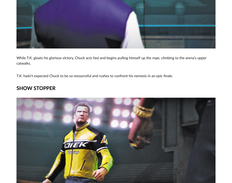

Note

T.K.'s items are marked by purple icons to help you easily identify them when you approach.

The only tricky item to nab is the case of queens, located in the Underground near the secret lab. To get it, hop over the catwalk's rail railing to reach a narrow platform, then leap over to the case of queens' platform and collect the valuable.

After you acquire all of T.K.'s goodies, the villain demands that you bring him the loot in person. Don't worry about stocking up for battle; it won't do you any good.

T.K. ambushes Chuck when he reaches the arena, zapping him with a Lethe pistol until Chuck loses consciousness. This can't be good...

FEAR OF HEIGHTS

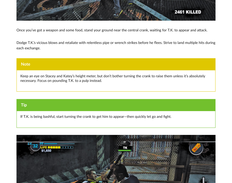

When Chuck finally awakes, he finds himself strung upside down, dangling above a mass of zombies inside the arena. Stacey and Kelsey are in a similar predicament, and it appears that T.K. is running the show.

While T.K. gloats his glorious victory, Chuck acts fast and begins pulling himself up the rope, climbing to the arena's upper catwalks.

T.K. hadn't expected Chuck to be so resourceful and rushes to confront his nemesis in an epic finale.

SHOW STOPPER

At long last, Chuck has a chance to get revenge on T.K.—but he'll need to act fast, or Stacey and his little girl will become zombie food.

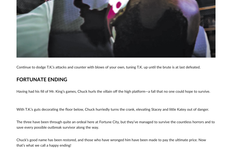

First things first: T.K. has relieved Chuck of all of his weapons, so you'll need to find one pronto. Sprint to one side and climb up onto one of the steel walls to locate a lead pipe. This will have to do.

Note

A large wrench is another ideal weapon, but you can only find three beyond the steel walls. T.K. unleashes painful projectiles if you venture beyond the walls, so it's best not to risk it.

Tip

Use the Dodge Roll skill to avoid T.K.'s attacks, but don't expect it to save Chuck from those searing pyrotechnics.

Next on the list is food. Drop from the metal wall and make a run around the control crank, grabbing the few cartons of orange juice that lie near piles of cardboard boxes.

Jump onto the cardboard boxes as well to quickly bust them open, potentially revealing more curatives.

Once you've got a weapon and some food, stand your ground over the central crank, waiting for T.K. to appear and attack.

Dodge T.K.'s vicious blows and retaliate with relentless pipe or wrench strikes before he flees. Strive to land multiple hits during each exchange.

Note

Keep an eye on Stacey and Kelsey's height meter, but don't bother turning the crank to raise them unless it's absolutely necessary. They can pounding T.K. in a pulp instead.

Tip

If T.K. is being bashful, start turning the crank to get him to appear—then quickly let go and fight.

T.K. has some nasty moves—if he hits Chuck while charging, he'll grab onto Chuck and unleash a series of strong attacks. Use the Dodge Roll to avoid being grabbed.

If this doesn't work, counter T.K.'s assaults by quickly imitating the series of onscreen commands, thereby minimizing the damage and breaking free.

Continue to dodge T.K.'s attacks, and counter with blows of your own, ousting T.K. up until the brute is at last defeated.

FORTUNATE ENDING

Having had his fill of Mr. King's games, Chuck hurls the villain off the high platform—a fall that no one could hope to survive.

With T.K.'s guts decorating the floor below, Chuck hurriedly turns the crank, elevating Stacey and little Kates out of danger.

The three have been through quite an ordeal here at Fortune City, but they've managed to survive the countless hurners and to save every possible outbreak survivor along the way.

Chuck's good name has been restored, and those who have wronged him have been made to pay the ultimate price. Now that's what we call a happy ending!

Terror is Reality

General Strategies

It's America's hottest game show—the spectacle that's sweeping the nation. It's "Terror Is Reality!" Who needs population control when hopped-up contestants are ready to slaughter zombies by the truckload for fame and prizes?

Just remember: You've got to be willing to risk it all if you're ever—really—gonna—win big!

"Terror Is Reality" is a chaotic show, and a certain level of luck plays into your chances of success. Tip the odds in your favor, however, by keeping the following tips in mind:

1. Play it cool . Although each event is a messy affair, keeping your wits about you is vital. Stay sharp, be strategic, and don't lose your head out there.

2. Work fast . Keeping your cool is key, but so is speed. Don't dally about out there; work quickly and decisively.

3. Go for multipliers . Most TIR events allow you to boost your score quickly through multipliers or the killing of special "bonus zombies" — this is vital to success. See each event's section to learn how to score big in each game.

4. Fight dirty . It's possible to harass and impede your rivals' progress in many TIR events. Do this whenever the chance permits to upset your opponents' game plans, particularly the current point leader.

5. Never say die . Each TIR event is vastly diferent from the rest, so don't worry if you score poorly in a certain game. The winner of the show will be the player with the highest score at the end of all challenges, so simply strive to remain competitive — you just might come out on top in the end.

Tag Assists are a new mechanic introduced in Marvel vs. Capcom Infinite. They allow players to call in their partner for a quick assist attack.

Grand Finale: Slicecycles

All TIR shows end with a white-knuckle round of America's favorite event, Slicecycles! In this grueling grande finale, all four contestants ride souped-up motorbikes with chain saws attached to their handles.

An arena filled with undead stretches out ahead — gentlemen, start your engines!

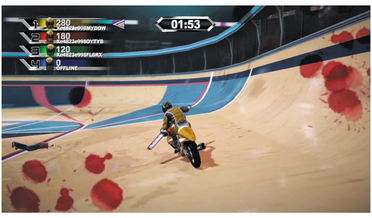

Depending on how well you've fared up to this point in the show, you may suffer a slight time penalty before you're able to join in the slicecycle mayhem.

The lower your current score, the longer you have to wait. Don't worry; the penalty is minimal, for it's impossible to score big until the Bonus Round.

Speed back and forth along the arena, aiming to run down as many hapless zombies as possible. Don't worry about collisions with other racers; you can't be harmed in a crash, only knocked off course or slowed down a bit.

The key to succeeding in Slicecycles lies in mastering the art of the turn. After making a run down the arena (lengthwise, of course, to ensure you kill the most zombies with each pass), simultaneously turn and begin feathering the brake.

The idea is to gain only a bit of height up the ramped outer edges so that you quickly build speed as you come out of the turn.

Caution

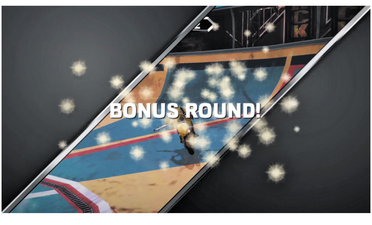

Avoid fying way up into the sky when you reach the outer ramps — this will cost you precious time, which is better spent slaughtering zombies.

Another sound strategy is to turn before you reach the arena's outer ramps, keeping as close to the undead mob as possible.

Again, feather the brake as you turn to perform a powerslide instead of coming to a dead stop.

If your bike is coming to a complete stop while changing direction, you're wasting precious seconds with each turn, which add up over the course of the game.

The Bonus Round kicks off before long. Many more zombies are deployed to the arena by overhead drop pods. Look for clusters of zombies that carry pink balloons and slaughter them all for huge score bonuses!

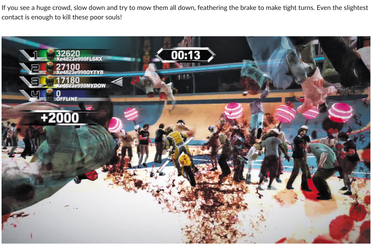

Note

Don't worry about hitting a drop pod; you can't, and they can't crush you, either.

Strive to strike as many of those balloon-toting bonus zombies as possible — they're the key to victory.

If you see a huge crowd, slow down and try to mow them all down, feathering the brake to make tight turns. Even the slightest contact is enough to kill these poor souls!

Because the zombies are deposited at random, luck plays a role in your Slicecycle success. Sometimes you'll get on a great run.

Other times, you'll find you're always out of position while your rivals run away with the victory.

Keep your cool and do your best to score as high as you can — a vast amount of points can be won from this final event, and losing the lead is easy if you don't stay competitive!
